MUNY COURT MEASURE LOOMS

EMMONS WILL SPONSOR BILL AT SESSION OF OHIO ASSEMBLY

Proposal Abolishes Township Justice of Peace Offices.

ACTION URGED

Plan Approved by Civic and Labor Organizations.

A bill providing for the establishment of a municipal court in East Liverpool, vetoed by Governor A. V. Donahey at the last session of the legislature, will be re-introduced, State Representative Raiph W. Emmons, of East Rochester, advised local friends today.

Demand for such a court here and elsewhere followed many complaints against alleged practices of justices of the peace.

Fees Go Into Treasury

The municipal court would not only handle all legation now filed before justices of the peace whose fees are said to be large, but also would hear police cases.

Fees now going into private coffers would revert to the city treasury, while court officials would be paid fixed salaries.

Representative Emmons, with other members of the legislature, is working out a uniform municipal court plan which Governor Donahey has indicated he will support. Various drafts have been submitted and are being considered by Emmons and his co-workers.

Hopeful of Donahey Support.

As soon as the proposed uniform draft is completed, Emmons will submit a copy of it to an East Liverpool committee. If the measure is found to be unsatisfactory, he will present a revised copy of the bill which was passed at the last session of the legislature.

The governor has approved bills authorizing municipal courts in Springfield and Canton, and local friends express the hope that he will not block the passage of a similar measure for East Liverpool.

The proposed municipal court when it was advocated here two years ago had the support of civic, labor and many other organizations. It would have become operative January 1, 1924 had it become a law.

'PLANT' LIQUOR IN VEGETABLES

Police Probe Report Made by Market Street Grocer.

Police today are investigating an alleged attempt to "plant" a bottle containing a small quantity of whiskey in a basket of vegetables in the Nick Galepo grocery store, Market street.

Galepo reported the affair to Captain Mason C. Conley after he, at the point of a gun, compelled one of three strangers to remove the liquor.

The visitors, Galepo declared, dropped the whiskey bottle in the basket when he went to the rear of the store to comply with their request for a quart of milk. After the grocer made change for 25 cents, 14 cents of which was paid for the milk, he leaned over the counter and saw the "planted" bottle.

Galepo, without further ado, reached under the counter and obtained a revolver. With the other hand, he picked up a hatchet. Thus armed he ordered the men to remove the whiskey bottle. The strangers then left the store.

Mushing Dogs' Race Against Death May be in Vain.

CALL FOR PLANE

Plan to Rush More Anti-toxin for Sufferers.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3.—More terror struck at plague-ridden Nome today.

Rumors were circulated in the camp that the precious serum rushed across the icy tundra by dog teams had been rendered useless by freezing.

Dr. Curtis Welch, Nome's lone physician, who is fighting the epidemic, is making exhaustive tests of the serum and said he would know tonight if freezing had robbed the remedy of its efficacy.

With reports that the daring race to bring into Nome 300,000 units of the anti-toxin may have been made in vain, it was officially said there were new cases in camp. Official confirmation of these reports may not be made until tonight when the board of health will meet.

Driver and Dogs Heroes.

There were 38 cases, 28 suspects and 100 contacts officially reported in the camp today and members of the board of health announced they planned to appeal for a shipment of anti-toxin be rushed to Nome by airplane. They said carrying in the plane would prevent its freezing and pointed out that even if the 300,000 units brought by dog teams proved unharmed more new supplies of the serum were needed.

HUSKIES BEGIN 200-MILE RACE

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 3—With five sharp cries of "mush you," five teams of huskies leaped from the starting point at 10 o'clock this morning on the 200-mile nonstop race of the eighth annual dog derby. Several of the champion mushers of the north refused to enter their names as protest against the change of course, which was made by the officials. Among the "strikers," were "Shorty" Russick and MacDonald, who captured first and second prize, respectively, in the 1924 derby.

Record Crowd Taxes Capacity of Old K. & M. Store.

NAZARENE MEET

George M. Formby Plans Afternoon and Evening Services.

A record breaking crowd packed the temporary quarters of the Nazarene church in the old K. and M. store room Fifth street, last evening, where George M. Formby, faith healer, of Grand Crossing Fla., conducted services. Many persons were unable to gain admittance.

Forty-eight cards distributed by Formby at the beginning of the service were returned by persons claiming to be suffering from ill and ailments of various sorts. After being anointed, practically all of them said they were either cured or assisted.

Among the most remarkable cases coming to Formby's attention, last evening, was that of a man who had been deaf and dumb for many years. After being anointed, he used the sign language to tell his sister, who ac-

DONAHEY FREES ALLIANCE HOME MAN CONVICTED OF FLOGGING

"Go and Sin No More," Governor Tells E. E. Webb.

PLEADED GUILTY

Pardon Saves Orphanage Chief From Term in Workhouse.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3.—Quoting the Gallilean injunction, "Go and sin no more," Governor Donahey today granted a pardon, effective at once, to E. E. Webb, 60, superintendent of the Fairmount Children's Home, Alliance, so he will not be forced to serve a 60-day workhouse sentence imposed July 14, 1924, after he had pleaded guilty to an indictment charging assault and riotous conspiracy in connection with the flogging of William Shaw, near Massillon, April 9, 1924.

The state supreme court last Tuesday refused an appeal in the case. Webb's counsel contended Webb had agreed with the prosecuting officials to plead guilty on condition that no workhouse sentence be imposed.

In granting the pardon, Governor Donahey said:

"Shall we, as a matter of law, send him to the workhouse in the sunset days of his useful life, because he once erred, or shall we extend mercy and charity? The Savior said 'Go and sin no more.'"

Dr. John A. Mellon, 48, Columbiana, Dies In Salem Hospital

Dr. John A. Mellon, 48 years old, Columbiana, died this morning in the Salem Clinic hospital. Death was caused by blood poisoning resulting from an infected finger.

Deceased, who was born in New Brighton, Pa., was a medical practitioner in Columbiana for 18 years. He served in the World war, and was a member of the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, American Legion and Methodist Episcopal church.

He is survived by his widow and three children: Mrs. Agnes Smith, Philadelphia, Pa.; Lucille, at home, and Ensign Wilbur Mellon, United States navy.

Reply to Athens' Note of Protest Against Expulsion of Ecumenical Patriarch From Constantinople Will Emphasize Turkish Viewpoint That Action Was Taken Under Treaty.

ANIMOSITY AGAINST TURKS FLAMES; DEMONSTRATIONS IN MANY TOWNS

Greek Assembly Votes to Reject Geneva Protocol, Declaring National Honor Has Been Impugned and Must be Defended at All Costs Five Are Killed as Tricala Protests.

ANGORA, Turkey, Feb. 3.—The Turkish government was prepared today to take a positive stand and refuse to submit to arbitration its action in expelling the Patriarch Constantinos from Constantinople, it was said in government circles.

A note being formulated in reply to Greece's note of protest will emphasize, it was said, the Turkish viewpoint that the patriarch was expelled under terms of the Lausanne treaty.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 3.—Animosity against the Turk flamed anew today. Demonstrations were reported in many towns and villages as a protest against the expulsion of the ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople.

The Greek assembly voted to reject the Geneva protocol, determined, it was pointed out, to proceed unhampered by other forces in its purpose to settle its score with Turkey.

Premier and Army Chiefs Meet.

"We shall use our efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement," said Premier Michalakopoulous, "but we have our sacred duties to uphold. Our National Honor has been impugned and it must be defended at all costs."

The Premier consulted with army chiefs on the relative strength of the Greek army. General Mazarakis reported, it was understood, that the army was prepared to defend the Nation's Honor.

LONDON, Feb. 3—Five persons, communists and police were killed, four were wounded and many Communists were arrested today at Tricala, a Greek town in Thessaly, when Communists staged a demonstration in opposition to Greece going to war, according to a dispatch to the Central News.

The Communists went to police headquarters, the postoffice and other public buildings and broke windows. The police fired on the Communists, using blank cartridges. The Communists returned the fire, using loaded cartridges. The police then resorted to real cartridges.

Police Continue Probe of Robbery At Stein's Store

Police today continued their investigation into the looting of the Stein dry goods store Saturday night, after releasing two suspects last evening.

Chief Hugh McDermott declared that the wrecking bar, which was used by the thieves in opening the skylight window, had been found in possession of John Griffith of Norton street, who discovered the robbery Sunday morning when he went to the roof of the Stein store to clean off the snow. Griffith asserts that the bar was stolen from him Saturday evening and returned Sunday morning.

It developed late yesterday that an unsuccessful attempt was made to loot the Famous store, adjoining the Stein store, Saturday night. Foot prints were found in the snow back of the Famous store.

C. of C. Directorate Will Reorganize Thursday Evening

Reorganization meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the chamber's headquarters in the Little building, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

Seven new members of the board, elected for terms of three years, will be installed. They include D. M. Ogilvie, Fred B. Lawrence, C. W. Hellyer, C. C. Ashbaugh, John B. McDonald, J. W. Moore and Malcolm Thompson.

President, vice presidents, secretary and other officers will be elected.

House, on Dignity, Refuses to Act on Postal Pay Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The house on its dignity today and refused to have anything to do with the senate's postal pay bill. House leaders continued plans to rebuke the senate for invading the house's constitutional right of originating revenue legislation.

A compromise bill will be brought out before Friday, but there had been no determination today as to what form it will take. House leaders said they would make their bill produce the entire $68,000,000 revenue needed to grant the postal workers a raise. The senate bill raises but $40,000,000.

GASOLINE TAX BILL ASSAILED

O. L. Haymond, Akron, Speaks at Rotary Meeting.

The proposed Brown gasoline tax bill, now pending before the state legislature, was termed "the greatest injustice ever attempted on the citizens of Ohio" by O. L. Haymond, manager of the Akron Automobile club, in an address before approximately 50 members of the Rotary club and their guests at the weekly meeting in the Y. M. C. A. dining hall today.

"At the present time, the automobile owner pays a tax on the horsepower of his machine," said Haymond. "If you own a truck you pay an additional tax on the capacity and weight of your machine. Now you are asked to pay a tax of two cents on every gallon of gasoline which you consume.

"The Ohio State Automobile club, with which the Columbiana County Motor club is affiliated, has urged that the license fee be brought down to a minimum—a flat rate, say of $3—and then levy a gas tax of two cents. By this manner, the automobile owner who gets the most use of the streets will pay the bulk of the bill. You pay an excise tax of five per cent on your machine at the time

SLEEPING MORE THAN 90 MINUTES A DAY IS CRIMINAL WASTE OF TIME, SAYS MARSHALL COLLEGE STUDENT

Princeton, W. Va., Lad in Excellent Physical Condition and Carries Extraordinary Amount of Class Work.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 3.—"If you're sleeping more than an hour and a half each day, your ruining yourself physically."

This startling statement came today from Anderson Fry of Princeton, W. Va., a freshman student at Marshall college here, who has slept only ten hours a week for the past five years.

Sleeping more than 90 minutes a day he declares is a criminal waste of time.

"Some folks say I'm crazy," he said smilingly, but they don't call a person crazy if he cuts down on his eating, and I think it's just as bad to oversleep as to overeat."

Radical Ideas Worry Parents.

Fry's radical ideas regarding sleeping have caused his parents much worry, according to his own statement, they may just as well give up their efforts to make him sleep more than he does.

"I don't intend to spend a third of my life asleep," he said doggedly, "and if I've gotten away with it for five years I can keep it up from now on."

Fry apparently is in excellent physical condition. Recently, after sleeping only 30 minutes during the night, he swam the 50-foot pool in the college gymnasium in 9.6 seconds.

Although 16 hours' class work a week comprises the average student's program, Fry is taking 20 hours' work after permission to carry such a large amount was granted him by the state.

Course of Study Difficult.

His course of study is considered one of the most difficult available, the subjects including English, political science, economics, English history, journalism and physical education. In the freshman mental tests he earned excellent ratings and was credited with eight points above the average.

CUT THRU ROCK TO SAVE MAN

Freedom for Boulder-imprisoned Victim is in Sight.

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 3.—Life and freedom, despaired of as hours dragged into days, again was in sight today for Floyd Collins, imprisoned in sand cave, beneath a seventon boulder, as a mine rescue crew was marshaled to cut a new passage to the prisoner along lines laid out by expert railroad engineers sent to the scene by the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Such a method, it was virtually admitted today, holds the only hope of rescue. Use of the automatic drill was abandoned when it was found the passage to the point where Collins lies half submerged in icy waters from melting snows, was too narrow to make it effective. Scores of volunteers still continue to peck away at the imprisoning rocks with hand drills, but today, 80 hours after Collins was caught beneath the boulder, loosened in a minature landslide, it was admitted these efforts have been all futile.

The engineers, after surveying the cave, however, expressed a belief that a new tunnel to the imprisoned man could be cut in time to save his life, and it is on this which today's rescue efforts probably will be centered.

Collins today lay five inches nearer the cave's mouth, at a spot to which he was pulled after his brother, Homer, had crawled to him and placed a harness about his body. Drain pipes have been laid in an effort to carry off the water which is rapidly rising in the cave and an army telephone line has been set up by means of which the imprisoned man talks with his rescuers.

The pain of his position and the low temperatures prevailing in the cave have seriously weakened Collins, however, and physicians expressed an opinion that another 24 hours may prove fatal.

The entire engineering resources of the state of Kentucky have been placed at the disposal of rescuers by the governor.

companied him, that there was a roaring in his ears—a sensation which he had never before experienced. Another girl, who was almost stone deaf before the service, said she could hear better afterwards.

Many Seek Assistance

Persons afflicted with rheumatism, blindness, crippleness and deformities, were among those attending the service, testified that they had been assisted through divine powers.

Because of the numerous requests which are being received for assistance., Formby, beginning Wednesday, will hold afternoon and evening services in the Nazarene church headquarters. Many persons, suffering from complaints which make it impossible to leave the house at night, requested afternoon services.

Formby, who came here less than two weeks ago on business in connection with a tile and art manufacturing plant which he has erected at Grand Crossing, is being deluged with appeals for assistance. He has been making many outside calls, but in view of the demand for his services he is unable to answer all calls promptly. Cards have been placed at the Thompson House, which persons unable to attend the meetings are requested to fill out.

of its purchase, in addition to all the rest of these taxes.

"The organized motorists of Ohio are prepared to carry this fight against an unjust gasoline tax for two years if necessary to defeat it. The state automobile club has a membership of 160,000 who will lend their influence to oppose any movement to place more taxes on the motorist, who already is over taxed.

Rev. George M. Formby, faith healer, of Grand Crossing, Fla.; also attended the luncheon and addressed Rotarians regarding his work among the blind, crippled, deaf and others suffering from various forms of illness.

President C. R. Boyce presided. Frank Wehner, automobile dealer, was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

President Boyce announced the appointment of Edwin McClure and Dr. Joseph Cartwright as members of the table committee for the next month.

DOGS AND PLANE RACE WITH DEATH OVER ICY WASTES

Twenty Siberian huskies, the finest team of dogs in all Alaska, arrived in plague-stricken Nome yesterday with diphtheria serum carried 1,000 miles over Alaskan snows. Meanwhile preparations are being made to link Nome with the outside world with an airplane service, in order to give the best medical aid to the one fourth of the 700 residents who are suffering from diphtheria. 1,064 Persons Attend Y. M. Gym Classes During January

Sixty-one gymnasium classes, which met in the Y. M. C. A. during January, attracted 1,064 persons, according to a report today of Physical Director T. F. Sheffer. The swimming pool and shower baths were visited by 1,858 persons.

Besides the regular class sessions, 35 basketball games were played on the gym floor with 510 participants. These games include those scheduled in the Industrial and Sunday School leagues.

The regular class schedule will be followed during February. An added feature will be the opening of a four-team indoor baseball league for men employed in industrial works. Tournaments for members of the boys' division will end February 17.

Each class session consists of calisthenics, accompanied by piano music, general work using the appartus and mass games of all sorts. Volleyball, baseball and basketball are the most popular games. While the class attendance is large, there is still room for new members in all regular groups.

drove the dog team in the final dash here, said that he made every effort to prevent freezing of the anti-toxin, he, as well as the other drivers, wrapping it on the dash over the frozen trails in a sleeping bag, government mail bag and two heavy robes, but the temperatures running as low as 45 and 50 degrees below zero prevailed on portions of the trip he said.

But despite reports that the new serum may prove useless and that the epidemic was bringing new cases, Nome faced its plague with a strong heart and for a time forced its sufferers to pay tribute to the men who made the fight against death.

Kassen and his 13 black Siberian dogs, were the heroes of the camp.

Veteran Mail Carrier Praised.

Kassen was forced to tell again and again his story of the race and revealed that the outstanding driver of the battle against the elements was John Sommers, veteran mail carrier.

Sommers, said Kassen, left Kaltag on his leg of the dash at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and reached Unalakleet at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after driving all through the night.

His lap of the course was through heavy timberland over deep and drifted snow, huge avalanches of snow blocking the trail. It was the most difficult leg of the race, yet despite the great difficulties he encountered, Sommers pushed on and on and finally triumphed.

By GUNNAR KASSEN.

(The story of the driver of the dog teams in the final lap of the race for humanity's sake from Nena to diphtheria-stricken Nome as told to the International News Service).

Copyright, 1925, I. N. S.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3. — My big black dog Balto must get all the credit as far as my part of the journey goes.

In the long trek across the snow-covered and blizzardy trail it was Balto's eyes that saw when human eyes had failed.

Balto is the leader of my 13 black Siberian Malamutes and I do not think any other leader in Alaska could have brought me in safely.

It was my dog's intelligence and bravery that won in the face of the greatest odds.

I wish I could tell you the story of the whole race, but I am so sleepy.

Seppella and Olson Aid

Leonard Seppella finished his run 120 miles from Nome, making a 40-mile mush near Bonanza to deliver the packet of serum to Olson, of Bluff, at Golovin. Olson gave the package to me at Bluff and my leg of the race was on.

I left Bluff at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

It was a storm all right.

It took four hours and 20 minutes for the first 20 miles. I had to travel in a fierce storm, a regular blizzard. There was eight feet of snow on the ground at one point. Then how dark. I passed Solomon's roadhouse at Safety without seeing it. I could not see the trail or the trail marks. Just Balto was there going up and down, up and down.

Tribute to Other Drivers.

I was supposed to meet Ed. Rohn another relay man there, but it was so dark I missed him and so decided to continue on to Nome. I thought it best—better than cause delay.

Now the blizzard was abaiting somewhat but still I could not see.

I decided to trust to fate and Balto. I was sure he would come through. He did. But my dogs were just in the last act. To the other drivers and dogs most credit is due. They had the harder much more difficulties.

And from them I know I can say as for myself—we were glad to serve.

GIRL, 7, ADMITS KILLING THREE

Los Angeles Child Says She Attempted to Poison Eight Others.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Police today were investigating one of the strangest cases ever brought before the police of California—that of Alsa Thompson, aged 7, who has confessed, the officers say, that she caused the death of her twin sisters and a woman by poison and attempted to poison eight other persons.

The girl was taken into custody upon request of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Platts, with whom the child boarded, after a strange solution from radio batteries and antepaste was spread over the food, the Platts, with their infant daughter, as well as Maxine Thompson, the girl's two-year-old sister, were about to eat.

According to police, the girl frankly admitted the poison attempt and that she had caused the death of her twin sisters by ground glass two years ago, while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, were residing in Dauphin, Manitoba. She further asserted, the police claim, that she caused the death of a Mrs. Price, with whom she once lived, by administering rat poison to her.

"I guess I was just mean and liked to see them suffer," the girl is said to have declared in admitting the poisonings. In speaking of the death of one of her little sisters, she showed only slight trace of emotion, saying "She was so pretty—I was sorry I had given her anything."

Sleeping More

In addition to keeping up with his gruelling study grind, Fry finds time to earn his upkeep by waiting on the table in the girls' dormitory. Then, in between minutes, he is circulation manager of The "Parthenon," the college paper, writes several columns of feature copy a day, is cheer leader for the college teams and is an active member of the Campus Y. M. C. A.

"Next summer," he said, "I'm going to get a 16-hour-a-day job so that I'll have plenty of money when I return to college in the fall."

Two Persons Hurt As Result of Falls On Icy Sidewalks

Icy streets and sidewalks which developed following the rain Monday morning was responsible for two accidents here yesterday.

Bert Sayre, 40, Railroad street, head warehouseman at the T. A. McNicol pottery, suffered a broken nose and numerous body bruises, when he slipped from an overhead trestle, spanning the railroad tracks near the pottery and fell about 15 feet to the ground. He was removed to the City hospital in an ambulance. His injuries were dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Mrs. K. R. Seckman, Ceramic street, Pleasant Heights, sustained a fracture of the left wrist when she fell near her home about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fracture was reduced by Dr. H. A. Turk. An x-ray examination of the injury was to be made by Dr. Turk.

Man Who Wounded Two is Fined and Given Jail Sentence

Gibardo Robert, Second street, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to serve 45 days in jail, when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery before Judge James G. Moore in common pleas court, Lisbon, today. He also agreed to pay the hospital bills of his two victims.

Robert is alleged to have shot and wounded two fellow countrymen during a street brawl on West Second street a few months ago. He pleaded not guilty following his indictment.

The defendant was represented by Attorneys William Moore of Lisbon and James O'Grady of Wellsville.

FIRE DAMAGES EAST END HOME

Walls of the kitchen and the attic of the home occupied by Miss Bell Judy, Holliday street, were scorched by fire which is believed to have started from a hot plate, about 12:25 o'clock this afternoon.

Two lines of chemical hose were used in combating the blaze, the alarm being answered by the No. 1 and No. 2 departments. The loss is said to have been covered by insurance.

Laborer's Finger Amputated.

Bomb Kills One, Injures 13.

CUETA, Morocco, Feb. 3—One person was killed and 13 were seriously injured today by the explosion of an aerial bomb in the customs office. The bomb was dropped accidentally by a Spanish airplane on a bombardment flight against the Moroccan tribes.

NATIONAL VIGILANCE COMMITTEE'S TWO WARNINGS TO INVESTORS

The National Vigilance committee, in a circular bulletin to the Chamber of Commerce, warns prospective investors against dealings with a Kentucky corporation, traveling under the name of The Kentucky Reel Town Show Corporation, a Lexington motion picture concern.

The company is now offering 1,500 shares of stock for sale at $100 per share. According to the Vigilance committee, "the proposition is not firmly enough established nor has it sufficient tangible assets to warrant calling this offering of debenture bonds an "investment."

Another bulletin tells of operations of James W. DeCamp, who is now president of the DeCamp Consolidated Glass Casket company of Muskogee, Oklahoma. DeCamp recently was sentenced to an 18-month term in the penitientiary on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. It is alleged that investors in the concern lost approximately $165,000.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A strong forward movement in prices of railroad stocks was the feature of early trading today. Oils were not ready to relinquish their position of leadership and sales in this department of the market were still in large volume, with a number of well known shares establishing higher price records.

Because of their comparative inactive and backwardness, the developments in the transportation industry, which came today in the report of the American Railroad association, showing a total of 924,254 cars loaded last week, an unprecendented volume of domestic trade for this time of year. A number of the divided rails like San Francisco common and Northern Pacific common have been "behind the market" in comparison with other five per cent rails, like Baltimore and Ohio speculative attention has been focused on them this wek.

Frisco common moved up two points to a new high at 66¼; Missouri Pacific common and preferred: Missouri Kansas and Texas common and preferred: Southern railway. Great Northern pfd., and St. Paul stocks were the most active in a good buying movement in the rails.

Next to show the effects of concentrated buying were the steel stocks. With Gulf States two points higher, as the leader, the independent steel stocks pushed forward to higher price levels. Crucible was also up two points in spirited buying, Republic gained two at 60¼; Bethlehem and Replogle were fractionally higher.

Studebaker, White, Maxwell, Mack trucks and other of the motor shares commanded the best market in a week or more. Studebaker gained more than a point at 45½; Mack trucks was up one at 138 and General Motors, Maxwell and Willys Overland fractionally higher.

Sinclair company, Magnolia corporation and Standard Oil of Louisiana announced advances of one and two cents a gallon in gasoline prices, but profit taking was under way in some of the oil stocks in the second hour and prices declined from a fraction to a full point, Sinclair losing 1⅞ at 22⅞.

Grain markets were slightly irregular in the early trading. Cotton prices displayed an upward trend. Call money renewed at 3½ percent, unchanged.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Grains opened lower here today.

Wheat off 2⅜ to 3¼.
Corn ⅜ to ¼ cent lower.
Oats declined ¼ to ⅜ cent.

Grandmother's Cough Remedy—Pine Tar and Honey—Still Best

A well-known specialist said recently that although many wonderful medical discoveries have been made in recent years, nobody has found a better and quicker healing agent for coughs, chest colds, spasmodic croup, hoarseness, throat tickling and other throat and bronchial troubles than good old pine-tar and honey. Our grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house, and they raised large families. It still remains one of the few medicines that can be given to young and old alike, as it contains no harmful drugs.

The pine-tar quickly soothes and heals soreness and irritation, and by loosening the phlegm removes the actual cause of the coughing. The honey is not only pleasant to the taste but also very soothing to the throat.

The kind that has been used with never-failing success in thousands of families for years is that known as Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. If you want the best, be sure to get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 30c at any good druggists.

MAY INCREASE LIQUOR FINES

Ordinance Boosting Maximum Payment is Suggested.

A number of new ordinances will probably occupy the attention of city councilmen at their first meeting of the month tonight including a provision to distribute a major percentage of all fines to the service fund, and a proposal to raise the maximum amount of liquor law assessments.

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld recently suggested to solons that two-thirds of the city's collections on fines be placed to the credit of the safety fund in order that money can be made available for paying off a portion of the municipal indebtedness, including a large electric light bill. The remaining portion of the fines would be placed in the safety fund.

Auditor Eckfeld this week will endeavor to make a substantial payment on the bill of the Ohio Power Co.

It was pointed out to council recently by City Solicitor George Ingram that it is possible to increase liquor revenuse by raising the maximum now provided by the ordinance.

Under present city regulations, the mayor can collect only $500 for the city on any one liquor law fine. Any amount above that assessed on the same charge goes to the state. According to Solicitor Ingram, solons can boost the maximum to $1,000, which, he pointed out, would greatly increase municipal income over the present rate of collection.

The ordinance committee of council met last night. It is likely that several ordinances, in addition to these two, will be presented.

CHESTER, SALEM ON HIGH'S CARD

Chester and Salem high school basketball teams will provide opposition for Coach Carl Zimmerman's court performers during the coming weekend.

The Orange and Black quintet will clash with the Salem aggregation on Friday night at Salem. The West Virginians will meet the locals in a return engagement here on Saturday night.

Friday's clash with Salem will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. The Quakers are carded for a return battle here on February 27.

Salem defeated Lisbon and then lost to Columbiana, which, in turn, was defeated by East Liverpool. The Quakers then turned around and beat the Ceramic City quint and mixed things up pretty well in the county basketball race. As a result Zimmerman's squad can expect a hard battle Friday.

The locals won from Chester in their opener this season at Chester. But the margin of victory was small and the Chesterites have improved. So there'll be no let-up in the Saturday clash.

LISBON JUSTICE FRIEND IN NEED

Realizing, apparently, that the price of bread had gone up, and that other prices in general had declined to drop, a lenient justice of the peace in Lisbon yesterday helped out a Wellsville couple who wanted to be married but were temporarilly financially embarrassed.

The license cost Augustine Wilson and Richard A. Davis, $2.00.

"But how much do they charge you to get married?" queried the copule.

"All depends", they were informed. "Sometimes preachers don't receive anything, and as low as 50 cents, but the justice of the peace must get $3, according to law."

But, it seems, the law in the case had a kind heart, and Augustine and Richard were wedded by a justice of the peace. The couple assured him he'd get his pay sometime.

"Go home and be happy', he told them.

50,000,000 For Australia.

Sir H. Rider Haggard at a recent Authors' club dinner in London predicted that Australia could adequately take care of 50,000,000 white persons. He made his statement in connection with his plea that a concerted movement be put under way to redistribute the population of the British Empire for the safety of the Empire itself, and for safeguarding the dominions.

Q. Is there a city by the name of Brass?—B. F. G.

A. Brass is the name of a town in British Nigeria, West Africa.

Q. What is trench mouth?—A. H.

A. Thrush of Trench Mouth is one form of parasitic stomatis due to a vegetable parasite, and consists of white flake-like patches of the mucous membrane of the mouth and tongue. The disorder is found generally in childhood, particularly in bottle fed infants, although it was quite prevalent in the trenches during the World War. The transmission of thrush spores is usually by means of feeding utensils, spoons, cups, etc. This accounts for the epidemic occasionally observed.

Q. How much does the average person spend to have his old clothes cleaned and dyed?—J. R. P.

A. The Cleaning and Dyeing World says that the cleaning and dyeing business of the average person amounts to $7.50 a year.

Q. While in Paris we were served perfumed butter. How is it made?—K. C.

A. The perfumed butter used in Paris is made by taking parts of "fresh" or unsalted butter and placing them on a layer of some variety of flowers, according to the perfume desired, a piece of muslin being laid between the butter and blossoms. Another layer of flowers is placed above the butter and then ice is added.

Q. Is salmon, which has been frozen in a tin container, poisonous?—H. L.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries says that if the can of salmon to which you refer was properly sealed and the salmon properly cured, the frozen condition would not cause poison.

Q. Is there something that will make a better relief map than flour, water, and salt?—W. M.

A. The United States Geological Survey says that plastic clay which is used for molding in schools is the best to use in making a relief map. A little plaster of paris can be mixed with the clay to give it stiffness. Varnish can then be used over the relief map when it is completed.

Q. How many people were there in the colonies at the time of the Revolutionary War?—M. M. H.

A. In 1775 the estimated population of the thirteen colonies was 2,600,000. The population of the principal colonies was Massachusetts, 335,000; Pennsylvania, 300,000; New York, 190,000; North Carolina, over 265,000; Virginia, 450,000.

Q. What is the capital of Lithuania?—K. H. B.

A. Kovno has been selected as the capital, temporarily.

Q. Who invented the steam shovel? P. P.

A. The steam shovel was invented in 1840 by an American named Ohis.

Q. How many continents are there? L. B.

A. According to modern geographers there are six continents. Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, South America and Australia. Some authorities add the Antarctic Continent, although this territory has not been sufficiently explored to determine its extent.

Q. What was used for mosquitoes when the Panama Canal was built?—H. W. S.

A. The Public Health Service says that kerosene is usually the repellant used by Government officials and employes in tropical and semi-tropical zones against mosquitoes. A small portion of oil is dropped on the exposed part of the body. Oil of citronella, pennyroyal and lavendar have also been found effective in some cases.

Q. I hear that in Copenhagen, one of the theaters has an unusual curtain. Can you tell me about it? W. T. T.

A. You evidently refer to the beautiful theater, the curtain of which is in the form of a mammoth peacock. When the curtain is to be "raised," the peacock furls its tail, when the curtain is to be "lowered" the tail of the peacock is flung out across the width of the stage.

Q. It is said that Captain E. O. Hopkins signed the largest check ever paid by the government. How much was it and what was it for? J. H. F.

A. The War Department says that this check was for $40,000,000 and was paid to the Shipping Board, September 29, 1890. However this is not the largest check within their knowledge. A check for $100,000,000, signed by Major H. S. Hosteter and paid to the Director General of Railroads, March 22, 1919, has first place.

Q. Who is the foremost authority on radio? A. B.

A. The Department of Commerce says there are a great many people considered experts in radio. Some specialize in one phase of radio, and others in another phase. The following is a partial list of experts: Marconi, invention and development; Dr. Goldsmith, radio telephone; C. Francis Jenkins, Kolster radio compass for ship navigation; Stone, federal arc; Major Armstrong, regenerative receiving sets; Dr. Alexander, high frequency alternator.

Q. Are there more blind people or more deaf mutes in the United States? C. L. T.

A. The number of deaf mutes in the United States in 1920 was 44,885. The number of blind persons was 52,567.

Q. In the channel off Cape Florida how wide is the Gulf Stream? F. Z.

A. In the narrowest part of the channel the Gulf Stream approaches the coast to within 15 miles and occupies the entire width (40 miles) of the channel. The breadth of the Gulf Stream at its narrowest point is about 50 miles. It is 150 miles wide when it passes between the Bermudas and the coast of Carolina.

Q. What are the names of Hoot Gibson's and Jack Hoxie's horses? M. P.

A. Gibson's favorite horse, a claybank sorrel, is named "Pal," while Hoxie's white horse is called "Scout."

Q. What is the present status of Ruthenia? J. L.

A. Ruthenia is a part of Czechoslovakia. Of the 13,611,349 inhabitants of Czechoslovakia, only 604,670 are Ruthenians. Although the union of Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia, Slovakia and Ruthenia took place October 28, 1918, it was not until March, 1924, that a general election was held in Ruthenia to select representatives to the National Assembly.

Q. Who was it who lost the manuscript of Volume 1 of Carlyle's "French Revolution?" D. M.

A. John Stuart Mill had this misfortune. A year's exhausting labor was the cost of the loss entailed to Carlyle.

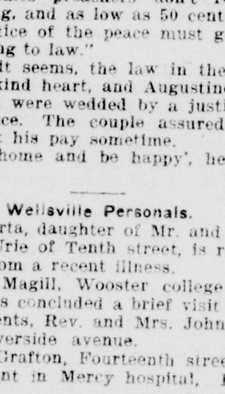
She Called it "Heavenly" Relief When 30-Year Corn Was Removed in Two Days for 25c

Read the Grateful Lady's Letter, and Try This



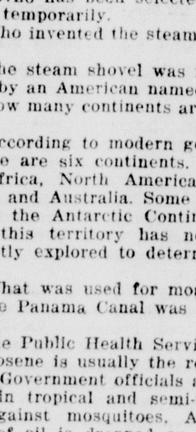
FRIDAY

Thought She Would Collapse

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: It would be a very great injustice on my part if I should neglect writing to you about the "Heavenly" Relief (I couldn't term it better) I have experienced after using your "Blue-Jay" Corn Plasters. For thirty years I have suffered from one corn the most excruciating pain and just a week ago I thought I should simply collapse. I tried these and positively words fail to adequately express the relief I have discovered. I can assure you no friend nor acquaintance of mine will be deprived of the knowledge of this if I can help it.

Mrs. W. J. Davies
954 Lafayette Ave.



SUNDAY

30-Year Corn Gone Completely

If others will profit by Mrs. Davies' experience, this kind letter will save much needless suffering from corns. "Blue-jay" Plasters remove millions of stubborn corns. We make a liquid "Blue-jay" too. But for INSTANT RELIEF, we recommend the Plasters, because the soft felt ring that encircles the corn, at once removes the painful shoe pressure. A liquid cannot remove shoe pressure. And it's hard for you to regulate the dose; or to keep a liquid exactly on the corn.

In the shapely "Blue-jay" Plasters, the famous chemist who discovered "Blue-jay" regulates the dose. It is centered in the soft ring. Not too much—not too little—just the prescribed amount to remove the corn gently. 48 hours later, the corn lifts right out. Only very stubborn corns require a second plaster.

Why risk blood poisoning by paring corns yourself? Get six safe, sure "Blue-jay" Plasters for 25c. So much in demand all druggists sell them. Then write us your experience, please. "Blue-jay" Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

The Postmen's Raise

All taxes are unpleasant, but there is less objection than usual to the taxes proposed in the senate's bill for increasing postal salaries $300 a year. They are levied in the form of increased rates on certain kinds of mail matter, and are less open to criticism than previous rates designed for the purpose.

Souvenir postcards, it is generally agreed, can stand the extra cent as well as anything could, inasmuch as they are usually unnecessary and are purchased and mailed by tourists who like to spend their money in that way. There is a fitness, too, in collecting money for postmen from a class of mail which makes the postmen so much trouble.

Private mailing cards also will cost two cents instead of one, under this measure.

The cent-a-pound service charge on parcels will not be burdensome.

There are some minor changes proposed in second class matter, lowering the rate a fraction of a cent per pound on periodical reading matter and raising it a trifle on advertising matter.

The prospect of the postal carriers and clerks for a reasonable raise at last is good, and the public realizes that this increase could not go to any more deserving class of government employes.

World Radio

Radio programs broadcast on a low wavelength, or high-frequency current, at Pittsburgh have been heard "completely" in Australia, as testified by thousands of listeners. The antipodeans were able not merely to distinguish and locate the sending station but to understand the speeches and enjoy the music.

Here is remarkable radio progress. Australia is almost opposite Pennsylvania. The distance covered, measured in a bee-line around the earth, is 9,000 or 10,000 miles one way and 14,000 or 15,000 the other way. The radio waves are regarded as having followed the surface by the shortest route. Yet they might have gone in both directions, or in all directions from the broadcasting point, like meridians for the north pole. So rapid is the speed of radio that, in spite of the several thousand miles' difference in routes, it would reach the distant listeners at practically the same time. The waves might have gone by a still shorter route, straight down through the earth, a little less than 8,000 miles, but that is not considered likely.

Curiously enough, Sydney, Australia, heard better than Cleveland, only 150 miles from Pittsburgh, because the region immediately northwest of Pittsburgh is affected by "fading." Long-range work may yet result in explaining that phenomenon, along with other mysteries.

World broadcasting may now be regarded as definitely begun. Though imperfect and irregular in these pioneer experiments, it may arrive soon at a degree of effectiveness enabling a powerful station to speak at once to all civilized nations. Gabriel's Trumpet becomes available for daily human use.

Airplanes and Ruins

Finding new uses for airplanes is one of the greatest outdoor sports. Their latest use is in the new and fascinating sport of archeology—the quest of "old stuff." A scientific expedition now fitting out in London will fly around over Egypt, Arabia and Mesopotamia next summer looking for buried cities.

Many a lost city lies under desert sands. The vestiges of such cities can be seen, the explorers say, more easily from the air than on the ground itself, and the fliers can cover a far greater territory, with greater ease, than if they were crawling over the surface in the usual way of locomotion in waste places.

It seems possible that this method will be applied later to a search for old cities under the sea. Aviators testify that they can see to a far greater depth under water, from a height, than they can from the surface. If there are really submerged continents in the Atlantic and Pacific, containing the drowned cities of old civilizations, the flying archeologists may reveal them.

"Germany is an expensive country," says a correspondent. The rest of the world has found it so.

SEEK THE COPYRIGHT LAW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A new copyright law may be one of the first legislative accomplishments of the new congress. It will be if one of the most powerful and picturesque lobbies ever to appear in Washington has any influence with the national solons.

This law is expected to make it possible for the United States to become a member of the International Copyright union from which we have been barred for something like half a century. It is also expected to prove an effective demonstration of what congress can do in the exercise of its constitutional authority to promote the progress of science and useful arts.

The colorful lobby which is seeking the proposed legislation is composed of the leading novelists, short story writers, scenario writers, poets, dramatists, artists, cartoonists, song writers, librettists and composers of America. Wrapped up in one package these personages are identified as members of the Authors' league, but as identified by their professions they are grouped in four guilds—authors, dramatists, artists and composers.

Less Picturesque, perhaps, but none the less insistent upon the importance and needs of the proposed new copyright legislation are the organizations representative of the publishing interests and of the librarians of the country.

Arrayed in opposition, or at least demanding changes in the measure under consideration, are the association of motion picture producers and the unions of printers, bookbinders and allied crafts.

As the members of the house committee on patents put it when they held their public hearing on the bill, it was "big league stuff." The large caucus room in the house office building was filled with one of the most interesting assemblages ever brought together in Washington—men and women famous in the world of literature, art, music and drama—and the congressmen fairly reveled in the intimate contact with the personages who theretofore had been little more to them than names on books, in magazines, on theater programs, on musical records and the like. Obviously they were quite as thrilled as they had ever been by the brain children of those personages.

In fact, they "ate it up," which is art's retort to the "big league stuff" comment of the committeemen.

NOTABLES WHO PERFORMED

Not all the notables present addressed the committee. If they had the hearing would have been as long as a Democratic national convention, and quite as engrossing if not as tumultuous. But those who did speak were all headliners. Gene Buck, the librettist, who has made many of the Ziegfeld shows, was master of ceremonies for the proponents of the measure and himself contributed a snappy half-hour to the performance.

For the publishers are spokesman was Major Putnam, head of the oldest publishing house in the country, who told the committee he had been appearing at congressional hearings on the copyright question for more than 40 years, his experience antedating the birth of several of the congressmen. When he was asked by one of the youthful members if he would be present at later hearings to answer questions that might be asked of him he said that he hoped to be.

"But," he added, "when a man reaches the age of 81 he hesitates about making definite commitments for a indefinite future."

Another veteran was Robert Underwood Johnson, one of America's great poets, former ambassador to Italy, and present editor of the Century. Dr. Johnson's copyright activities also date back to the law of 1891 and the amendment of 1909. Augustus Thomas, dramatist, spoke for his profession, and no one was listened to more attentively. Ellis Barker Lutler, author of the famous "Pigs is Pigs" story, convulsed the crowd with a recital of some of his experiences with an adequate copyright law, one being his selling of the motion picture rights of the "Pigs" story for $25, only to learn they were valued at $10,000 a few years later by the purchasing company. That in itself was not funny, he said, but he made the telling of it decidedly humorous.

In truth, the affair was largely an experience meeting, the needs of a new law being argued by stories of the innumerable ways writers and composers have been deprived of a fair share in the returns from their creative efforts because the old laws did not give them adequate protection in their rights. John Philip Sousa, "the march king," realized the munificent sum of $35 for "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Charles K. Harris, composer of ballads famous a generation ago—"After the Ball," "Always in the Way," "Hello Central," and the like—was once shown the picture of a shipment of 500,000 phonograph records of his songs, and all he got out of it was the satisfaction of seeing the picture—not a penny of revenue from the records.

BROKE BUT HAPPY

Harry Von Tilzer, who has written more than a hundred song hits, told how in spite of the success of his songs he was in financial straits, not even owning his own home.

"Mine has a mortgage on it," interjected a member of the committee.

"Mine has two, first and second," retored Von Tilzer, "and I owe two months office rent. I'm broke, but happy."

Will Irwin, noted war correspondent, novelist and short story writer, detailed experiences he and his wife, Inez Haynes Irwin, had had in being deprived of the sale of valuable rights in their productions solely because under the existing law they could not establish their title to those rights, and, of course, the hearing was not concluded without reference to the amazing case of the Rev. Edward M. Sheldon, who realized virtually nothing from his book, "In His Steps," which sold by the millions of copies, merely because through a misunderstanding of the law he deposited one copy, instead of two, of the original edition in the copyright division of the library of congress.

The authors insist that they want exactly what the constitution of the United States says they may be given, the exclusive right, for a limited time, to their writings. They want to be able to dispose of their rights in toto or in part. They want the United States to become a member of the international Copyright union, instead of maintaining a position of "magnificent isolation" along with Russia and China, so that a copyright in this country will become immediately effective in all other countries. They want the mere creation of a piece of literature, art or music to establish a copyright, instead of being required to comply with a lot of legal formalities, under which they may be deprived of their rights by mere technicalities. In short, they say they want a law in the United States that conforms to the laws of the 34 nations in the international union.

One of their chief obstacles is the opposition of trades unionists. Pressure from the printers and other labor unions forced into the existing law a provision that no foreign book, etc., can be copyrighted in this country until it has been printed here, their leaders insisting that American labor must be protected against cheaper labor abroad, and congress yielding to that demand.

The constitution says congress shall have authority "to promote the progress of science and the useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries."

As Augustus Thomas told the committee, there is nothing in that about partial rights, or about the rights of anybody else save the writers and inventors.

The flapper may, after all, have a heart as warm as the old-fashioned girl had, but we imagine she is a little more chilled in other localities.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains—By Fontaine Fox.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

MANILA, Feb. 3.—Marselo Mejdana, of Candelaria, Tayabas province, was a lover of the ladies. He was especially known as a patron of the dance halls; and so when the young man took the train for Manila, quite a number of fascinating ballerinas accompanied him to the station. Unfortunately for Marcelo, however, when the train started, in an effort to bestow an unusually impressive bow, he leaned far out, and head struck the framework of a steel bridge. Marcelo's body now lies in Candelaria's only funeral parlor.

A bill is to be presented in the next legislature creating a "Greater Manila" via the method of taking in outlying suburbs that now have their own municipal governments. The towns proposed to be annexed are Coloocan, Pasay, Malabon, San Juan del Monte, San Pedro Makati, San Filipe Neri and Navotas. Most of these little places were famous spots during the Philippine revolution, and bloody battles were waged between the American and Filipino forces. Now they are again peaceful little villages, but a "menace" to the morals of Manila—or so say the local municipal authorities. Cockpits, dance halls and dives thrive just the other side of Manila's borderline, though they are forbidden in the metropolis.

The outlying villages, however, are strenuously objecting to annexation, and on practical grounds, too. Practically all the municipal revenues of several of them come from these same cockpits and dance halls, so their taxes are correspondingly low. If the villages are annexed to the big city, up will go their taxes, and away will go their treasured cockits.

There are 3,000,000 children of school age in the Philippines, but only 1,100,000, or about one-third can be accommodated in the schools. The parents of the others, who have votes and pay taxes, are giving their representatives and senators much trouble and worry, for election comes next year, and candidacies in most districts have already been announced.

However, there is not much chance for the 2,000,000 children to be accommodated any time within the next few years; for Vice Governor Gilmore, head of the department of public instruction, estimates that more than twice the present educational appropriation will be necessary in order that universal education may become a fact.

About 38 per cent of the Filipinos are literate, according to the latest official figures. Of these about half have a rudimentary knowledge of English; the rest know one or more of the native dialects. English is rarely used in the provinces, or in home circles, however.

The Philippines are the usurer's paradise. A recent commission, headed by Professor Hester, of the University of the Philippines, found interest rates averaging from 35 to 390 per cent per annum, with an average of about 60 per cent. There is a law prohibiting rates exceeding 12 per cent, but it is not enforced. The report says: "The tenants are aware of the usury laws, but they are too honorable to apply to the courts to set aside verbal agreements which had been sought by them. No law is of practical benefit when it is to the interest of both law-breaking parties to persists in breaking the law, for the simple reason that there are neither complainants nor informers."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—One of my closest friends and confidants is a fine old gentleman who has stood the ravages of 80 winters. Most of his years have been spent in New York. He is as sturdy as an oak and is straight and tall like a sycamore.

He belies the specious reasoning that age brings intolerance. He is the most tolerant of men. His rare criticism is always impersonal and not once have I heard him speak ill of his fellows. He is a man of culture and learning, yet now and then he drops into slang of the day.

This to me is most appealing. He is a patron of the opera, but he also goes to burlesque shows and laughs louder than anyone. The variety of his diversions keeps him young. He smokes four cigars a day with an occasional cigaret between.

One night recently I went to him with an exaggerated trifle that was bothering me. He listened patiently without a word until I had finished. Then he smoked awhile in silence. Finally he said: "You're just a damn fool!" There was no other comment. He dropped it there.

The suddeness of his remark shocked me into sound reasoning, although at first I was a little hurt. He was wise enough to know the one thing not needed was sympathy.

He has a married granddaughter of whom he is particularly fond. Twice a month he takes her out to dinner, to the play and afterward to some supper club. He is a smooth and graceful dancer and never misses a number. I have seen him go into the dullest gatherings and soon infuse it with his contagious wit and jollity.

His attitude is particularly pleasing, for it is the fashion in New York to shunt the aged to the slippers and pipe and the chimney corner. He is one who refuses to be shunted. A doctor once told him that he must be careful about dancing too much. "At 80, if I have to die, there's no way I'd rather die than daning," he replied.

Amid the many high spots of pleasure one sees a well known man about town of ten years ago. A face once handsome is now ghastly twisted. The mouth is a sardonic grin. Four years ago he was in Africa. An abscessed tooth needed extracting and he was forced to visit the medicine man of an African village. The result was blood poisoning and the disfiguration.

There was a fire in a theatrical boarding house in Forty-eighth street. All boarders were sleeping soundly. A Swiss yodeler aroused them with one of his Alpine atrocities and all of them saved their belongings.

In every theatrical boarding house there is the old character actor who has fallen on evil days. He is generally a brave soul and in his dignified aloofness discourages sympathy. His optimism is sublime. Weeks stretch into months without engagements, but he never fails to show up hopefully at the theatrical agencies. Their gentility entitles them to a better fate.

You can't beat New York for genuine gall. In one of the leading theatrical papers is a full page paid advertisement. It carries a picture of a sappy looking young man of about 20. He is in riding togs, wears a checkered vest, a boutonniere and a cigaret hangs loosely from his lips. Underneath the picture is the youth's name and this: "First nighter, boy-about town, friend of the distressed chorus girl and regular feller, who has just increased his private telephone contract to 1,000 messages a month." How proud his parents must feel!

Martin Beck, the vaudeville magnate, has achieved his ambition—a New York theater bearing his name. It is a Byzantine affair and quite the gaudiest in town. Beck began his career as a "super" in Vienna. He suped to conquer, as it were.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

NITROGEN, OR POWER?

At the request of the war department Henry Ford offered to develop the power plant, built by the people at Muscle Shoals to provide nitrogen from the atmosphere for use in war time.

Nitrogen can be made into explosives for war and fertilizer for peace.

Politicians in Washington rejected Ford's offer, although the entire south and all the farmers demanded that the government accept it.

Ford, wearied of Washington's vacillation, withdrew his offer.

And the Muscle Shoals plant as things now stand is scheduled to be put under the control of a great power monopoly.

FORD PUTS IT PLAINLY

Every voter in this country should read, and remember until next election, Henry Ford's statement concerning Muscle Shoals. It was made yesterday in response to a message from W. R. Hearst, urging Ford to re-enter the Muscle Shoals contest, and again try to rescue the people's property from selfish exploiters.

The situation is clear. The president must see it plainly. And, fortunately, private monopolists cannot seize this public property without the president's consent.

Should Muscle Shoals go to the power monopoly that concern will be directly indebted to President Coolidge.

LOOKS LIKE MONOPOLY NOW

These are the points in Henry Ford's statement that interest every American:

"I am willing to co-operate with the government in developing Muscle Shoals into a nitrate plant, making cheap fertilizer for the American farmers.

"In my opinion the Shoels should be used for the production of nitrate and fertilizer.

"I believe that the government could itself keep Muscle Shoals and run it, not as a power plant, but as a nitrate plant, to help the farmers in peace and safeguard the country in war. The people of the United States spent $140,000,000 to create a government nitrate plant, not a power house. We should not lose sight of the original and biggest reason for Muscle Shoals being built.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and operates the nitrate plant by the army and navy, I shall be glad to put at their service all that the Ford company has of knowledge and experience. Our engineers have been working for three years on the problem of making cheap nitrogen from the air for farmers. We believe we have discovered improvements on the present processes. We believe air nitrate can be made at a price that will materially reduce the cost of fertilizer on the farm.

"The Ford company will turn over to the government without cost the results of its research.

"We will lend the men to help build up an efficient organization to run the Shoals. As a citizen's duty we worked with the army and navy during the war. We are ready to give the same co-operation to the government in aid of the farmers now, cost free, to the government.

"Our open letter, made at government request, was based on public service principles with a view to developing, maintaining and turning back to the government a great public utility and defensive asset. This cannot be done under the system of private profit only that now rules business.

"It is a mistake to say that the government cannot run the nitrate plant as well as any private party. This is the very kind of business the government ought to engage in. Electro-chemical methods of air nitrogen fixation do not require great forces of employes. It is a straight job of letting the forces of nature work for you. The government has as good men as there are in this field. We talked with some of them when we were figuring on the Shoals.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and runs it for the farmers I will help so far as technical help goes, just as much as I could have helped if I had taken the property over. "HENRY FORD."

UP TO THE PRESIDENT

Every farmer and every other good citizen in the country should write to President Coolidge, urging him to keep Muscle Shoals out of the hands of monopolistic exploiters.

It is understood that the president does not believe in public ownership, perhaps because his knowledge of politicians convinces him that they can't be trusted with a dollar.

But he surely does not believe in turning over a $140,000,000 public investment to be exploited by private monopolists, whose regards for public exploitation is notorious.

The question is, "Shall Muscle Shoals, which the people own, be developed primarily as a nitrogen producing plant, and secondarily, as a power plant, both in the public interest?"

Or, shall the great enterprise be given to private monopolists to be exploited on the usual basis of "all that the traffic will bear?"

President Coolidge will decide the matter. Congress will not send him a bill, if it is known that he will veto it.

Write the president and tell him what you think. Farmers, especially, should write. The president is always glad to hear from any citizen.

The senate has jeopardized the bill to increase postal salaries. Various influences helped. Bigger government salaries mean bigger taxes. That arouses sympathy in the senate. And the plan was to help pay the extra salaries by charging higher rates to newspapers and magazines. That caused distinguished publishers to become active.

As for the postoffice workers, poorly paid by the world's richest government, they are not important. And, besides they are scattered all over the country, not enough in any one place to exercise real political influence. In Washington they can't even vote.

So, that is settled for the time. But postal employes can talk at least, and their defeat now will mean at the next election some more of the radical votes that give the shivers to high prosperity.

DINNER STORIES

A motorist from London had stopped to replace a tire in a desolate part of the Highlands. A native chanced along and helped.

"I suppose," said the stranger, busy with his wheel, "that even here the bare necessities to live have risen tremendously in price?"

"Aye, ye're richt," replied the native, "and it's no worth drinking when you get it."

A lady remonstrated with her colored maid for openly encouraging the attentions of the janitor next door. "Mary," she said, "don't you know that he is a married man?"

"Yes'm," replied Mary, "I knows it. But'm—he's dissatisfied."

SOCIETY

Miss Mildred Price And Robert McKim Wed in Beaver, Pa.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mildred Price, daughter of Mrs. Ida Price of West Seventh street, to Robert McKim, son of Mrs. Mary McKim of Wellsville. The ceremony was solemnized yesterday in the Presbyterian church in Beaver, Pa., with Rev. Alexander, pastor, officiating.

The bride wore a gown of delft blue panne velvet, with a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was instructor in the Bell telephone office.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Wellsville high school with the class of 1917 and of Culver Military Academy. He is foreman at the Wellsville freight depot. Following an eastern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. McKim will be at home to friends at 1304 Fourth street.

Missionary Society Meeting.

Owing to the appearance of the Jubilee Singers in the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society meeting was postponed until tonight.

The Young Woman's Foreign Missionary society will be received in the home of Miss Baum of Seventh street tonight.

Rub the Chest

For Deep, Heavy Colds

Here is the best way to get rid of a bad cold. First apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, helping the vapors inhaled to relieve tightness and soreness.

Farmers Too Many, He Says.

Guy Huston, an economist, says that one of America's biggest problems could be solved by the abandonment of about a million farms now under cultivation. There are 6,500,000 farms in the United States and Mr. Huston said that a million never were intended for a plough. The trouble is that their owners spend money and energy trying to make them produce when they were never intended to.

If you're room's too dry and you can't regulate the heat with your old, base burner, open the window and the air'll be a little damper.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Members of the General Lyon post, Rev. Davidson and singers of the United Presbyterian church, for their kindness and floral offerings in the recent death of our beloved uncle, Daniel Clark.

American Twang Reproduced.

The nasal twang of the native American which is commented upon by many British visitors to the United States, has been synthetically produced through the medium of an ordinary rubber tube by Sir Richard Paget, a noted English scientist. He made the tube give forth human vowel sounds during a lecture on the voice and by slightly pinching the tubing reproduced the twang of the Yankee.

Build your body back to Health

TANLAC is a great natural builder. It revitalizes the blood, stimulates the digestive organs, rejuvenates the liver and peps you up all over.

From the four corners of the earth we gather the roots, barks and herbs that go into Tanlac. We compound them after the famous Tanlac formula that has brought health to millions.

Our files are crammed with testimonials from men and women in every walk of life, who state gratefully that Tanlac has brought them back to vigorous strength.

If you suffer from indigestion, loss of appetite, can't sleep or rest; if rheumatism is making life a torture; if your liver is out of sorts and your body has run down to skin and bones, get a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's and start taking it right away.

You'll be amazed to note the improvement that comes at once. For the first time in months you'll feel like eating some good solid food. You'll wake up in the morning rested and refreshed, ready for a good day's work. First thing you know you'll have some color in your cheeks and the sparkle of health back in your eyes.

Don't put off taking Tanlac. Begin now if you want to build your body back to health and vigor.

Baptist Minister Praises TANLAC

"I had suffered from stomach trouble and nerve troubles for over 30 years until I could hardly summon the strength necessary to prepare my sermons. Six weeks after taking Tanlac I had a brand new outlook on life. I had a fine appetite, steady nerves and a brand new digestive system. Tanlac has never failed me."

LIVE FACTS ABOUT FARMING

Farmers Can Earn More by Eating Their Own Foods

Dairy Products, Simple, Coarse Foods and Properly Cooked Vegetables of Farm Should Be Eaten Instead of Devitalized, Prepared Products.

By AMOS BRADFORD.

ON many farms the income may be increased by better use of human food. I know full well that most housewives are superior cooks and set tables that are replete in quantity and deliciousness. But in truth both tables and farm stomachs are often overburdened with the tempting viands that have been prepared by hard work and long hours of the women folks of the farm. We are overdoing our eating; some of us eat too much, some not the right kind of food.

Doctor Wiley, who has done so much for pure foods, wrote some years ago that the medicine of the future would be foods, not drugs. The doctor is both a doctor of medicine and a chemist and because of his long years as expert in the United States Department of Agriculture, he speaks with an authority that only experience can give. The recent investigations of the food and biological chemists have shown above all doubt that vitimines and minerals and quality proteins are the most decisive factors of growth and health. We get sick because we don't eat right or commit other errors of living. If we eat the proper foods, in proper amounts and secure the necessary minerals and vitimines we sustain our bodies in vigor, efficiency and health.

One of the errors of eating is in the use of refined flours and breads. Those are, very white in color but they supply starch largely—which makes us fat but robs the blood of the vital ingredients original contained therein. We feed these rejected coarser coats to the pigs and calves and they grow strong in bone and thrifty in flesh. Our boys and girls fed on the de-mineralized and de-vitamined breads have poor teeth, bones denied of calcium, and muscles and organs robbed of the growth-stimulating and disease-resisting factors of the food. Even our cereal breakfoods are robbed of their virtues.

Why Buy Table Foods.

I am confident that a redirection of our eating methods will do more to improve the human efficiency of the farm than will effort extended in any other direction. We can increase our farm income also by using more farm-raised foods and buying fewer of the foods that come from manufacturing plants. Moreover, these farm foods are the best, some of the commercial foods the worst; why, therefore, buy them?

Supose we start with dairy products. Health and growth are based on these fine mineral and vitamine dairy products—strong and rich also in the ingredients so long considered the basis of food elements. The requirement is a quart of milk for every child and a pint for every adult. And butter, not oleo, for spreading on bread; and cheese frequently. Eggs go along with this group and they rank high.

Vegetables in abundance particularly the leafy vegetables—onions, cabbage, kale, turnip, parsnips, and carrots. These vegetables should not be cooked in much water but should be cooked down, not throwing away the water, since the minerals otherwise would be lost. Vegetables should be eaten every day, the more for variety the better. Taken as a group, the root vegetables are equal or superior to whole wheat as a source of minerals.

Value of Leafy Vegetables.

The leafy vegetables also must be used. On the whole, present scientific knowledge rates them as the most essential foods known, with the exception of milk and eggs. The essential qualities of leafy foods are the vitamines, minerals, and cellulose which gives bulk to the food. Spinach contains more phosphories, calcium and iron in proportion to its other food ingredients than any other food. Lettuce ranks as a close second. Tomatoes, though not a leaf, rank high as a salad food and should be used in liberal quantities.

Fruits are essential in the human diet—any and all. They contain vitamines (orange's prevent scurvey) natural sugar, cellulose and organic acids. These organic fruit acids prevent an acid condition of the blood. Fruits are the natural dessert and should replace the cakes and pies to a considerable extent.

A reasonable amount of meat is to be desired, but not meat three meals a day. Potatoes are best baked or boiled in the jackets. This method of cooking saves the minerals, which the human body needs. For bread, whole-wheat bread, not the white bread cleared of all its bran, vitamines and minerals. If we eat along these lines we will be in better health, our food will cost less money, more dollars will remain on the farm and our farm income will benefit by the dollars saved which otherwise would be spent for city made food and on doctor's bills.

Prunes Prosper Best

ALTHOUGH plums of one or more of the various types are grown in almost every nook and corner of the United States in home orchards, the Pacific States of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho produce the greater part of the commercial crop of plums and prunes. Practically two-thirds of all the plum and prune trees are in these States. Of the nearly 20,000,000 bushel produced annually, only about 3,000,000 bushels are produced in States other than the four named.

The Splint and Its Treatment

ANY enlargement of the bone occurring on the inside of the leg between the knee and fetlock of a horse comes under the name of splint. The usual cause is the impact of the foot on the hard road, but it may be the result of a blow, a twisting strain or faulty conformation. If you notice a young horse going lame while doing road work, it is well to examine for splints. While working there seems to be no lameness at all, and when standing there seems to be no pain, but when put to a trot the horse shows lameness and may raise and lower his head.

If taken in time a splint can be cured. The first thing is to give the animal rest and place in quarters where there is a soft floor, preferably the ground, and when so quartered one very frequently effects a complete cure. The application of cold bandages acts well. If such treatment fails, apply a blister of red iodine of mercury, one tablespoonful to two tablespoonfuls of lard. This is rubbed on every day for two to four days. Then wait until the little scabs fall off and if the horse is still lame repeat the blister.

The horse should be tied short in order to prevent rubbing or biting the leg. Four days after the last application of blister, wash carefully with warm water and soap, and over it apply every day or so a little lard to prevent dryness and also to loosen the scabs.

What Every One Should Know

When Buying a Cow

THERE is a lot to be known about a cow and her ways when one sets out to buy. It is just as easy to get roped in buying an unprofitable cow as it is a horse. A good cow should have a long, thin tail, a fairly long neck having no loose skin on the under side, and the udder should be large and with as little flesh on it as possible, and the broader it is from teat to teat, as seen from behind, the better.

Get a cow that is somewhat of a wedge-shape as you view her from the front and side. She should be somewhat narrow through the shoulders, but thick as you look backward through the stomach; and from the side she shows great depth from the back down through the stomach, and this lessens as you look forward. A cow of this type has capacity for food, and thus will yield more milk than another with such capacity not indicated. The beef cow is blocky and square-like—just the opposite of the best type of dairy cow. The beef cow or cow of beefy tendencies is compact, whereas the dairy cow is thin, angular and loose-jointed. If one observes these facts he should make a fairly wise selection in choosing a cow for milk and butter production.

Trap the Nitrogen

ACID PHOSPHATE may be sprinkled on the manure in the gutters of the stable or scattered about in the stalls. If this has not been done, forty pounds of acid phosphate may be added to each load of manure. The fertilizing materials are, in this manner, added to the soil, but before being so used they have entered into combination with the ammonia or nitrogen of the manure and tied it up, so to speak, that it may not escape into the air. Go into a stable and note by smell this daily loss of nitrogen into the atmosphere. Why not use acid phosphate for trapping it?

Amount of Hay in Mow

THE amount of hay in the mow may be determined by multiplying the length by the width in yards and then the product by the height in yards and dividing by fifteen if the hay is well packed. If it is not very high or is loosely packed, divide by eighteen. The result is the number of tons in the mow.

Putting Harness in Condition

WITH the easing up of field work on the farm and much less use of the horses, now is a good time to put the harness in prime condition again.

All harness should be cleaned and oiled at least once a year. And yet how common it is never to give such care to the harness! Leather is a substance that must be well cared for if it is to last.

In washing, use warm water and Castile or other good white toilet soap. A sponge or brush is best for doing the scrubbing. The hardened grease and dirt that have accumulated on portions of the harness should be scraped off, the back of a knife-blade or other metal being used for the purpose. After giving a thorough washing, rinse in warm water and hang up for drying in a warm room. Avoid placing near a stove.

When the harness is nearly, but not completely dry, apply the oil. Either castor oil or neatsfoot oil or the two mixed is the best oiling material. A touch of color is secured by adding a bit of lampblack. Keep in a warm place for 24 hours before using. Of course, before cleaning, the harness is gone over and, if necessary, properly repaired.

Raising Winter Greens for Hens

FARMERS who make it a point to set out an acreage to mangels for Winter feed will do well to reserve a portion of them for poultry flock during the rest of the Winter. Facts show that green food is as important for laying hens as silage is for cows in milk. In the Summer and Fall, when the hens are on range, they secure their own daily supply of "greens," and they forage for bugs and worms. This combination with ordinary farm grains makes an ideal solution of the chicken feed problem.

When the snow and frost come, however, it is a different situation altogether. Even far to the south the grass has lost its freshness or disappeared, and the bugs and worms have sought their Winter quarters. Hence something to take their places is necessary. Meat scraps will do it so far as the animal foods are concerned, but you can't buy green grass in cotton bags. You must grow it or find a substitute.

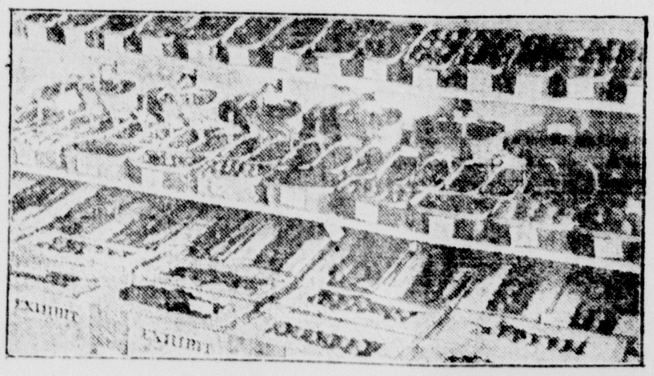
Two green crops stand out ideally for this purpose—mangels and cabbage. When frost comes store the mangels for later use in Winter and Spring. Use the cabbages first. Hens relish both and will consume larger quantities of either in proportion to size and weight than any other farm animal. These green crops will increase egg production and give vigor and thrift to the laying flock. Of course, sprouted oats are excellent, but considerable labor is entailed. Take the precaution now and have feeds for Winter use.

The Wage of Farmers

THE United States Labor Department states that the average full-time pay for all classes of workers in the entire men's clothing industry is now 25.4 per cent of the 1913 wage. Compared with the farm labor income, which is below the 1913 level, this type of city worker has had a tremendous advantage in meeting living costs. Besides, food costs have steadily declined since the war, but the wage of this type of labor has increased 5 per cent since 1922 and 69 per cent since 1919!

The Value of Fruit Exhibits

FRUIT shows are worth while, both to growers and to the consuming public. They show the consumer what good fruit looks like, the kinds of fruit grown in the neighborhood, and through competition growers are inspired to exert their best efforts in growing and exhibiting. Who fails to get a lesson or an inspiration from the splendid fruit pictured in the fruit exhibit below!



Fruit exhibits should always form a part of every agricultural exhibition, regardless of whether it is a fruit section or not. The point is that the world needs more fruit for health and well-being of the people. A few trees or a small orchard may give some trouble and require some care but fruit trees are worth all they cost. We will never have rightly-balanced farms until a small orchard is made as much a part of the farmstead as the outbuildings, the garden, the garage and other permanent improvements of the farm. A fruit exhibit will help drive these facts home. We need more farm orchards to supply the family with fruit, and we need more fruit exhibits.

Grain Farming Exhausts Soil; Livestock Does Not

TYPE of farming greatly influences the productivity of the soil. Exclusive grain farming uses up available fertility and the soil wears out, as the common expression goes. Continued over many years such farming exhausts the land regardless of how rich it originally may have been. On the other hand, when crops are rotated so that the legumes may restore the nitrogen used up, and the minerals sent away in grain are placed, or when a type of farming is followed that permits the feeding of the crops on the farm where produced the soil will hold its own or become even more fertile.

In the sketch are contrasted different farm products in respect to the drain on the land when a ton of each is sold from the farm. Of those products listed here, wheat and corn and timothy are the most exhaustive and butter the least. Compare the upper and lower lines for a clear cut understanding of the difference. Indeed, there is so little fertility removed in a ton of butter as to be almost a negligible quantity. Contrast also the difference in price of a ton of wheat and a ton of butter. This is the reason why dairy farming builds up the land and wheat growing exhausts it. The same situation obtains where exclusive corn or tobacco or cotton is grown. Cotton is no more exhaustive on the land than butter if the seed are returned to the same soil from which they were taken. Unfortunately, this is not the case, the seed are sold as meal, and livestock farms in other parts of the world are built up.

Both milk and pork when sold off the farm carry away only a small amount of fertility. When you take into consideration the value of these finished products of the farm the worth of the plant food in them is very small in comparison with the market value when sold. The sketch tells in a very striking manner the story of why grain farming exhausts the land and why livestock improves it.

Fattening Lambs in Corn Fields

WHILE the weather last fall was better than was expected in letting the corn crop mature, in many sections this was not the case and a very large amount of unmarketable corn has been in evidence. Corn growers, especially in the northern portions of the country, are always confronted with the problem of finding ways and means for best utilizing the crop. If such corn cannot be marketed it can, nevertheless, be used for every feeding purpose on the farms for which corn is ordinarily used.

Many farmers have for years fattened their steers on such corn, and in recent years the practice has grown of fattening sheep and lambs in the cornfield. Farmers doing this pronounce the method both economical and profitable; the best way of harvesting this soft and immature corn. This past season more sheep and lambs have been so fed than in many years. Both sheep and lambs give good gains in weight when given the run of the corn fields. Lambs were turned into the fields while the corn was beyond the milk stage. The lower blades of the corn were still green and these were eaten clean to a height as far as the lambs could reach.

Not only the corn blades, but the weeds which were growing in the field were cleaned up before the husks and grain on the cob were attacked. Even though frosted, the corn tended to harden and to reach toward greater maturity.

Sheep do the same with respect to weeds and corn blades. In the strictly corn belt practically every sheep owner this year has used his sheep to dispose of part or all of his late corn. It has saved the labor of harvesting and converted the corn fields into meat in the cheapest and most satisfactory manner. Though frost shortened the corn crop, it did not the meat crop. That soft corn went into steers, sheep and hogs. It was, or is now being, marketed on the hoof.

Wintering the Ducks

IN wintering ducks any sort of structure will do that gives simple shelter. While a duck is a water fowl, nevertheless this bird suffers from rain and snow. Remember, that in its wild state it migrated to the warmth of the South as the Winter season approached. It is able to stand considerable dry cold, but not wet feathers, as forced to do on many farms. The best shelter is one tightly closed on one side and both ends. Plenty of ventilation is desirable. The floor should be covered with straw. Let them have the run of a yard in favorable weather, even though the weather is cold. Exercise is good for all breeds of ducks. But don't make them find shelter under a tree or old rubbish.

Getting at Bottom of Solving Farm's Man Power Problem

By CHARLES W. BURKETT.

Famous Agricultural Author and Editor Farm Extension Service.

IT was Dean Cook, that level-headed, master-minded veteran dairyman, I think, who once said to me, "The only way to get a good farm foreman is to raise him." And the best way to get good farm men is to let them grow up on the farm. When boys start on a farm and grow up on it they know the ways of the owner—know the land and the stock, and the implements and the machines, and every year they become more useful and valuable. They are happy and contented, and will in time have farms of their own; and better still, know how to manage them and take care of the stock.

A young man is better off on a farm than in a city. Farming is no longer the dull, plodding, uneventful, dreary existence that we have read about or heard our grandparents tell about. There is sufficient hurry, pressure and excitement to stir the blood and stimulate the efforts of an energetic boy or man. A farmer "just has to work lively." He must battle with the winds and storms, with rain and snow, with heat and cold. He must if he would win. He must be a plucky man. If there is no "snap" in him he had better find some slow, steady unvarying employment in a town or city. He is not the man for modern agriculture.

Our work on the farm constantly changes. It is rare, outside of special lines such as dairying, poultry raising, etc., that one finds a whole week devoted to the same kind of work. In the season of plowing, whether Spring, late Summer or late Fall, we plow, then harrow, then drill the seed or do something else. If it rains there are other things to do on the well-managed farm. We are constantly getting improved implements and machines, and needing more intelligence and skill in our operations. Hence, we need better men on the farm—better owners, in some cases, and quite generally better men as farm hands. We want these better men, and to get them we must commence with the boys.

MORE MARRIED MEN NEEDED.

We must also get more married men into the neighborhood and give their boys a good training on the farm. Farm work for the most part should be year-round work, not seasonal. Farm profits come from labor, not land. There should not be a large fluctuation in the demand for labor on our farms. Unsteady employment and high wages are utterly demoralizing. The one recourse is to plan work for the year-round and secure good men at reasonable wages, establish them in their own homes on the farm and let them feel that so long as they do what is right and square they will hold their jobs.

I have talked with a number of men working on farms, and invariably they tell me they prefer steady work throughout the year at moderate wages rather than higher pay for seasonal work. These men must have places to live and food to eat. If they work but seven or eight months during the year they naturally become discontented and never really get fully wedded to farm work. How different on farms where labor is employed for a twelve months' year, where the men are provided with homes on the farm and become fixed to it. It is this type that makes the best farm labor and helps the owner to carry on the farm and who can be depended on through thick and thin.

Reclamation of Land

THE late Secretary Wallace, in his last report, stated that "Department studies have shown that land projects heretofore undertaken have made much land available for cultivation before there was any need for it. Until there is greater need for cultivated crops, much of the land that it is proposed to reclaim should be left to pasture, timber and game. Additional land reclamation at the present time will merely aggravate the adverse conditions under which farmers are working."

Walks and Talks on the Farm

How Good Reading Helps Your Farming

I HAVE been making the most of my spare time this winter in reading. Of all people the habit of reading should reach its best and fullest results on the farm. The long evenings are favorable to it; and one's work gives a chance to think over what one reads. It is here that the fullest value is realized. City people read like they eat—they take a dash at it and run to something else. There is no time to think over what is read, to digest it, to apply it. On the farm it is different. There one thinks! Undoubtedly the reason why so many farm boys reach such heights when they leave the farm is their unconscious training in thinking, as they went about their farm tasks and their ability to analyze things. No place equals the farm for doing either.

I have been reading a new book—one of the finest and best farm books I have ever seen. It is by Samuel Fraser on American fruits. Its 900 pages is a wonderful store house of the best information and knowledge on fruit growing. Indeed, the book reads like a novel, so apt are the phrases.

It is a book for every farmer, whether he raises much fruit or little, whether he is a commercial orchardist or only possesses a dozen trees. It is one of those books one likes to keep within handy reach.

No farm library is large, but every farm should have a library—should have at hand enough of the more important agricultural books for steady reference and study. This is not "bookish" farming; it is practical farming, the right background to enable the farmer to meet his problems as they arise and to make of him a master farmer. The boy who is to be or wants to be a farmer can have no better start than access to or possession of the right kind of farm books. Along with the other conveniences we need farm books in the farm home. There is no other habit so worthy of cultivation as the reading habit. Books and papers—what a delight these are for every season of the year; and for the entire family.

BROWN OPPOSES LIQUOR BILLS

State Prohibition Head Assails Legislative Measures.

Two bills introduced in the house of representatives aim at prohibition law enforcement in West Virginia, according to State Prohibition Commissioner Brown. In a statement issued yesterday the commissioner said:

"Eleven bills have been introduced in the house of delegates bearing on prohibition and enforcement of prohibition laws either directly or indirectly.

"Two of these bills, house bill No 375 and house bill No. 408, are hostile to prohibition and would practically annul enforcement of the law in West Virginia. The abolishment of the prohibition department as proposed in these bills would throw upon the superintendent of the department of public safety more than double the amount of office work now required of him.

"The supervision of enforcement involves monthly reports from all justices, mayors and clerks of courts covering all prohibition cases prosecuted in the state. The regulation of the sale of alcohols, wine and liquor involve the issuance of more than 10,000 permits a year, inspecting dealers, collecting fees, and requiring on an average of seventy-five or eighty letters daily. The preparation of legal forms comprising warrants, bonds, commitments, forms of reports, is an essential part of the work as the construction of the law in more than fifty decisions of the supreme court in the last three years has made it necessary to constantly revise warrants, indictments and other forms of procedure in the courts.

"House bill No. 318 is a step backward in proposing a return to the outlawed prescription business. At the instance of the druggists and physicians of West Virginia the perscription was abolished by the legislature of 1913, in the passage of the Yost law, because of its widespread abuse. State after state has followed our example until more than one-half of the states in the union have abolished the prescription as proposed in this law. If we are to have 'medical whiskey' the Volstead prescription law is certainly not the method of dispensing it."

Says His Prescription Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pain and Twinges--Is Guaranteed

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

All druggists in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if ALLENRHU, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it as above in every instance.

BANKING CHANGES URGED IN BILLS

A number of changes in the laws relating to banking in West Virginia are proposed in several bills introduced in the legislature with the approval of State Banking Commissioner Abbott and of the legislative committee of the state bankers' association.

The bills were introduced in the senate by Senator Nataman Jackson of the eighth district, former state banking commissioner, and in the house of delegates by Delegate Andrews, of Boone, chairman of the committee on banking.

One of the measures would place mortgage and discount companies under the jurisdiction of the state banking commissioner and would clear up any doubts as to the meaning of the present law in several particulars.

Another bill would take the state from the place of preferred creditor of banks and put it on a level with ordinary depositors.

The third bill endorsed by the state banking department would require a surety bond from every counting officer of a bank. The present law allows a counting officer to give either surety or personal bonds. The bill would also require the state banking commissioner and his assistant commissioners to give surety bonds. The present law does not require any bond from these officials.

G. O. P. TICKET FOR WELLSBURG

Two candidates for mayor, and five for city collector and treasurer, made known their intention, at a call meeting of the Wellsburgh Republican executive committee, held in the office of Mayor W. T. McCreary last evening.

Candidates for the mayoralty are George Nichols and Walter Hahn. Aspirants to the city collector and treasurer's office are Clyde Thompson, John Good, Walter Lewis, Ashley Roberts and A. B. Noland.

Acting upon these nominations the executive committee decided that a primary election would be held on March 14, almost a month prior to the April election. The field will remain open for candidates until February 28.

Mayor W. T. McCreary, despite his assertions that he will not become a candidate to succeed himself, was not present at last night's meeting, and may announce his candidacy later.

BROOKE OFFICIALS CONTINUE RAIDS

Charles Caplin, proprietor of a pool room in Beach Bottom was arraigned on three separate charges last night as the outgrowth of a raid by Brooke County authorities on his place early Sunday morning. He was given a hearing before squire S. G. Barber of Beach Bottom.

Caplin was found guilty on two charges: operating a gambling house, $50 and costs; allowing minors to play pool and gamble, $100 and costs and 60 days in jail. The latter charge was the result of the arrest of William Steele, 17.

Caplin was arraigned on a third charge of selling liquor but requested that the hearing be postponed till tonight. Three alleged gamblers, arrested in the raid, are said to have confessed that they purchased liquor from Caplin.

Two Men Slain In Gun Duel After Argument Over $50

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3.—Two men are dead here today as a result of a gun duel said to have grown out of an argument over a $50 bill in Herbert Fink's millionaire cafe in Gretna, a suburb, last night. The dead are Frank Burke, of McDonoughville, La., and L. E. Vollmer, of San Antonio, Texas.

Vollmer and a friend, who has disappeared since the affair, are said to have accused Burke of stealing the bill from Vollmer. Burke allowed them to search him.

Upon failing to find it, the argument reorpener with intensity.

Vollmer drew an automatic pistol and shot Burke three times. Burke shot Vollmer in the head. Burke was paroled from the state penitentiary about a year ago where he was serving a sentence for killing Captain Joseph Fisher, chief of Jefferson parish police, about eight years ago.

1924 taxes became a lien April 15th, 1924, the day preceding the second Monday in April.

First Half must be paid not later than December 20th, 1924. Last Half must be paid not later than June 20th, 1925.

The correct way to pay a full year's tax without penalty is to pay in December for December and the following June.

Penalty on delinquent Real Estate and Personal Property is 10 per cent.

When writing for a statement of your taxes, remember property appears on the Treasurer's books in the name of the person having title on April 13, 1924, and that the law requires the Treasurer's books and receipts to be made out in the name of the party owning property when the lien took effect.

In writing for statement of taxes, always send last receipt, or give name of owner in April 1924, stating plainly in what city, town or township located, and whether real or personal property.

When you write for statement or pay by mail, enclose a self addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Special taxes are written separately on yellow slips. If you have Special tax, insist on getting the yellow receipt before leaving Treasurer's Office and avoid delinquent notices.

Examine your receipts and see that they are correct before you leave the Treasurer's Office.

Treasurer's Office will be open from 7 A. M. to 5 P. M.

County Treasurer.

COMMISSIONERS OLD SESSION

our Delegations Make Pleas for Highway Improvements.

It was one of those old-fashioned eetings that the county commission- s held Monday, when delegations om four different townships ap- ared petitioning for road improve- ents. The outer office of Proce- ting Attorney R. M. Brookes was owded as it never was before.

For about three hours there was a neral discussion between the com- issioners and chairmen of delega- ons relative to new highways and e opening of new territory.

"Salineville has reached a crisis in s municipal career," declared Frank Judge, of Salineville, in urging the mmissioners to do something that ould give an improved highway from alineville northwest to Summitville, ence to Kensington. "Our business en are up against it. Their savings a lifetime is endangered. Only one ine is in operation and the plant of e National China company. To open is road will more than equal the stablishing of a new industry in alineville."

Frank Johnson, representing the oard of trustees of Franklin town- ip, opened the discussion. He de- ared that the trustees of Franklin ownship, the trustees of Washington ownship and also the trustees of ox township, Carroll county, were nited in having this road improved, nd at the earliest date possible.

Mr. Johnson declared that outside f the seven-tenths of a mile of this oad within the corporate limits of alineville, there was eighth-tenths of mile to be improved in Washington ownship. This would take the road nto Franklin township, and the latter ownship is ready to go ahead with egislation as would be necessary to ut the project over.

A small section of this route, No. s part of the work and pass such 0, extends through northeast corner f Fox township, in Carroll county, nd the Fox township trustees are illing to go along with the improve- ent of the road.

"We're a unit all along the line," Mr. Johnson continued. "We've been putting money into other road proj- cts of the county by paying our road assessments, and all we have outside of a mile of slag road is about 100 feet under a culvert. We've got our people with us. Now that we're all of one accord, we want to see this road go over. We're willing to go the limit. We're all set to go. We've had a road fight on in Franklin for 16 years, but it's all over now and while we're all of one mind let's go."

Thereupon the commissioners, on a motion of J. C. Kelly, and supported by Mr. Bye, placed a resolution on the journal authorizing County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk to make an estimate of the cost of the grading and surfacing of this road in Salineville, Washington township and Franklin township. By mutual agreement with the trustees of Fox township in Carroll county, Mr. Kirk will also make the survey and estimate for the section of road in that part of Carroll county.

Arthur G. Hass, of Alliance, but a property owner in East township, as the chairman of a delegation from that township, filed with the commissioners a petition containing 104 names, he declared, opposing the surfacing of the East Rochester-North Georgetown road. With Mr. Haas was E. M. Davis and John French.

Mr. Haas also filed with the commissioners a petition containing 385 names asking that the route of this road north from East Rochester be changed so that it would go over Chambersburg road.

"I think we have 60 per cent of the tax payers in our township on these petitions," Mr. Haas said. "The advertisement was not published in a newspaper of general circulation in our community. The East Rochester-North Georgetown road is not the most generally traveled road, but the route north by way of Chambersburg is."

"I'm afraid, gentlemen, this matter has gone too far to be changed now," suggested Mr. Berg. "The state highway department has approved this road, and we have no power to change an act of the highway department."

This road has been graded for three years or more, and not until this year has any objection ever been filed about the route or the surfacing of the road.

Both petitions were received by the commissioners.

"We'll give them consideration," Chairman Berg advised Mr. Haas.

Then came a delegation from Knox township, asking for the improvement of the road south from Westville to North Georgetown. This request came on the heels of the statement of Mr. Haas that the East Rochester-North Georgetown road had no northern opening.

Immediately afterwards another delegation from Knox township asked that the road from Valley to Salem be improved.

It was then disclosed that the two-mill levy campaign of some years ago included the improvement of the Westville-North Georgetown road.

"That's all for this morning," said Chairman Berg. "We're due for an inspection of the county home within the next 15 minutes."

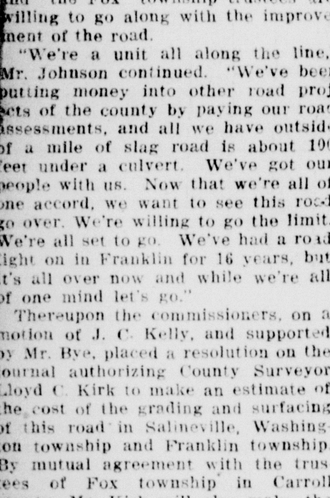
"California Fig Syrup" is Children's Harmless Laxative



Children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and gladly take it even when bilious, feverish, sick or constipated. No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without cramping or overacting. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Street Resurfacing Discussed at Meet Of Village Council

At a meeting of the Lisbon village council Monday night, there was some discussion about the resurfacing of Lincoln Way its entire length. Frank Swaney of East Liverpool told of the merits of Willite surfacing.

For several years the Lisbon council has been saving the money it receives from the automobile license tax, and over $7,000 is now in the treasury to the credit of this fund.

The council has purchased a motor truck to be used on the streets of the village, and it will be delivered in March.

Mayor Frank Albrecht in presenting his January police report showed that $363 was collected in fines that were turned into the safety fund, also $110 paid into the county judicial fund and $80 into the state fund. There is $100 in the hands of Mayor Albrecht which it has not been determined whether it belongs to the county or the village.

It may follow that another officer will be added to the present one man force. Councilmen hold one officer should work from noon until midnight and one from six at night until six o'clock in the morning.

Pioneer Settlers in Lone Star State Tell Of Fish Rain Days

YOAKUM, Texas., Feb.—During a very cloudy morning, with a stiff breeze driving dark clouds over the town, Henry Hohn and two fellow-workmen in the De Witt Motor Company's plant heard a thud on the iron roof. Running out to investigate, they found a buffalo fish, thirteen inches long, weighing one and a quarter pounds. The fish was bleeding from injury it received in striking the iron roof, but was still breathing.

The news spread rapidly, and soon old settlers were coming in and telling of similar instances they had seen when "fish rained down out of the clouds."

Paul Men told of two alligators falling out of clouds during a small cyclone in this section.

Children Need Shoes.

ATHENS, Feb.—Athens county school authorities are trying to collect about 100 pair of shoes for children, who, they claimed, cannot leave their homes because of lack of covering for their feet. Most of the needy youngsters are in the mining camps, it was stated.

Letters to Editor

What is Equipment.

East Liverpool, O., Feb. 2, 1925.
Editor Review-Tribune,
City.
Dear Sir:—

May I ask Mayor Brown, through the medium of The Review-Tribune, what can be classed as part of the equipment in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor?

Most people keep revolvers to protect themselves against crimes of violence being committed in the community. Can jewelry in any way be classed as part of equipment? Can money be stolen, seized or confiscated as part of equipment because it is used in the purchase of corks, bottles, etc., as containers for home brew and wine?

The people have a right to know where they stand on this matter and what fine-splitters can take from their homes as part of equipment when they make invasions.

Incidentally, I was lucky in discovering a jar of jam in my cellar with the cover torn off. It had fermented; the juice had become alcohol. I immediately destroyed it. What would have happened if licensed gunmen had found it? I suppose I should have been taken before a court and a fine imposed upon me.

However, despite this precaution, there remains the danger and dread of fine-splitting detectives planting the evidence, because there is an incentive for them to do it.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM HAZELHURST, Sr.,
East End.

4 out of 5 are marked

There's no way to get around it. Dental statistics show that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are victims of Pyorrhea. Do you want to avoid this dread disease?

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Three Generations Kept Healthy and Happy

"Beecham's Pills were always considered indispensable by my parents during sixty years of married life and I am never without them in my home, as they are used when required by myself (aged sixty-one), and wife and children. This covers a period of over eighty years.

My wife and sons also believe there is no remedy for constipation and biliousness equal to Beecham's Pills.

So many so-called "cures" for biliousness and kindred troubles leave after effects that are certainly injurious, but Beecham's Pills give prompt relief and leave one in a healthy and happy condition." N. J. M. Ramsay, N. J.

THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

He strode through the drawing room, met her as she came toward him. The lights in the room were very bright; the Japanese boys were setting the place in order. Rossiter motioned them out and they went with backward glances at his strangely white face. Karesia looked at him, feeling sick with compassion.

"Better to tell you now—if I didn't love you so well, I wouldn't," he said rapidly. "He'll tempt you—he's conscienceless, and you love him. I didn't want to deceive you—it wasn't that. That's why I told you that we would consider ourselves free—as when we first met—that I was courting you all over again. If you really loved me, it wouldn't matter—you'd forgive me and we would have married again. I was going to tell you about it tonight: that when I first came out here, nearly three years ago, I wanted a home. In San Francisco, very quietly, I got a divorce—the note you wrote before you left me, saying you were going, gave it to me. And I didn't even know where you were. For a year I've been free to marry. You're free, too. Kara, don't do a wild thing that you'll regret as long as you live. You're a good woman—he's not for a woman like you. It's ended between us—I'm sorry. There's nothing more to be said."

Rossiter turned on his heel; went into his library and closed the door.

XXXIII

That evening, as Dascome sat at his solitary dinner, Takimoto said to him, "Suda tell me that Mrs. Kaime came out from ladies' store this morning and look very sick."

Dascome glanced up quickly and he and Takimoto looked at each other; the Oriental's eyes were narrowly brilliant in their immobile setting. "But she went to Mr. Rossiter's this evening," Dascome said after a pause.

"Suda say Mrs. Kaime tell him when she came out of ladies' store, 'I can't walk.' Then she sit in car and look very sick. Then she say, 'Take me to storehouse.' Then she send Suda home and she not come home till evening."

Dascome looked down, his face grown gray. The Japanese moved about lightly, glancing now and then at Dascome's averted face. He placed the next course before him, but Dascome did not touch it. Takimoto waited. Then Dascome looked up at him again. "You saw Mary Bliss today?"

"Yes, I saw. I take her some flowers. I go up to her room and give them. She a little afraid of me—not so afraid of Suda because he smaller than me. She call him 'Boy,' always. But she take flowers and say, 'Thank you,' then shut her door pretty quick."

Dascome said nothing, only looked at him in his steadfast, questioning way.

"She get better in her body, I think," Tokimoto said, "but not remember just the same—eyes like they see nothing."

Again Dascome looked down. He did not touch his food. "You want salad?" Takimoto asked finally.

"No," Dascome answered absently.

The Japanese came closer. "I think better take her away, now Mrs. Kaime knows. It not so safe."

"As soon as Colt comes back," Dascome answered.

"He come soon?"

"As soon as he can—I've been waiting. Manage to see Mary Bliss every day, if you can."

Dascome rose and Takimoto asked, "You not finish your dinner?"

"Just coffee. Bring it to me in the other room."

Takimoto brought it to him and Dascome drank it, standing before the fire. When he went in to dinner, there had been color in his face, now he was haggard. But he gave his orders with perfect steadiness. "Dennison will not be here tonight until 10 o'clock. Have hot coffee ready for him, Taki, and something to eat if he wants it. He'll come up through the basement, as usual. And be sure that all the window shades are down—never forget that. When Suda comes back, remind him again to pull down the window shades."

"Yes, sir."

"Does Suda suspect anything, Taki?"

"No!" the Japanese said positively. "Suda very kind boy but not much brains. You stay out till 10."

"Yes."

"I have coffee—something for you to eat then?"

"No—nothing. Go to your house then, Taki, and forget about it. First see that there is plenty of wood here for this fire. It's turned colder."

"You sit up all night alone and think and you get sick," the Japanese warned. "Often I think you will get sick—thinking."

"I may not sit alone tonight, Taki. Jacob is not the only man who served seven years for his Rachel. Now bring me my cap and coat."

Kakimoto did not understand the reference, he was a Buddhist, but he knew that a woman might come. He arranged the lights so that they produced the softest glow, piled the cushions on the couch, tended the fire, and brought the vase of flowers from the dining room and put it on the mantel. Last of all he burned a bit of incense in one of Karesia's bronze incense burners. The he drew the hangings across the entrance into the hall and closed the doors into the dining room.

After walking around the house and the garden, Dascome had gone to the hillside. Farther inland, it had rained that day, falling in snow on the mountains, and its chill breath had crept down over the the foothills toward the ocean. Usually, during his night watches, Dascome could sit down or stand about, but tonight he had to keep moving. He walked along the foot of the hill, which was just high enough to command a view of Karesia's house, and near enough to hear sounds and to see any lurking shapes there might be. It was not a dark night; on a dark night, he kept closer to the house. He walked like a sentry, back and forth, pausing only when a light shone in some room, when an outer door opened or closed. He could look far down the street; at the other end of his beat he could see the back of Karesia's house and overlook the garden.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Rightly Hesitant.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 22 and am keeping company with a man eight years my senior He has asked me to marry him and although I love him more than any other man I have ever known. I have not given my answer because I am not sure we would be happy together. He and I are both "the only child." My father died when I was quite young and my mother had to work hard to support me and it didn't give her much time to spoil me. His father owns a store and does good business, so that he has never known what it is to do without Besides he has always had a mother and grandmother to wait on him in every way. One time he told me his grandmother always sent his white shoes cleaned in summer. This man's father seems to like me, but I can't feel that his mother and grandmother do not. When I go to their house for dinner they are all very nice to me but still I can feel something very unfriendly behind the kindness of the kindness of the mother and grandmother. He wants to marry me this June and take me to his home to live. He knows his people would be lonely without him and because it is a big house he can't see why we couldn't all get along nicely together. You will probably say that I don't love him and therefore should not consider marrying him. I do love him, though, and don't know what to do. I feel as if I can't live without him, but I also feel that I could never go into his home and be happy. When I marry I want a home of my own What is your opinion of this? NAOMI.

It is quite right that a girl should weigh her chances for happiness before she gives her consent to marry Even deep love will not thrive in an hostile atmosphere. To get into the man's home where he is placed on a shrine by his mother and grandmother would certainly tempt the fates. Even if they were good to you and always were good fair, it would be their home and not yours. It is your right to insist on a home of your own, where you will be free to express yourself without usurping the rights of someone else. Instead of criticising you for placing obstacles in the face of your love, I admire you more than a girl who would plunge into matrimony blindly, letting the future take care of itself. If there were more thought before marriage, there would be more happy marriages.

He Must Wait.

Dear Mrs. Thomnson: I am a girl of 16 and have met a boy of 18. We met three weeks ago. He appears to be very quiet and nice and he seems to think a lot of me, but he never takes me any place. He seems very bashful What can I do to get him to take me places? He is the first boy friend I have really cared for.

JUST BOY FRIEND.

There isn't much you can do to get the boy to take you places. You might suggest that you and he go for a walk call on some friend or something like that, but it would not be correct for you to make suggestions which would involve the expenditure of money.

BOB: Don't give up a girl you love merely because you have heard she has talked in an unkind way about you. I am inclined to think that the story was exaggerated before it was carried to your ears. You say that she seems to enjoy your company and goes with no one else, and therefore you should have more faith in her than to think she would say what you heard.

Not Well Bred.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it nice for girls to comb their hair in school time?

BLUE EYES, FRIEND OF ALL.

It is generally considered not wellbred to comb your hair, manicure, use a compact, or perform any of the various acts of preparing ones toilet in public.

High School Lone.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my teens and in high school. I am deeply in love with a fellow whom I go with quite a bit. He is popular and so am I but he is the only one I love. We write notes back and forth at school and he says he loves me with all his heart, but sometimes I doubt it. When I ask him to come up to the house to see me he always has some excuse, such as, he can't go out, hates to walk, or has to study. He has taken me home several times. The other night after school I asked him to wait for me, which he did but he said he had to practice for a play. Sometimes he says things which makes me feel very blue but I know he doesn't mean them. Another couple and I are invited to go skating and I am to invite a fellow for me. Don't you think it would be all right to ask him since we both love each other? His mother has been ill and doesn't want him to go with any girl very much. BROWN EYES.

Since the boy's mother is ill and objects to his going with a girl it is only natural that he should make excuses when you invite him to your home. Doubtless he has to practice, study, etc., or else sit up with his mother, it would be all right to invite him to go skating since he has taken you home and has told you in his notes he cares for you. Don't be disappointed however, if he turns down your invitation, because he probably is not allowed to go out nights with a girl. Of course he would not want to give that as an excuse. A girl always makes a mistake when she asks a boy to call at her home and to go places with her. Almost every boy prefers to do the asking himself and feels that the girl is "running after him" when she goes that far.

An Unhappy Girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my very early teens and considered good-looking. I go to shows and love out-door sports, but somehow I am unhappy. I have girl and boy friends who seem to think of me as the closest of friends. I try to be happy but always fail. I think it is because of my very best girl friends. They come to see me often but go away angry every time. This hurts me very much and I worry about it because I can't see a thing that makes them act this way. They could not be better friends when they visit. I can tell they are angry when they go, but I can't understand why. If it is something I do I can only hope to find it out. I do my best when they are here. Do you think it is just their nature? WORRIED GIRL.

Probably you feel that you want to play your way, and that because you are in your own home you have a right to do so. Study the wishes of your friends and make an effort all through their visits to let them express themselves and do what they want to. As long as they are your guests you ought to give in to them without opposing them in the least or showing disappointment. Also keep unhappiness to yourself. A happy person has hosts of friends, while one who suffers from the blues dragging down the spirits of others is dreaded rather than sought. If you are not able to fathom your failure to please, question your friends. Surely you will be able to get some idea of what is wrong through them.

And another puzzle is the insane desire on the part of man to beat the fast express.

YOUR HEALTH

Every Typhoid Fever Case Assails Sanitary Rules

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

ONE of the gratifying evidences of medical progress is the steadily declining appearance of typhoid fever The younger men in practice have seen few cases. The elder men recall the times when hardly a day passed in any community without a new case.

Typhoid has become so rare that it is sometimes overlooked for a few days. Indeed, in "walking typhoid"—what the doctors call the "amulatory type"—the patient may drag himself through his regular duties and not suspect he has this serious disease

Ordinarily, the trouble begins with headache, perhaps with nosebleed It produces such great weakness and prostration that the victim is glad to go to bed and call the doctor

The temperature gradually steps up a degree or so higher at night than in the morning Tenderness of the abdomen diarrhea and sometimes a rash on the chest and abdomen are other symptoms

In the second week there is a muttering delirium and the symptoms gradually grow worse The prostration increases during the third week After this the temperature goes down and unless there are relapses the case begins to improv

Like all other infectious diseases, the complications are most to be dreaded Bleeding from the nose or bowel perforation of the bowel with serious inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdominal cavity, pneumonia inflammation of the kidney and serious bed-sores are among the possible complications

Bad water bad milk contaminated shell fish and other bad foods are to be looked to as possible carriers of the disease germs Human carriers are sometimes met

Every case of typhoid fever is a challenge to the health officials Immediate steps are taken to discover what is wrong and where the disease originated

The greatest precautions must be exercised to make sure that the discharge from a typhoid fever patient are properly disposed of so that no other case may follow This requires painstaking care on the part of nurse and family It must be kept in mind that every such case is a menace to society if it is not properly treated

So serious is typhoid that we should rejoice over the advances in science which have made the disease so rare

Jack Dempsey Will Never Fight Again For Kearns

Runyon Says

Edwards a Promoter.
Once Had a "Human Fly."
Idea Didn't Work Out.
Here's a "Kid" Umpire.
He's McGowan, of New Orleans.

By DAMON RUNYON.

Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

IN New Orleans the writer met Frankie Edwards.

He is one of the leading pugilistic promoters of the city, "doing fair," he said.

He has been there five or six years, has built a large arena at a cost of $90,000, at which nearly all boxing bouts in New Orleans are held.

Edwards is a smallish, sharp-looking chap, whose hair is now tinged with more gray than it carried when the writer last saw him about seven years ago.

That was in Macon, Georgia, when the New York Yankees were training there. The writer encountered Edwards in a crowd which was watching a man who called himself the "Human Fly" scale a middlin-tall building by climbing from on window ledge to another.

When the "Human Fly" reached the top of the building, he rode a bicycle around the very rim of the roof. It made your diaphragm twitch to watch him.

Frankie Edwards remarked that wasn't doing so very well in Macon, Georgia.

"Why don't you grab that 'Human Fly' and manage him?" the writer asked. "You might make some money with him."

"That's a good idea," said Frankie Edwards.

The next day he informed the writer that he had signed the "Fly" to a contract, and they departed from Macon, Georgia, together.

"What did you ever do with the 'Human Fly?'" was the writer's first query when he met Frankie Edwards in New Orleans.

"Oh, that was a good idea that didn't work out," replied Edwards. "Yes, I guess he's still alive, though he didn't figure to be, did he?

"I thought I'd get rich out of him as an advertising stunt," Edwards continued. "I'd look at the big ads that banks and stores carry in the papers, and I thought 'Well, if they pay big money to get in the middle of the papers, what won't they pay to get on the front page.?'

"You see, I figured my 'Fly' would be news going around climbing buildings, but when I went in to see a business man, the minute I mentioned 'Human Fly' he would turn and give me a quick look and start pressing buttons in his desk to summon help. They thought I was daffy.

New Orleans is historic fistic territory. It was there that the greatest pugilistic carnival in the history of the game in this country was held.

They put on three championship fights one after another. George Dixnn beat Jack Skelly for the featherweight title. Jack McAuliffe beat Billy Myers, "The Streator Cyclone," for the lightweight title, and James J. Corbett took the heavyweight title from John L. Sullivan.

It is doubtful if any promoter will ever again undertake a carnival of that kind. It would cost him at the lowest estimate $1,000,000 for the fighters alone!

In New Orleans the writer also met Billy MacGowan, who goes to the American League as an umpire at the start of the 1925 season.

McGowan says he is twenty-nine. He has the appearance of twenty-one. He is a nice looking, pleasant young fellow, who reminds you of Billy Evans, one of the veteran umpires of the American League, though Evans doesn't look much older than McGowan.

Twenty-nine is VERY young for a big league umpire. That is a job supposed to require years and great experience. However, Evans, one of the best of the umpires, began quite young.

McGowan has been umpiring in the Southern League. They say he is a good umpire.

Like Evans, he does considerable writing for the newspapers. A column signed by him if featured in one of the New Orleans papers. Reading this column produces the impression that McGowan is quite INTELLIGENT.

After all, that is the main requisite for umpiring in the big leagues.

Ban Johnson, president of the American League, has evidently been schooling McGowan for a job in his circuit for some time. He has been sending McGowan south with American League clubs to umpire exhibition games for several years.

Thus Johnson, through the reports of club managers and other umpires, must have a good line on McGowan's ability.

Basil Galiano, lightweight, is a New Orleans boy. It is said Billy Gibson, manager of the retired lightweight champion, Leonard, may take over the management of Galiano.

Mr. Gibson perhaps appreciates the avluo of the lightweight title better than anyone else—even the retired Leonard. He is understood to be the manager of another lightweight, Charley O'Connell, of Cleveland.

Can Mr. Gibson claim that BOTH Galiano and O'Connell are the next lightweight champions, as a conscientious manager MUST claim of his men in any class?

"So I got out of that racket pretty quick," Edwards said, "and here I am promoting boxing shows. It doesn't sound quite as nutty as when you say you're managing a 'Human Fly,' does it?"

The writer agreed that it didn't. Edwards' last big show was the 15-round no-decision bout between Gene Tunney and Jeff Smith. He lost money on that. He is putting on two negro heavyweights, George Godfrey and Battling Owens, next month.

Owens lives in New Orleans. He printed a book about himself with his picture on the cover, is a voluble person, and something of a drawing card. He recently whipped Battling Sikl.

Owens is managed by old Paddy Mullins, of New York, and is therefore a "stablemate" of Harry Wills, "The Brown Panther of New Orleans."

Wills is coming to New Orleans next month to second Owens and renew acquaintances in his old home town. Wills seems to be well liked in New Orleans. He started his pugilistic career there.

Edwards says the best heavyweight card in New Orleans is Martin Burke. Also he says Burke is fighting better than ever before in his career. Burke is a clever, crafty fellow. No man in the ring knows how to "tie up" an opponent better than Burke.

He isn't much of a hitter. He is more of a defensive boxer. It takes a fighter of real class to beat him.

Burke got his first schooling with Jack Dempsey. When he was only about 18 or 19, he was one of Dempsey's sparring partners.

The writer recalls seeing Burke, then a tall, slim, nice looking boy, at Dempsey's camp at Long Branch, N. J., just after Dempsey was matched to meet Jess Willard for the title.

Ike Dorgan, publicity man for Madison Square Garden, was with this reporter on the trip to Long Branch, and Ike liked Martin Burke's appearance. Dempsey told the writer that Burke was a promising young fellow.

BIG MOMENTS in SPORT.

By Davis J. Walsh,
International New Service Sports Editor.

No. 5—That Jackson-McCurdy Finish.

In the Spring of 1914 the first of a series of British college relay teams invaded the United States endowed with one Olympic champion, one world's record breaker, two British titles in distance running and an abiding faith in its ability to spreadeagle the field in the four-mile championship relay at the University of Pennsylvania carnival. This view was shared by nearly everyone.

Didn't the Oxford team have A. N. S. Jackson, the scholarly-looking gent, who beat Jones, Kiviat and Taber in the 1,500-metre race at the 1912 Olympics? Didn't it have Taber himself, an American Rhodes scholar who only a short time before had turned in a record mile of 4:12 3-5? Didn't it have Gaussen and Sproul, two of the best distance runners in England? To make answer in blanket, terms, it did.

No Spread-eagling.

Didn't it spread-eagle its field, as advertised? It didn't.

In some quarters Oxford's victory is questioned to this day, so close was the decision. Pennsylvania, a good average American college relay team, all but beat the overconfident invaders in one of the greatest finishes of all time. At the tape you couldn't have slipped a visiting card between the runners, yet the judges managed to see Oxford in front.

The first half of the race saw Bacon and Langner, of Pennsylvania hold their own with Sproul and Gaussen, the rest of the field being well up at this point. It became a two-team race, however, when Madiera, of Penn, stepped out with a 4:21 mile and beat the great Taber by twenty yards. The transplanted American apparently had not taken the event as seriously as the outcome justified.

His nonchalant performance staked McCurdy, of Penn, to a long lead over Jackson, but the latter went out like a quarter-miler and ranged in behind McCurdy before the end of the first lap. They were a grotesque pair—Jackson lank and cadaverous, with the leg spread of an adult giraffe; McCurdy undersized, flat-footed, hair less as an infant and cursed with the arm motion of a candy puller.

He looked like a sap to Jackson, who played his cards accordingly. Instead of stepping out at a clinking pace, the Englishman elected to range alongside of McCurdy with the evident intention of lashing past him at the finish. No greater mistake was made by mortal man. You had to beat McCurdy before the stretch or not at all, so powerful was his sprint. A slow pace was exactly what he wanted.

Not realizing this, Jackson ran wide of McCurdy for nearly three laps, thus going out of his way to run farther than the distance required.

McCurdy on Heels.

A furlong from home he decided that matters had gone far enough and essayed a spectacular sprint. McCurdy was right there with him, and striding twice to Jackson's once, carried the Briton into the stretch on even terms, with 30,000 spectators in a frenzy.

But McCurdy held back a dying effort and 50 yards from home he gave it, pushing into the lead. They came down to the tape in this position and five yards away McCurdy still was a foot to the good. At this moment a wild-eyed spectator fell upon the writer from above and neither of us witnessed the finish.

Upon righting myself I saw Jackson sprawled his tremendous length upon the cinders, completely cooked, and was informed that he had made the finish a very close one by taking a great leap in the last two yards. It was this that probably prompted the officials to give him the decision. His time, 4:32, was ridiculously slow.

He never ran again. Whether from pique, self-disgust or the fact that World War claimed him shortly thereafter, I don't know.

Oaklanders Cop Opening League Game

Launch 'Y' Indoor Baseball Card With Win Over Potters.

In the opening game of the Y Industrial indoor baseball league, Smith Phillips won from the Potters last night in a seven inning contest by the score of 24 to 23.

Smith Phillips sent two runs across in the first while the Potters failed to tally. In the second the Potters batted twelve runs over the pan while the Smith-Phillips gang sent in four.

Both teams scored a run apiece in the third. The Potters crossed the plate five times in the fourth while Smith-Phillips was held scoreless.

In the fifth the Potters scored another tally, while the Klondyke aggregation failed to count.

The Potters got another run in the sixth and Smith and Phillips made it a big inning by scoring a dozen runs.

The Trotters sent three runs over in the seventh but the Smith and Phillips tossers won the game by a seventh inning rally, batting five tallies over the plate. All league teams will be in action tomorrow night.

Wooster Five Faces Two-day Journey to Lower End of State

WOOSTER, Feb. 3.—The Wooster college basketball squad faces a two-day trip to the southern part of the state for this week-end. Friday night Wooster plays Wittenberg at Springfield and Saturday night Otterbein at Westerville.

The past week was a hard one for the Wooster squad. Two games were played in addition to a week of hard mid-year exams. On Thursday evening Wooster conquered the strong Ashland non-conference five in an overtime game, 34 to 28. Then on Saturday evening Wooster took Case into camp for the second time of the season and this time to the tune of 37 to 29.

Coach Boles seems to have settled on his lineup for the season after trying several combinations. This lineup is with Captain Hurst and Maniy at guards; Starn at center and Pfeiffer and Love at forwards.

In addition to these regulars he has McGlashan, Canton McKinley flash, who is drilled to replace either of the guards, Anderson to alternate with Starn at center and Dodez as forward.

Wooster's next home game will be February 12 with the conference leaders, Ohio Wesleyan. This is rated the toughest battle on the Wooster home schedule.

Man On The Inside Confirms Reports of Pair's Parting

Ways From Now on Unless Something is Done to Bring Them Together, Informant Asserts.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Regardless of whether his retirement is on the plumb-bob level or is merely an expression of the prevailing mode in cauliflower ears, Jack Dempsey has fought his last battle under the management of Jack Kearns.

This statement was made today by way of confirmation of the reported estrangement between the pair, by a man distinctly on the "inside" of nearly every big bout in this country.

"That part of the thing is 'in,'" he declared. "You can bet your last cent on it. Unless something is done to bring them together, Dempsey and Kearns will go their separate ways from now on."

He then went on to elaborate upon his statement by telling of an incident that occurred when the champion and his manager were last in the east. Dempsey, he said, was on his way past a famous restaurant in town when one of his party suggested going inside.

"Kearns is in there," he explained.

The champion's reply was to turn on his heel and walk in the opposite direction, after airing a few unflattering remarks about his manager, according to the story. It is not believed that the gesture was the result of a passing grievance. Dempsey is not given to showing his resentment over trivial or temporary differences with members of his official family.

Further significance is given the statement by the tone of Dempsey's recent announcement of his withdrawal from the ring.

Dempsey later saw fit to repudiate his decision in part, by suggesting that he might make one more appearance in the ring but he said nothing about Kearns nor did their stories bear the slightest of team work. While Dempsey was formally declaring himself for the simple life, Kearns steadfastly maintained that the thing was the "bunk." Their respective statements hardly smacked of mutual understanding.

If Dempsey's retirement was merely a publicity dodge, Kearns would have been "yessing" him yet.

Then, also, there is the report of their hotel property in Los Angeles being up for sale. Neither of them are in immediate money, therefore the action in question is interpreted as a desire to divorce their interests.

The further fact that Kearns is said to be negotiating for another unpunched meal ticket in the person of Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, adds color to the estrangement story: Kearns has been after Walker for some time but the latter would have none of it because he cared nothing about runing second to Dempsey in managerial esteem. If Walker really signs up with Kearns as he is supposed to do within a matter of weeks, the inference is broad that the Dempsey-Kearns combination is no more.

The Last Chance.

Snappy advice to youngsters who are trying to become big leaguers, "If at first you don't succeed, try the outfield."

Professor Retires.

ELYRIA, Feb.—Prof. John Martin Vincent, native of Elyria, who for 33 years, has been on the faculty of John Hopkins University, Baltimore, retires at the end of the present school year. He is a graduate of Elyria high school and of Oberlin college.

Tampico, Mexico, is to have a new brick and cement hall, the first floor to be furnished at once at a cost of $25,000 and the second story later.

You never tasted such rich mellowness as Wellman's method puts in this tobacco

An almost forgotten old tobacco secret, "Wellman's Method," dating from about 1870 and now ours exclusively, is responsible for the delightful taste of Granger Rough Cut—its mildness and its appetizing fragrance. And notice also the coarser "Rough Cut"—slower-burning, and therefore cooler. Here truly is a pipe tobacco that IS pipe tobacco!

Juniors and Sophs Take Class Games

Third Year Girls Defeat Freshies; Senior Boys Lose.

Sophomores basketball passers and the Juniors girls were winners in interclass league basketball games played at the high school yesterday afternoon.

The Sophomores downed their Seniors rivals by a 19 to 18 score and the Juniors girls had it easy with the Freshmen lassies, winning by the score of 12 to 1.

The boys' game was fast and rough, with the score close all the way.

The Sophomores led in the first quarter by the score of 6 to 4 and they held the lead all through the second quarter. The score was 9 to 8 at the conclusion of the first half.

In the second half the Sophomores sent a whole new five in. Hamilton and McKeever replaced Larkins and Welch at the forwards. Pusey went in for Schneidmiller at center, while McConville and McKee took the places of Heddleston and Hall at the guards.

Though this seemed to be a better working combination than the Sophomores had in the first half they could not get going. The Seniors were in the lead, 14 to 12, at the end of the third quarter.

The Sophomores won the contest in the last quarter when, with the score deadlocked at 15-15, Hamilton shot a pretty one in from the side giving the Sophs the lead. Pusey tossed another one through the net from the center of the floor increasing the lead. Pyles kept the Seniors in the running with a point from the foul line, while Woessner for the Seniors shot one through from the center spot making the winner of the game doubtful, but neither team scored during the remainder of the game.

Larkins, Heddleston, Pusey, Hamilton, Howard, Pyles and Owen did the best work for the Seniors.

In the girls' contest the Junior girls led by the score of 2 to 0 at the end of the first half.

During the second half the Junior lassies increased their lead and were in front by the score of 6 to 1 when the third period was over. In the last quarter the Juniors made a runaway of the game, scoring six points in the last few minutes of play and easily winning their first victory. Barnhart, Boice and Jobson did most of the scoring for the Juniors, while March led the Freshmen lassies in scoring.

Lutheran Passers Carded to Battle Presbyterian Five

On the high school floor the Lutheran passers will clash tonight with the First Presbyterian five in the opening game of the second half of the Sunday school basketball league season.

Early in the season the First Presbyterians, with English and Liebschner, high school stars, in their lineup sent the Lutherans down to defeat by the score of 32 to 15, and the Lutherans are out for revenge. The First Presbyterians are not as strong as they were in the earlier part of the season.

The game will start at 8:15 o'clock, while the preliminary game will be between the First Presbyterian Juniors and the Lutheran Juniors and will start at 7:15.

At Buffalo—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, knocked out Frankie Schoell, Buffalo, third round. Frankie Mack, Hartford, Conn., and Johnny Sacco, Buffalo, fought six round draw. Willie Farrell, Chicago, defeated Charlies Barry, Rochester, six rounds. Martin Peters, Buffalo, won decision over Sylvester Duquesne, Cuba, six rounds.

At Newark—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., won unofficial decision over Ted Moore, England, 12 rounds. Kid Alberis, Detroit, got unofficial decision over Harry Martone, Jersey City, ten rounds. Bob Lawson, Alabama, knocked out Jack Showers, Newark, first round. Freddie Herman, Jersey City, knocked out Joey Burns, England, fourth round.

Flowers Hands Ted Moore Hard Beating In Scrap at Newark

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 3—Tiger Flowers, negro middleweight of Atlanta, Ga., hit Ted Moore of England, with everything but the time keeper's mallet at the National Sportsmen's club, Newark, last night but the Briton was on his feet at the end of 12 speedy rounds. Moore absorbed terrific punishment throughout and the unofficial decision went to Flowers without a dissenting voice being raised. Flowers slipped to the floor as a punch grazed his head in the fifth round, this being the only suggestion of a knockdown.

The Tiger turned a complete handspring at the bell. The bout marked his first comeback in these parts after suffering a two round knockout by Jack Delaney at the Garden several weeks ago.

Milk Tests High.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Feb.—Although 100,000 bacteria count per cubic centimeter is the limit permitted in Belmont county, ten out of 35 samples of milk tested by County Veterinarian Theobald were above the limit. Theobald stated. One sample produced 1,200,000 per cubic centimeter while the average was 143,857 for the 35 samples. Some in the list were as low as 10,000 per cubic centimeter. Much Belmont county milk goes to Wheeling.

The per capita wealth of the United States in 1924 was $40 as against only $13.45 in 1900. In 1914, just before the World war, it was $18.95. The total wealth today is $4,500,000,000 according to the Director of the U. S. mint, and is growing rapidly.

Nurmi and Ray Will Be on Same Program But They Won't Meet

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray, arch rivals of the spiked shoe, will appear on the same program tonight at the Western Union games but they will not meet. Nurmi is scheduled to go after the record in a special 2½ mile event and enroute will attempt to erase Ray's mark of 9:08 2-5 for two miles. Ray will go to the mark with a select field in the golden jubilee mile.

In addition, Willie Plant, American champion, will attempt to give Ugo Frigerio, Olympic champion, his third defeat here. They will meet in a 5,000-meter walk. Willie Ritola also will make an assault on intermediate records up to and including 5,000 meters.

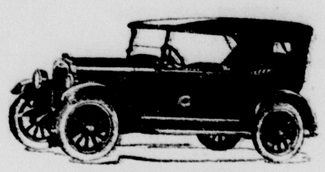
THE NEW CHEVROLET



PRICE $525
F. O. B. Flint.

New chassis—with a larger, stronger frame; new semi-eliptic chrome vanadium steel springs; new and stronger front axle; completely new rear axle of finest construction — banjo type with one piece, pressed steel housing and greatly strengthened gears; improved fully enclosed, dry plate disc clutch which requires no lubrication; extra heavy brake lands on big 11-inch brake drums; a new and easier steering mechanism and many improvements on the famous Chevrolet motor.

New value—new quality—a new line of Chevrolet models far better than ever before. The public has recognized that Chevrolet represents a high standard of quality at low lost. As a result Chevrolet has become the world's largest producer of automobiles with standard three-speed transmission. Now this Chevrolet quality has been greatly increased. The new Chevrolet embodies quality features such as you would expect to find only on cars of much higher price.

PRICE $825
F. O. B. Flint.

New bodies — of even greater beauty and comfort. Open bodies are longer and have new windshield with very low bottom panel, rubber weather stripped. All models have cowl lights and new instrument board refined and cut away for more leg room. The new radiator is of more beautiful design, made of non-rusting airplane metal. All closed models have new and exceptionally beautiful Fisher bodies with the new VV type closed body one piece windshield and automatic windshield wiper.

New finish — all models are now finished in Duco, the new finish that retains its color and lustre almost indefinitely and withstands very much harder usage. Here, again, is a quality feature hitherto not found in other low priced cars. The new Chevrolet open models and coach are finished in rich dark blue—on the sedan is used a beautiful aquamarine blue for lower panels and hood, upper panels in black — coupe with lower panels and hood in sage green, upper panels in black.

ADDRESS MADE BY EVANGELIST

New Castle Man Speaks to Large Crowd Last Night.

Rev. Kaye, New Castle, evangelist, delivered an address last night at the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, entitled "The Man on the Road." This evening he will hold services in the social room.

In his address last night he said in part as follows: "I want you to think now of that poor man laying down there on the road as Americanism, Liberty, Justice and the Christian re-

FOR CHAPPED AND SORE HANDS

One of the most annoying troubles at this season of the year is chapped hands and face. This unsightly and painful trouble can be quickly relieved with CORONA Wool Fat Ointment—it has no equal for all skin disorders. Apply to the hands at night, cover with a pair of cotton gloves or bandage and the next morning you will hardly believe your own eyes—the pain and soreness will be gone.

Corona is different from ordinary salves—it will not smart or blister the tenderest wound—soothes and stops pain quickly. Once used you will keep it on hand as a real "friend in need," for cuts, burns, scalds, old sores, bruises—any flesh wound, eczema, chilblains, etc. Large box only 60c at all druggists. Corona Manufacturing Co., Kenton, Ohio.

TELEPHONE SUPERVISOR

Tells of the Benefit Received by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leavenworth, Kansas. — "My work was long-distance operating and supervising, and I got into a very nervous state and was all run-down. I was easily annoyed at trifles, was extremely nervous and always had a tired feeling which made me awfully listless. Through a newspaper I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thinking it would help me I tried it. It quieted my nerves, I was less annoyed and more lively. It took away that dragging feeling and improved my health in every way. I was able to continue my work with more vigor than before and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all young girls. I am married now and have a big baby boy and am in the best of health. If I should ever have any trouble I'll take the Vegetable Compound again, for I know it will help me as it did before."—Mrs. O. W. THIEL, 925 Pawnee Street, Leavenworth, Kansas.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for all these troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT BOYCE CHURCH

Special services are being held every evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church in charge of Rev. J. L. Culp, church pastor.

Last evening he spoke on the subject of "Repentance." Large crowds are attending the meetings, which are accompanied by special singing and an orchestra.

Rev. Culp announced the following sermon subjects for the remainder of this week:

Tonight his subject will be "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God."

Wednesday, "Ye Must Be Born Again."

Thursday, "The Rich Man and Lazarus."

Friday, "Stewardship."

No services on Saturday evening.

Sunday school on Sunday morning at 9:45, preaching services at 11.

Noon Shop Meetings.

Shop meetings were held at noon today at the Laughlin, Louthan and Trenle plants in this section of the city. Rev. Harry G. Kaye, Rev. F. A. Dean and Rev. F. C. Roberts were the speakers. Leaders were Rev. J. O. Archer, W. H. Nagel and Rev. D. W. MacLeod.

Missionary Meeting.

Members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church will meet this evening in the parlors of the church. Regular program will be carried out.

I WAS FAT

NOW I ONLY WEIGH 130 POUNDS

Took Off 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks—No Diets, Exercises, Creams, Dangerous Drugs or Worthless Reducing Girdles.

Read About "SAN-GRI-NA" Latest French Way to Take Off FAT—It's Safe and Lasting.

"Dear Fat Folks: Let me tell you the truth about fat. Do not be fooled by believing you can check a fatty condition in your system by going through weakening diets, strenuous exercises, rubbing [illegible] using any of the old drugs for reducing. If these were effective, THERE WOULDN'T BE A FAT MAN OR WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY today, as diets, exercises, creams and old remedies have been tried for years. Do not think for a minute that you can take off fat by wearing so-called reducing girdles—it cannot be done. I personally know the horror of being fat—I went through it. Not only did I feel ashamed of my figure, but, worse still, I never was well or happy like the rest of the girls—I always had pains in my back or limbs, my feet ached, my head was dizzy—ALL THAT BECAUSE I WAS OVERTAXING MY FRAME WITH 50 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT WHICH NATURE DID NOT INTEND FOR ME TO CARRY. I had spent a small fortune trying everying known to reduce, but never succeeded until I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA,' the discovery of a French scientist, who has devoted his life to the study of 'obesity' and has been able to compound in a small, tasteless tablet the ingredients necessary to gradually and safely eliminate fat from the body. If you want to reduce and at the same time improve your health, go to-day to your drug store, get a package of 'SAN-GRI-NA' (make sure it is 'SAN-GRI-NA'), take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight go down. 'SAN-GRI-NA' is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only does it do away with fat, but it acts as a tonic on the entire system. Do not accept any substitute, as 'SAN-GRI-NA' is the only thing which ever reduced me, and which I can truthfully recommend."—Madame Elaine, New York City.

Rudolph Valentino Outdoes Himself in "A Sainted Devil"

Critics thought Rudolph Valentino had about reached the heights in screen entertainment when he chose Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire" as his "come-back" vehicle for Paramount after an absence of two years.

But "the sheik" has fairly outdone himself in "A Sainted Devil," his latest production, which opened at the Ceramic Theatre yesterday. It's a Joseph Henabery production, an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the magazine story, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach.

"A Sainted Devil" has to do with South America and South Americans—pictorially beautiful story of old Spanish customs against modern city life. It shows the virility of the Pampas against the sophisticated culture of Buenos Aires, the Paris of the Americans.

Valentino has a role that fits him to perfection. As a dashing young South American, fired by the pure Castillian blood of generations which courses through his veins, he makes a picture never to be forgotten.

If you are one of those who thought "Beaucaire" was just about the last word in lavish productions—gorgeous settings, superb portrayals, etc.—go see "A Sainted Devil" and be convinced that there's always something new under the sun. Here's the 'great lover' in the kind of a role the public likes to see him in—first as a young planter of wealthy parents, then a regular holy-terror, brooding over the loss of his lovely wife who was abducted on their wedding day.

What a part this is; and how Valentino does play it!

MUNY COURT MEASURE LOOMS

EMMONS WILL SPONSOR BILL AT SESSION OF OHIO ASSEMBLY

Proposal Abolishes Township Justice of Peace Offices.

ACTION URGED

Plan Approved by Civic and Labor Organizations.

A bill providing for the establishment of a municipal court in East Liverpool, vetoed by Governor A. V. Donahey at the last session of the legislature, will be re-introduced, State Representative Ralph W. Emmons, of East Rochester, advised local friends today.

Demand for such a court here and elsewhere followed many complaints against alleged practices of justices of the peace.

Fees Go Into Treasury

The municipal court would not only handle all legation now filed before justices of the peace whose fees are said to be large, but also would hear police cases.

Fees now going into private coffers would revert to the city treasury, while court officials would be paid fixed salaries.

Representative Emmons, with other members of the legislature, is working out a uniform municipal court plan which Governor Donahey has indicated he will support. Various drafts have been submitted and are being considered by Emmons and his co-workers.

Hopeful of Donahey Support.

As soon as the proposed uniform draft is completed, Emmons will submit a copy of it to an East Liverpool committee. If the measure is found to be unsatisfactory, he will present a revised copy of the bill which was passed at the last session of the legislature.

The governor has approved bills authorizing municipal courts in Springfield and Canton, and local friends express the hope that he will not block the passage of a similar measure for East Liverpool.

The proposed municipal court when it was advocated here two years ago had the support of civic, labor and many other organizations. It would have become operative January 1, 1924 had it become a law.

'PLANT' LIQUOR IN VEGETABLES

Police Probe Report Made by Market Street Grocer.

Police today are investigating an alleged attempt to "plant" a bottle containing a small quantity of whiskey in a basket of vegetables in the Nick Galepo grocery store, Market street.

Galepo reported the affair to Captain Mason C. Conley after he, at the point of a gun, compelled one of three strangers to remove the liquor.

The visitors, Galepo declared, dropped the whiskey bottle in the basket when he went to the rear of the store to comply with their request for a quart of milk. After the grocer made change for 25 cents, 14 cents of which was paid for the milk, he leaned over the counter and saw the "planted" bottle.

Galepo, without further ado, reached under the counter and obtained a revolver. With the other hand, he picked up a hatchet. Thus armed he ordered the men to remove the whiskey bottle. The strangers then left the store.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3.—More terror struck at plague-ridden Nome today.

Rumors were circulated in the camp that the precious serum rushed across the icy tundra by dog teams had been rendered useless by freezing.

Dr. Curtis Welch, Nome's lone physician, who is fighting the epidemic, is making exhaustive tests of the serum and said he would know tonight if freezing had robbed the remedy of its efficacy.

With reports that the daring race to bring into Nome 300,000 units of the anti-toxin may have been made in vain, it was officially said there were new cases in camp. Official confirmation of these reports may not be made until tonight when the board of health will meet.

Pardon Saves Orphanage Chief From Term in Workhouse.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 3.—Quoting the Galilean injunction, "Go and sin no more," Governor Donahey today granted a pardon, effective at once, to E. E. Webb, 60, superintendent of the Fairmount Children's Home, Alliance, so he will not be forced to serve a 60-day workhouse sentence imposed July 14, 1924, after he had pleaded guilty to an indictment charging assault and rioteous conspiracy in connection with the flogging of William Shaw, near Massillon, April 9, 1924.

The state supreme court last Tuesday refused an appeal in the case. Webb's counsel contended Webb had agreed with the prosecuting officials to plead guilty on condition that no workhouse sentence be imposed.

In granting the pardon, Governor Donahey said:

"Shall we, as a matter of law, send him to the workhouse in the sunset days of his useful life, because he once erred, or shall we extend mercy and charity? The Savior said 'Go and sin no more.'"

ANIMOSITY AGAINST TURKS FLAMES; DEMONSTRATIONS IN MANY TOWNS

Greek Assembly Votes to Reject Geneva Protocol, Declaring National Honor Has Been Impugned and Must be Defended at All Costs Five Are Killed as Tricala Protests.

ANGORA, Turkey, Feb. 3.—The Turkish government was prepared today to take a positive stand and refuse to submit to arbitration its action in expelling the Patriarch Constantinos from Constantinople, it was said in government circles.

A note being formulated in reply to Greece's note of protest will emphasize, it was said, the Turkish viewpoint that the patriarch was expelled under terms of the Lausanne treaty.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 3.—Animosity against the Turk flamed anew today. Demonstrations were reported in many towns and villages as a protest against the expulsion of the ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople.

The Greek assembly voted to reject the Geneva protocol, determined, it was pointed out, to proceed unhampered by other forces in its purpose to settle its score with Turkey.

Premier and Army Chiefs Meet.

"We shall use our efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement," said Premier Michalakopoulous, "but we have our sacred duties to uphold. Our National Honor has been impugned and it must be defended at all costs."

The Premier consulted with army chiefs on the relative strength of the Greek army. General Mazarakis reported, it was understood, that the army was prepared to defend the Nation's Honor.

LONDON, Feb. 3—Five persons, communists and police were killed, four were wounded and many Communists were arrested today at Tricala, a Greek town in Thessaly, when Communists staged a demonstration in opposition to Greece going to war, according to a dispatch to the Central News.

The Communists went to police headquarters, the postoffice and other public buildings and broke windows. The police fired on the Communists, using blank cartridges. The Communists returned the fire, using loaded cartridges. The police then resorted to real cartridges.

Police Continue Probe of Robbery At Stein's Store

Police today continued their investigation into the looting of the Stein dry goods store Saturday night, after releasing two suspects last evening.

Chief Hugh McDermott declared that the wrecking bar, which was used by the thieves in opening the skylight window, had been found in possession of John Griffith of Norton street, who discovered the robbery Sunday morning when he went to the roof of the Stein store to clean off the snow. Griffith asserts that the bar was stolen from him Saturday evening and returned Sunday morning.

It developed late yesterday that an unsuccessful attempt was made to loot the Famous store, adjoining the Stein store, Saturday night. Foot prints were found in the snow back of the Famous store.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The house on its dignity today and refused to have anything to do with the senate's postal pay bill. House leaders continued plans to rebuke the senate for invading the house's constitutional right of originating revenue legislation.

A compromise bill will be brought out before Friday, but there had been no determination today as to what form it will take. House leaders said they would make their bill produce the entire $68,000,000 revenue needed to grant the postal workers a raise. The senate bill raises but $40,000,000.

GASOLINE TAX BILL ASSAILED

O. L. Haymond, Akron, Speaks at Rotary Meeting.

The proposed Brown gasoline tax bill, now pending before the state legislature, was termed "the greatest injustice ever attempted on the citizens of Ohio" by O. L. Haymond, manager of the Akron Automobile club, in an address before approximately 50 members of the Rotary club and their guests at the weekly meeting in the Y. M. C. A. dining hall today.

"At the present time, the automobile owner pays a tax on the horsepower of his machine," said Haymond. "If you own a truck you pay an additional tax on the capacity and weight of your machine. Now you are asked to pay a tax of two cents on every gallon of gasoline which you consume.

"The Ohio State Automobile club, with which the Columbiana County Motor club is affiliated, has urged that the license fee be brought down to a minimum—a flat rate, say of $3—and then levy a gas tax of two cents. By this manner, the automobile owner who gets the most use of the streets will pay the bulk of the bill. You pay an excise tax of five per cent on your machine at the time

Princeton, W. Va., Lad in Excellent Physical Condition and Carries Extraordinary Amount of Class Work.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 3.—"If you're sleeping more than an hour and a half each day, your ruining yourself physically."

This startling statement came today from Anderson Fry of Princeton, W. Va., a freshman student at Marshall college here, who has slept only ten hours a week for the past five years.

Sleeping more than 90 minutes a day he declares is a criminal waste of time.

"Some folks say I'm crazy," he said smilingly, but they don't call a person crazy if he cuts down on his eating, and I think it's just as bad to oversleep as to overeat."

Radical Ideas Worry Parents.

Fry's radical ideas regarding sleeping have caused his parents much worry, according to his own statement, they may just as well give up their efforts to make him sleep more than he does.

"I don't intend to spend a third of my life asleep," he said doggedly, "and if I've gotten away with it for five years I can keep it up from now on."

Fry apparently is in excellent physical condition. Recently, after sleeping only 30 minutes during the night, he swam the 50-foot pool in the college gymnasium in 9.6 seconds.

Although 16 hours' class work a week comprises the average student's program, Fry is taking 20 hours' work after permission to carry such a large amount was granted him by the state.

Course of Study Difficult.

His course of study is considered one of the most difficult available, the subjects including English, political science, economics, English history, journalism and physical education. In the freshman mental tests he earned excellent ratings and was credited with eight points above the average.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 3.—Animosity against the Turk flamed anew today. Demonstrations were reported in many towns and villages as a protest against the expulsion of the ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople.

The Greek assembly voted to reject the Geneva protocol, determined, it was pointed out, to proceed unhampered by other forces in its purpose to settle its score with Turkey.

Premier and Army Chiefs Meet.

"We shall use our efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement," said Premier Michalakopoulous, "but we have our sacred duties to uphold. Our National Honor has been impugned and it must be defended at all costs."

The Premier consulted with army chiefs on the relative strength of the Greek army. General Mazarakis reported, it was understood, that the army was prepared to defend the Nation's Honor.

LONDON, Feb. 3—Five persons, communists and police were killed, four were wounded and many Communists were arrested today at Tricala, a Greek town in Thessaly, when Communists staged a demonstration in opposition to Greece going to war, according to a dispatch to the Central News.

The Communists went to police headquarters, the postoffice and other public buildings and broke windows. The police fired on the Communists, using blank cartridges. The Communists returned the fire, using loaded cartridges. The police then resorted to real cartridges.

Police Continue Probe of Robbery At Stein's Store

Police today continued their investigation into the looting of the Stein dry goods store Saturday night, after releasing two suspects last evening.

Chief Hugh McDermott declared that the wrecking bar, which was used by the thieves in opening the skylight window, had been found in possession of John Griffith of Norton street, who discovered the robbery Sunday morning when he went to the roof of the Stein store to clean off the snow. Griffith asserts that the bar was stolen from him Saturday evening and returned Sunday morning.

It developed late yesterday that an unsuccessful attempt was made to loot the Famous store, adjoining the Stein store, Saturday night. Foot prints were found in the snow back of the Famous store.

House, on Dignity, Refuses to Act on Postal Pay Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The house on its dignity today and refused to have anything to do with the senate's postal pay bill. House leaders continued plans to rebuke the senate for invading the house's constitutional right of originating revenue legislation.

A compromise bill will be brought out before Friday, but there had been no determination today as to what form it will take. House leaders said they would make their bill produce the entire $68,000,000 revenue needed to grant the postal workers a raise. The senate bill raises but $40,000,000.

GASOLINE TAX BILL ASSAILED

O. L. Haymond, Akron, Speaks at Rotary Meeting.

The proposed Brown gasoline tax bill, now pending before the state legislature, was termed "the greatest injustice ever attempted on the citizens of Ohio" by O. L. Haymond, manager of the Akron Automobile club, in an address before approximately 50 members of the Rotary club and their guests at the weekly meeting in the Y. M. C. A. dining hall today.

"At the present time, the automobile owner pays a tax on the horsepower of his machine," said Haymond. "If you own a truck you pay an additional tax on the capacity and weight of your machine. Now you are asked to pay a tax of two cents on every gallon of gasoline which you consume.

"The Ohio State Automobile club, with which the Columbiana County Motor club is affiliated, has urged that the license fee be brought down to a minimum—a flat rate, say of $3—and then levy a gas tax of two cents. By this manner, the automobile owner who gets the most use of the streets will pay the bulk of the bill. You pay an excise tax of five per cent on your machine at the time

Princeton, W. Va., Lad in Excellent Physical Condition and Carries Extraordinary Amount of Class Work.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 3.—"If you're sleeping more than an hour and a half each day, your ruining yourself physically."

This startling statement came today from Anderson Fry of Princeton, W. Va., a freshman student at Marshall college here, who has slept only ten hours a week for the past five years.

Sleeping more than 90 minutes a day he declares is a criminal waste of time.

"Some folks say I'm crazy," he said smilingly, but they don't call a person crazy if he cuts down on his eating, and I think it's just as bad to oversleep as to overeat."

Radical Ideas Worry Parents.

Fry's radical ideas regarding sleeping have caused his parents much worry, according to his own statement, they may just as well give up their efforts to make him sleep more than he does.

"I don't intend to spend a third of my life asleep," he said doggedly, "and if I've gotten away with it for five years I can keep it up from now on."

Fry apparently is in excellent physical condition. Recently, after sleeping only 30 minutes during the night, he swam the 50-foot pool in the college gymnasium in 9.6 seconds.

Although 16 hours' class work a week comprises the average student's program, Fry is taking 20 hours' work after permission to carry such a large amount was granted him by the state.

Course of Study Difficult.

His course of study is considered one of the most difficult available, the subjects including English, political science, economics, English history, journalism and physical education. In the freshman mental tests he earned excellent ratings and was credited with eight points above the average.

CUT THRU ROCK TO SAVE MAN

Freedom for Boulder-imprisoned Victim is in Sight.

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 3.—Life and freedom, despaired of as hours dragged into days, again was in sight today for Floyd Collins, imprisoned in sand cave, beneath a seven-ton boulder, as a mine rescue crew was marshaled to cut a new passage to the prisoner along lines laid out by expert railroad engineers sent to the scene by the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Such a method, it was virtually admitted today, holds the only hope of rescue. Use of the automatic drill was abandoned when it was found the passage to the point where Collins lies half submerged in icy waters from melting snows, was too narrow to make it effective. Scores of volunteers still continue to peck away at the imprisoning rocks with hand drills, but today, 80 hours after Collins was caught beneath the boulder, loosened in a minature landslide, it was admitted these efforts have been all futile.

The engineers, after surveying the cave, however, expressed a belief that a new tunnel to the imprisoned man could be cut in time to save his life, and it is on this which today's rescue efforts probably will be centered.

Collins today lay five inches nearer the cave's mouth, at a spot to which he was pulled after his brother, Homer, had crawled to him and placed a harness about his body. Drain pipes have been laid in an effort to carry off the water which is rapidly rising in the cave and an army telephone line has been set up by means of which the imprisoned man talks with his rescuers.

The pain of his position and the low temperatures prevailing in the cave have seriously weakened Collins, however, and physicians expressed an opinion that another 24 hours may prove fatal.

The entire engineering resources of the state of Kentucky have been placed at the disposal of rescuers by the governor.

companied him, that there was a roaring in his ears—a sensation which he had never before experienced. Another girl, who was almost stone deaf, before the service, said she could hear better afterwards.

Many Seek Assistance

Persons afflicted with rheumatism, blindness, cripleness and deformities, were among those attending the service, testified that they had been assisted through divine powers.

Because of the numerous requests which are being received for assistance, Formby, beginning Wednesday, will hold afternoon and evening services in the Nazarene church headquarters. Many persons, suffering from complaints which make it impossible to leave the house at night, requested afternoon services.

Formby, who came here less than two weeks ago on business in connection with a tile and art manufacturing plant which he has erected at Grand Crossing, is being deluged with appeals for assistance. He has been making many outside calls, but in view of the demand for his services he is unable to answer all calls promptly. Cards have been placed at the Thompson House, which persons unable to attend the meetings are requested to fill out.

of its purchase, in addition to all the rest of these taxes.

"The organized motorists of Ohio are prepared to carry this fight against an unjust gasoline tax for two years if necessary to defeat it. The state automobile club has a membership of 160,000 who will lend their influence to oppose any movement to place more taxes on the motorist, who already is over taxed.

Rev. George M. Formby, faith healer, of Grand Crossing, Fla.; also attended the luncheon and addressed Rotarians regarding his work among the blind, crippled, deaf and others suffering from various forms of illness.

President C. R. Boyce presided. Frank Wehner, automobile dealer, was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

President Boyce announced the appointment of Edwin McClure and Dr. Joseph Cartwright as members of the table committee for the next month.

DOGS AND PLANE RACE WITH DEATH OVER ICY WASTES

Twenty Siberian huskies, the finest team of dogs in all Alaska, arrived in plague-stricken Nome yesterday with diphtheria serum carried 1,000 miles over Alaskan snows. Meanwhile preparations are being made to link Nome with the outside world with an airplane service, in order to give the best medical aid to the one fourth of the 700 residents who are suffering from diphtheria. 1,064 Persons Attend Y. M. Gym Classes During January

Sixty-one gymnasium classes, which met in the Y. M. C. A. during January, attracted 1,064 persons, according to a report today, of Physical Director T. F. Sheffer. The swimming pool and shower baths were visited by 1,858 persons.

Besides the regular class sessions, 35 basketball games were played on the gym floor with 510 participants. These games include those scheduled in the Industrial and Sunday School leagues.

The regular class schedule will be followed during February. An added feature will be the opening of a four-team indoor baseball league for men employed in industrial works. Tournaments for members of the boys' division will end February 17.

Each class session consists of calisthenics, accompanied by piano music, general work using the appartus and mass games of all sorts. Volleyball, baseball and basketball are the most popular games. While the class attendance is large, there is still room for new members in all regular groups.

drove the dog team in the final dash here, said that he made every effort to prevent freezing of the anti-toxin, he, as well as the other drivers, wrapping it on the dash over the frozen trails in a sleeping bag, government mail bag and two heavy robes, but the temperatures running as low as 45 and 50 degrees below zero prevailed on portions of the trip he said.

But despite reports that the new serum may prove useless and that the epidemic was bringing new cases, Nome faced its plague with a strong heart and for a time forced its sufferers to pay tribute to the men who made the fight against death.

Kassen and his 13 black Siberian dogs, were the heroes of the camp.

Veteran Mail Carrier Praised.

Kassen was forced to tell again and again his story of the race and revealed that the outstanding driver of the battle against the elements was John Sommers, veteran mail carrier.

Sommers, said Kassen, left Kaltag on his leg of the dash at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and reached Unalakleet at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after driving all through the night.

His lap of the course was through heavy timberland over deep and drifted snow, huge avalanches of snow blocking the trail. It was the most difficult leg of the race, yet despite the great difficulties he encountered, Sommers pushed on and on and finally triumphed.

By GUNNAR KASSEN.

[The story of the driver of the dog teams in the final lap of the race for humanity's sake from Nena to diphtheria-stricken Nome as told to the International News Service].

Copyright, 1925, I. N. S.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3. — My big black dog Balto must get all the credit as far as my part of the journey goes.

In the long trek across the snow-covered and blizzardy trail it was Balto's eyes that saw when human eyes had failed.

Balto is the leader of my 13 black Siberian Malamutes and I do not think any other leader in Alaska could have brought me in safely.

It was my dog's intelligence and bravery that won in the face of the greatest odds.

I wish I could tell you the story of the whole race, but I am so sleepy.

Seppelia and Olson Aid

Leonard Seppelia finished his run 120 miles from Nome, making a 40-mile mush near Bonanza to deliver the packet of serum to Olson, of Bluff, at Golovin. Olson gave the package to me at Bluff and my leg of the race was on.

I left Bluff at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

It was a storm all right.

It took four hours and 20 minutes for the first 20 miles. I had to travel in a fierce storm, a regular blizzard.

There was eight feet of snow on the ground at one point. Then how dark. I passed Solomon's roadhouse at Safety without seeing it. I could not see the trail or the trail marks. Just Balto was there going up and down, up and down.

Tribute to Other Drivers.

I was supposed to meet Ed. Rohn, another relay man there, but it was so dark I missed him and so decided to continue on to Nome. I thought it best—better than cause delay.

Now the blizzard was abaiting somewhat but still I could not see.

I decided to trust to fate and Balto. I was sure he would come through. He did. But my dogs were just in the last act. To the other drivers and dogs most credit is due. They had the harder much, more difficulties.

And from them I know I can say as for myself—we were glad to serve.

Los Angeles Child Says She Attempted to Poison Eight Others.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Police today were investigating one of the strangest cases ever brought before the police of California—that of Alsa Thompson, aged 7, who has confessed, the officers say, that she caused the death of her twin sisters and a woman by poison and attempted to poison eight other persons.

The girl was taken into custody upon request of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Platts, with whom the child boarded, after a strange solution from radio batteries and antepaste was spread over the food, the Platts, with their infant daughter, as well as Maxine Thompson, the girl's two-year-old sister, were about to eat.

According to police, the girl frankly admitted the poison attempt and that she had caused the death of her twin sisters by ground glass two years ago, while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, were residing in Dauphin, Manitoba. She further asserted, the police claim, that she caused the death of a Mrs. Price, with whom she once lived, by administering rat poison to her.

"I guess I was just mean and liked to see them suffer," the girl is said to have declared in admitting the poisonings. In speaking of the death of one of her little sisters, she showed only slight trace of emotion, saying "She was so pretty—I was sorry I had given her anything."

Sleeping More

In addition to keeping up with his gruelling study grind, Fry finds time to earn his upkeep by waiting on the table in the girls' dormitory. Then, in between minutes, he is circulation manager of The "Parthenon," the college paper, writes several columns of feature copy a day, is cheer leader for the college teams and is an active member of the Campus Y. M. C. A.

"Next summer," he said, "I'm going to get a 16-hour-a-day job so that I'll have plenty of money when I return to college in the fall."

Two Persons Hurt As Result of Falls On Icy Sidewalks

Icy streets and sidewalks which developed following the rain Monday morning was responsible for two accidents here yesterday.

Bert Sayre, 40, Railroad street, head warehouseman at the T. A. McNicol pottery, suffered a broken nose and numerous body bruises, when he slipped from an overhead trestle, spanning the railroad tracks near the pottery and fell about 15 feet to the ground. He was removed to the City hospital in an ambulance. His injuries were dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Mrs. K. R. Seckman, Ceramic street, Pleasant Heights, sustained a fracture of the left wrist when she fell near her home about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fracture was reduced by Dr. H. A. Turk. An x-ray examination of the injury was to be made by Dr. Turk.

Man Who Wounded Two is Fined and Given Jail Sentence

Ginardo Robert, Second street, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to serve 45 days in jail, when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery before Judge James G. Moore in common pleas court, Lisbon, today. He also agreed to pay the hospital bills of his two victims.

Robert is alleged to have shot and wounded two fellow countrymen during a street brawl on West Second street a few months ago. He pleaded not guilty following his indictment.

The defendant was represented by Attorneys William Moore of Lisbon and James O'Grady of Wellsville.

FIRE DAMAGES EAST END HOME

Walls of the kitchen and the attic of the home occupied by Miss Bell Judy, Holliday street, were scorched by fire which is believed to have started from a hot plate, about 12:25 o'clock this afternoon.

Two lines of chemical hose were used in combating the blaze, the alarm being answered by the No. 1 and No. 2 departments. The loss is said to have been covered by insurance.

Laborer's Finger Amputated.

Blaine Prosser, First avenue, chauffeur for the Enterprise Coal company, suffered the amputation of his left middle finger at the City hospital, early this afternoon, as the result of an accident while unloading a car of coal at the Walnut street yards. Prosser's finger was caught in one of the doors of the car, being so badly mashed that amputation was necessary. The operation was performed by Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

Bomb Kills One, Injures 13.

CUETA, Morocco, Feb. 3—One person was killed and 13 were seriously injured today by the explosion of an aerial bomb in the customs office. The bomb was dropped accidentally by a Spanish airplane on a bombardment flight against the Moroccan tribes.

NATIONAL VIGILANCE COMMITTEE'S TWO WARNINGS TO INVESTORS

The National Vigilance committee, in a circular bulletin, to the Chamber of Commerce, warns prospective investors against dealings with a Kentucky corporation, traveling under the name of The Kentucky Reel Town Show Corporation, a Lexington motion picture concern.

The company is now offering 1,500 shares of stock for sale at $100 per share. According to the Vigilance committee, "the proposition is not firmly enough established nor has it sufficient tangible assets to warrant calling this offering of debenture bonds an "investment."

Another bulletin tells of operations of James W. DeCamp, who is now president of the DeCamp Consolidated Glass Casket company of Muskogee, Oklahoma. DeCamp recently was sentenced to an 18-month term in the penitentiary on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. It is alleged that investors in the concern lost approximately $165,000.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A strong forward movement in prices of railroad stocks was the feature of early trading today. Oils were not ready to relinquish their position of leadership and sales in this department of the market were still in large volume, with a number of well known shares establishing higher price records.

Because of their comparative inactive and backwardness, the developments in the transportation industry, which came today in the report of the American Railroad association, showing a total of 924,254 cars loaded last week, an unprecendented volume of domestic trade for this time of year. A number of the divided rails like San Francisco common and Northern Pacific common have been "behind the market" in comparison with other five per cent rails, like Baltimore and Ohio speculative attention has been focused on them this wek.

Frisco common moved up two points to a new high at 66¼; Missouri Pacific common and preferred: Missouri Kansag and Texas common and preferred: Southern railway. Great Northern pfd., and St. Paul stocks were the most active in a good buying movement in the rails.

Next to show the effects of concentrated buying were the steel stocks. With Gulf States two points higher, as the leader, the independent steel stocks pushed forward to higher price levels. Crucible was also up two points in spirited buying, Republic gained two at 60¼; Bethlehem and Replogle were fractionally higher.

Studebaker, White, Maxwell, Mack trucks and other of the motor shares commanded the best market in a week or more. Studebaker gained more than a point at 45½; Mack trucks was up one at 138 and General Motors, Maxwell and Willys Overland fractionally higher.

Sinclair company, Magnolia corporation and Standard Oil of Louisiana announced advances of one and two cents a gallon in gasoline prices, but profit taking was under way in some of the oil stocks in the second hour and prices declined from a fraction to a full point, Sinclair losing 1⅜ at 22⅞.

Grain markets were slightly irregular in the early trading. Cotton prices displayed an upward trend. Call money renewed at 3½ percent, unchanged.

Grandmother's Cough Remedy—Pine Tar and Honey—Still Best

A well-known specialist said recently that although many wonderful medical discoveries have been made in recent years, nobody has found a better and quicker healing agent for coughs, chest colds, spasmodic croup, hoarseness, throat tickling and other throat and bronchial troubles than good old pine-tar and honey. Our grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house, and they raised large families. It still remains one of the few medicines that can be given to young and old alike, as it contains no harmful drugs.

The pine-tar quickly soothes and heals soreness and irritation, and by loosening the phlegm removes the actual cause of the coughing. The honey is not only pleasant to the taste but also very soothing to the throat.

The kind that has been used with never-failing success in thousands of families for years is that known as Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. If you want the best, be sure to get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 30c at any good druggists.

Collins today lay five inches nearer the cave's mouth, at a spot to which he was pulled after his brother, Homer, had crawled to him and placed a harness about his body. Drain pipes have been laid in an effort to carry off the water which is rapidly rising in the cave and an army telephone line has been set up by means of which the imprisoned man talks with his rescuers.

The pain of his position and the low temperatures prevailing in the cave have seriously weakened Collins, however, and physicians expressed an opinion that another 24 hours may prove fatal.

The entire engineering resources of the state of Kentucky have been placed at the disposal of rescuers by the governor.

companied him, that there was a roaring in his ears—a sensation which he had never before experienced. Another girl, who was almost stone deaf, before the service, said she could hear better afterwards.

Many Seek Assistance

Persons afflicted with rheumatism, blindness, crippleness and deformities, were among those attending the service, testified that they had been assisted through divine powers.

Because of the numerous requests which are being received for assistance., Formby, beginning Wednesday, will hold afternoon and evening services in the Nazarene church headquarters. Many persons, suffering from complaints which make it impossible to leave the house at night, requested afternoon services.

Formby, who came here less than two weeks ago on business in connection with a tile and art manufacturing plant which he has erected at Grand Crossing, is being deluged with appeals for assistance. He has been making many outside calls, but in view of the demand for his services he is unable to answer all calls promptly. Cards have been placed at the Thompson House, which persons unable to attend the meetings are requested to fill out.

of its purchase, in addition to all the rest of these taxes.

"The organized motorists of Ohio are prepared to carry this fight against an unjust gasoline tax for two years if necessary to defeat it. The state automobile club has a membership of 160,000 who will lend their influence to oppose any movement to place more taxes on the motorist, who already is over taxed.

Rev. George M. Formby, faith healer, of Grand Crossing, Fla.; also attended the luncheon and addressed Rotarians regarding his work among the blind, crippled, deaf and others suffering from various forms of illness.

President C. R. Boyce presided. Frank Wehner, automobile dealer, was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

President Boyce announced the appointment of Edwin McClure and Dr. Joseph Cartwright as members of the table committee for the next month.

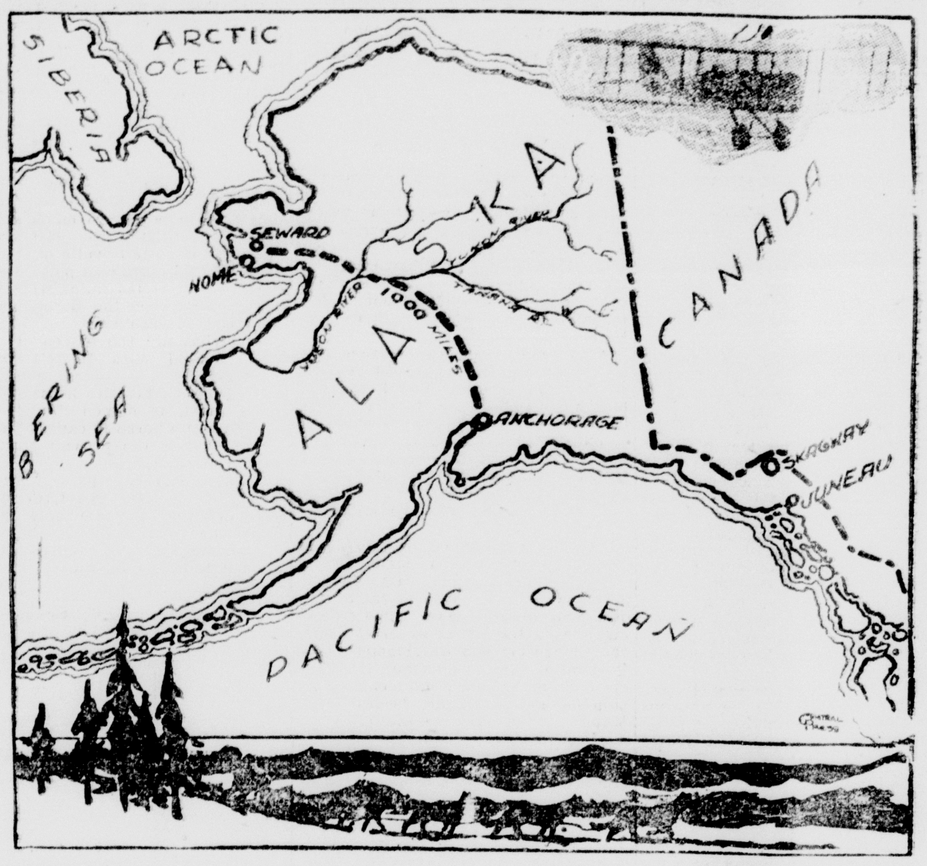
DOGS AND PLANE RACE WITH DEATH OVER ICY WASTES



Twenty Siberian huskies, the finest team of dogs in all Alaska, arrived in plague-stricken Nome yesterday with diphtheria serum carried 1,000 miles over Alaskan snows. Meanwhile preparations are being made to link Nome with the outside world with an airplane service, in order to give the best medical aid to the one fourth of the 700 residents who are suffering from diphtheria. 1,064 Persons Attend Y. M. Gym Classes During January

Sixty-one gymnasium classes, which met in the Y. M. C. A. during January, attracted 1,064 persons, according to a report today of Physical Director T. F. Sheffer. The swimming pool and shower baths were visited by 1,358 persons.

Besides the regular class sessions, 35 basketball games were played on the gym floor with 510 participants. These games include those scheduled in the Industrial and Sunday School leagues.

The regular class schedule will be followed during February. An added feature will be the opening of a four-team indoor baseball league for men employed in industrial works. Tournaments for members of the boys' division will end February 17.

Each class session consists of calisthenics, accompanied by piano music, general work using the apparatus and mass games of all sorts. Volleyball, baseball and basketball are the most popular games. While the class attendance is large, there is still room for new members in all regular groups.

drove the dog team in the final dash here, said that he made every effort to prevent freezing of the anti-toxin, he, as well as the other drivers, wrapping it on the dash over the frozen trails in a sleeping bag, government mail bag and two heavy robes, but the temperatures running as low as 45 and 50 degrees below zero prevailed on portions of the trip he said.

But despite reports that the new serum may prove useless and that the epidemic was bringing new cases, Nome faced its plague with a strong heart and for a time forced its sufferers to pay tribute to the men who made the fight against death.

Kassen and his 13 black Siberian dogs, were the heroes of the camp.

Veteran Mail Carrier Praised.

Kassen was forced to tell again and again his story of the race and revealed that the outstanding driver of the battle against the elements was John Sommers, veteran mail carrier.

Sommers, said Kassen, left Kaltag on his leg of the dash at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and reached Unalakleet at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after driving all through the night.

His lap of the course was through heavy timberland over deep and drifted snow, huge avalanches of snow blocking the trail. It was the most difficult leg of the race, yet despite the great difficulties he encountered, Sommers pushed on and on and finally triumphed.

By GUNNAR KASSEN.

[The story of the driver of the dog teams in the final lap of the race for humanity's sake from Nena to diphtheria-stricken Nome as told to the International News Service.]

Copyright, 1925, I. N. S.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3. — My big black dog Balto must get all the credit as far as my part of the journey goes.

In the long trek across the snow-covered and blizzardy trail it was Balto's eyes that saw when human eyes had failed.

Balto is the leader of my 13 black Siberian Malamutes and I do not think any other leader in Alaska could have brought me in safely.

It was my dog's intelligence and bravery that won in the face of the greatest odds.

I wish I could tell you the story of the whole race, but I am so sleepy.

Seppella and Olson Aid

Leonard Seppella finished his run 120 miles from Nome, making a 40-mile mush near Bonanza to deliver the packet of serum to Olson, of Bluff, at Golovin. Olson gave the package to me at Bluff and my leg of the race was on.

I left Bluff at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

It was a storm all right.

It took four hours and 20 minutes for the first 20 miles. I had to travel in a fierce storm, a regular blizzard. There was eight feet of snow on the ground at one point. Then how dark. I passed Solomon's roadhouse at Safety without seeing it. I could not see the trail or the trail marks. Just Balto was there going up and down, up and down.

Tribute to Other Drivers.

I was supposed to meet Ed. Rohn, another relay man there, but it was so dark I missed him and so decided to continue on to Nome. I thought it best—better than cause delay.

Now the blizzard was abaiting somewhat but still I could not see.

I decided to trust to fate and Balto.

I was sure he would come through. He did. But my dogs were just in the last act. To the other drivers and dogs most credit is due. They had the harder much more difficulties.

And from them I know I can say as for myself—we were glad to serve.

Los Angeles Child Says She Attempted to Poison Eight Others.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Police today were investigating one of the strangest cases ever brought before the police of California—that of Alsa Thompson, aged 7, who has confessed, the officers say, that she caused the death of her twin sisters and a woman by poison and attempted to poison eight other persons.

The girl was taken into custody upon request of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Platts, with whom the child boarded, after a strange solution from radio batteries and antepaste was spread over the food, the Platts, with their infant daughter, as well as Maxine Thompson, the girl's two-year-old sister, were about to eat.

According to police, the girl frankly admitted the poison attempt and that she had caused the death of her twin sisters by ground glass two years ago, while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, were residing in Dauphin, Manitoba. She further asserted, the police claim, that she caused the death of a Mrs. Price, with whom she once lived, by administering rat poison to her.

"I guess I was just mean and liked to see them suffer," the girl is said to have declared in admitting the poisonings. In speaking of the death of one of her little sisters, she showed only slight trace of emotion, saying "She was so pretty—I was sorry I had given her anything."

Two Persons Hurt As Result of Falls On Icy Sidewalks

Icy streets and sidewalks which developed following the rain Monday morning was responsible for two accidents here yesterday.

Bert Sayre, 40, Railroad street, head warehouseman at the T. A. McNicol pottery, suffered a broken nose and numerous body bruises, when he slipped from an overhead trestle, spanning the railroad tracks near the pottery and fell about 15 feet to the ground. He was removed to the City hospital in an ambulance. His injuries were dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

Mrs. K. R. Seckman, Ceramic street, Pleasant Heights, sustained a fracture of the left wrist when she fell near her home about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fracture was reduced by Dr. H. A. Turk. An x-ray examination of the injury was to be made by Dr. Turk.

Man Who Wounded Two is Fined and Given Jail Sentence

Ginardo Robert, Second street, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to serve 45 days in jail, when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery before Judge James G. Moore in common pleas court, Lisbon, today. He also agreed to pay the hospital bills of his two victims.

Robert is alleged to have shot and wounded two fellow countrymen during a street brawl on West Second street a few months ago. He pleaded not guilty following his indictment.

The defendant was represented by Attorneys William Moore of Lisbon and James O'Grady of Wellsville.

FIRE DAMAGES EAST END HOME

Walls of the kitchen and the attic of the home occupied by Miss Bell Judy, Holliday street, were scorched by fire which is believed to have started from a hot plate, about 12:25 o'clock this afternoon.

Two lines of chemical hose were used in combating the blaze, the alarm being answered by the No. 1 and No. 2 departments. The loss is said to have been covered by insurance.

Laborer's Finger Amputated.

Blaine Prosser, First avenue, chauffeur for the Enterprise Coal company, suffered the amputation of his left middle finger at the City hospital, early this afternoon, as the result of an accident while unloading a car of coal at the Walnut street yards. Prosser's finger was caught in one of the doors of the car, being so badly mashed that amputation was necessary. The operation was performed by Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

Bomb Kills One, Injures 13.

CUETA, Morocco, Feb. 3—One person was killed and 13 were seriously injured today by the explosion of an aerial bomb in the customs office. The bomb was dropped accidentally by a Spanish airplane on a bombardment flight against the Moroccan tribes.

NATIONAL VIGILANCE COMMITTEE'S TWO WARNINGS TO INVESTORS

The National Vigilance committee, in a circular bulletin to the Chamber of Commerce, warns prospective investors against dealings with a Kentucky corporation, traveling under the name of The Kentucky Reel Town Show Corporation, a Lexington motion picture concern.

The company is now offering 1,500 shares of stock for sale at $100 per share. According to the Vigilance committee, "the proposition is not firmly enough established nor has it sufficient tangible assets to warrant calling this offering of debenture bonds an "investment."

Another bulletin tells of operations of James W. DeCamp, who is now president of the DeCamp Consolidated Glass Casket company of Muskogee, Oklahoma. DeCamp recently was sentenced to an 18-month term in the penitientiary on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. It is alleged that investors in the concern lost approximately $165,000.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A strong forward movement in prices of railroad stocks was the feature of early trading today. Oils were not ready to relinquish their position of leadership and sales in this department of the market were still in large volume, with a number of well known shares establishing higher price records.

Because of their comparative inactive and backwardness, the developments in the transportation industry, which came today in the report of the American Railroad association, showing a total of 924,254 cars loaded last week, an unprecendented volume of domestic trade for this time of year. A number of the divided rails like San Francisco common and Northern Pacific common have been "behind the market" in comparison with other five per cent rails, like Baltimore and Ohio speculative attention has been focused on them this wek.

Frisco common moved up two points to a new high at 66¼; Missouri Pacific common and preferred: Missouri Kansas and Texas common and preferred: Southern railway. Great Northern pfd., and St. Paul stocks were the most active in a good buying movement in the rails.

Next to show the effects of concentrated buying were the steel stocks. With Gulf States two points higher, as the leader, the independent steel stocks pushed forward to higher price levels. Crucible was also up two points in spirited buying, Republic gained two at 60¼; Bethlehem and Replogle were fractionally higher.

Studebaker, White, Maxwell, Mack trucks and other of the motor shares commanded the best market in a week or more. Studebaker gained more than a point at 45½; Mack trucks was up one at 138 and General Motors, Maxwell and Willys Overland fractionally higher.

Sinclair company, Magnolia corporation and Standard Oil of Louisiana announced advances of one and two cents a gallon in gasoline prices, but profit taking was under way in some of the oil stocks in the second hour and prices declined from a fraction to a full point, Sinclair losing 1⅝ at 22⅞.

Grain markets were slightly irregular in the early trading. Cotton prices displayed an upward trend. Call money renewed at 3½ percent, unchanged.

Grandmother's Cough Remedy—Pine Tar and Honey—Still Best

A well-known specialist said recently that although many wonderful medical discoveries have been made in recent years, nobody has found a better and quicker healing agent for coughs, chest colds, spasmodic croup, hoarseness, throat tickling and other throat and bronchial troubles than good old pine-tar and honey. Our grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house, and they raised large families. It still remains one of the few medicines that can be given to young and old alike, as it contains no harmful drugs.

The pine-tar quickly soothes and heals soreness and irritation, and by loosening the phlegm removes the actual cause of the coughing. The honey is not only pleasant to the taste but also very soothing to the throat.

The kind that has been used with never-failing success in thousands of families for years is that known as Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. If you want the best, be sure to get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 30c at any good druggists.

MAY INCREASE LIQUOR FINES

Ordinance Boosting Maximum Payment is Suggested.

A number of new ordinances will probably occupy the attention of city councilmen at their first meeting of the month tonight including a provision to distribute a major percentage of all fines to the service fund, and a proposal to raise the maximum amount of liquor law assessments.

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld recently suggested to solons that two-thirds of the city's collections on fines be placed to the credit of the safety fund in order that money can be made available for paying off a portion of the municipal indebtedness, including a large electric light bill. The remaining portion of the fines would be placed in the safety fund.

Auditor Eckfeld this week will endeavor to make a substantial payment on the bill of the Ohio Power Co.

It was pointed out to council recently by City Solicitor George Ingram that it is possible to increase liquor revenue by raising the maximum now provided by the ordinance.

Under present city regulations, the mayor can collect only $500 for the city on any one liquor law fine. Any amount above that assessed on the same charge goes to the state. According to Solicitor Ingram, solons can boost the maximum to $1,000, which, he pointed out, would greatly increase municipal income over the present rate of collection.

The ordinance committee of council met last night. It is likely that several ordinances, in addition to these two, will be presented.

CHESTER, SALEM ON HIGH'S CARD

Chester and Salem high school basketball teams will provide opposition for Coach Carl Zimmerman's court performers during the coming weekend.

The Orange and Black quintet will clash with the Salem aggregation on Friday night at Salem. The West Virginians will meet the locals in a return engagement here on Saturday night.

Friday's clash with Salem will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. The Quakers are carded for a return battle here on February 27.

Salem defeated Lisbon and then lost to Columbiana, which, in turn, was defeated by East Liverpool. The Quakers then turned around and beat the Ceramic City quint and mixed things up pretty well in the county basketball race. As a result Zimmerman's squad can expect a hard battle Friday.

The locals won from Chester in their opener this season at Chester. But the margin of victory was small and the Chesterites have improved. So there'll be no let-up in the Saturday clash.

LISBON JUSTICE FRIEND IN NEED

Realizing, apparently, that the price of bread had gone up, and that other prices in general had declined to drop, a lenient justice of the peace in Lisbon yesterday helped out a Wellsville couple who wanted to be married but were temporarily financially embarrassed.

The license cost Augustine Wilson and Richard A. Davis, $2.00.

"But how much do they charge you to get married?" queried the copule.

"All depends", they were informed. "Sometimes preachers don't receive anything, and as low as 50 cents, but the justice of the peace must get $3, according to law."

But, it seems, the law in the case had a kind heart, and Augustine and Richard were wedded by a justice of the peace. The couple assured him he'd get his pay sometime.

"Go home and be happy', he told them.

Q. Is there a city by the name of Brass?—B. F. G.

A. Brass is the name of a town in British Nigeria, West Africa.

Q. What is trench mouth?—A. H.

A. Thrush of Trench Mouth is one form of parasitic stomatis due to a vegetable parasite, and consists of white flake-like patches of the mucous membrane of the mouth and tongue. The disorder is found generally in childhood, particularly in bottle fed infants, although it was quite prevalent in the trenches during the World War. The transmission of thrush spores is usually by means of feeding utensils, spoons, cups, etc. This accounts for the epidemic occasionally observed.

Q. How much does the average person spend to have his old clothes cleaned and dyed?—J. R. P.

A. The Cleaning and Dyeing World says that the cleaning and dyeing business of the average person amounts to $7.50 a year.

Q. While in Paris we were served perfumed butter. How is 't made?—K. C.

A. The perfumed butter used in Paris is made by taking parts of "fresh" or unsalted butter and placing them on a layer of some variety of flowers, according to the perfume desired, a piece of muslin being laid between the butter and blossoms. Another layer of flowers is placed above the butter and then ice is added.

Q. Is salmon, which has been frozen in a tin container, poisonous?—H. L.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries says that if the can of salmon to which you refer was properly sealed and the salmon properly cured, the frozen condition would not cause poison.

Q. Is there something that will make a better relief map than flour, water, and salt?—W. M.

A. The United States Geological Survey says that plastic clay which is used for molding in schools is the best to use in making a relief map. A little plaster of paris can be mixed with the clay to give it stiffness. Varnish can then be used over the relief map when it is completed.

Q. How many people were there in the colonies at the time of the Revolutionary War?—M. M. H.

A. In 1775 the estimated population of the thirteen colonies was 2,600,000. The population of the principal colonies was Massachusetts, 335,000; Pennsylvania, 300,000; New York, 190,000; North Carolina, over 265,000; Virginia, 450,000.

Q. What is the capital of Lithuania?—K. H. B.

A. Kovno has been selected as the capital, temporarily.

Q. Who invented the steam shovel? P. P.

A. The steam shovel was invented in 1840 by an American named Ohis.

Q. How many continents are there? L. B.

A. According to modern geographers there are six continents. Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, South America and Australia. Some authorities add the Antarctic Continent, although this territory has not been sufficiently explored to determine its extent.

Q. What was used for mosquitoes when the Panama Canal was built?—H. W. S.

A. The Public Health Service says that kerosene is usually the repellant used by Government officials and employes in tropical and semi-tropical zones against mosquitoes. A small portion of oil is dropped on the exposed part of the body. Oil of citronella, pennyroyal and lavendar have also been found effective in some cases.

Q. I hear that in Copenhagen, one of the theaters has an unusual curtain. Can you tell me about it? W. T. T.

A. You evidently refer to the beautiful theater, the curtain of which is in the form of a mammoth peacock. When the curtain is to be "raised," the peacock furls its tail, when the curtain is to be "lowered" the tail of the peacock is flung out across the width of the stage.

Q. It is said that Captain E. O. Hopkins signed the largest check ever paid by the government. How much was it and what was it for? J. H. F.

A. The War Department says that this check was for $40,000,000 and was paid to the Shipping Board, September 29, 1890. However this is not the largest check within their knowledge. A check for $100,000,000, signed by Major H. S. Hosteter and paid to the Director General of Railroads, March 22, 1919, has first place.

Q. Who is the foremost authority on radio? A. B.

A. The Department of Commerce says there are a great many people considered experts in radio. Some specialize in one phase of radio, and others in another phase. The following is a partial list of experts: Marconi, invention and development; Dr. Goldsmith, radio telephone; C. Francis Jenkins, Kolster radio compass for ship navigation; Stone, federal arc; Major Armstrong, regenerative receiving sets; Dr. Alexander, high frequency alternator.

Q. Are there more blind people or more deaf mutes in the United States? C. L. T.

A. The number of deaf mutes in the United States in 1920 was 44,885. The number of blind persons was 52,567.

Q. In the channel off Cape Florida how wide is the Gulf Stream? F. Z.

A. In the narrowest part of the channel the Gulf Stream approaches the coast to within 15 miles and occupies the entire width (40 miles) of the channel. The breadth of the Gulf Stream at its narrowest point is about 50 miles. It is 150 miles wide when it passes between the Bermudas and the coast of Carolina.

Q. What are the names of Hoot Gibson's and Jack Hoxie's horses? M. P.

A. Gibson's favorite horse, a claybank sorrel, is named "Pal," while Hoxie's white horse is called "Scout."

Q. What is the present status of Ruthenia? J. L.

A. Ruthenia is a part of Czechoslovakia. Of the 13,611,349 inhabitants of Czechoslovakia, only 604,670 are Ruthenians. Although the union of Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia, Slovakia and Ruthenia took place October 28, 1918, it was not until March, 1924, that a general election was held in Ruthenia to select representatives to the National Assembly.

Q. Who was it who lost the manuscript of Volume 1 of Carlyle's "French Revolution?" D. M.

A. John Stuart Mill had this misfortune. A year's exhausting labor was the cost of the loss entailed to Carlyle.

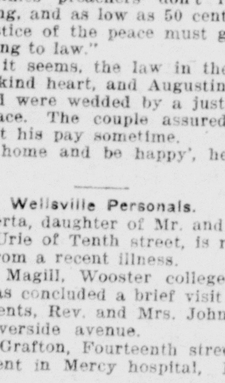
She Called it "Heavenly" Relief When 30-Year Corn Was Removed in Two Days for 25c

Read the Grateful Lady's Letter, and Try This



FRIDAY

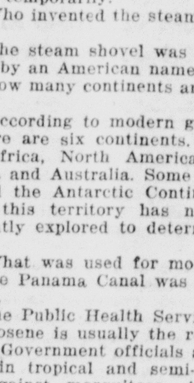
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: It would be a very great injustice on my part if I should neglect writing to you about the "Heavenly" Relief (I couldn't term it better) I have experienced after using your "Blue-Jay" Corn Plasters. For thirty years I have suffered from one corn the most excruciating pain and just a week ago I thought I should simply collapse. I tried these and positively words fail to adequately express the relief I have discovered. I can assure you no friend nor acquaintance of mine will be deprived of the knowledge of this if I can help it.

Mrs. W. J. Davies
954 Lafayette Ave.



SUNDAY

30-Year Corn Gone Completely

If others will profit by Mrs. Davies' experience, this kind letter will save much needless suffering from corns. "Blue-jay" Plasters remove millions of stubborn corns. We make a liquid "Blue-jay" too. But for INSTANT RELIEF, we recommend the Plasters, because the soft felt ring that encircles the corn, at once removes the painful shoe pressure. A liquid cannot remove shoe pressure. And it's hard for you to regulate the dose; or to keep a liquid exactly on the corn.

In the shapely "Blue-jay" Plasters, the famous chemist who discovered "Blue-jay" regulates the dose. It is centered in the soft ring. Not too much—not too little—just the prescribed amount to remove the corn gently. 48 hours later, the corn lifts right out. Only very stubborn corns require a second plaster.

Why risk blood poisoning by paring corns yourself? Get six safe, sure "Blue-jay" Plasters for 25c. So much in demand all druggists sell them. Then write us your experience, please. "Blue-jay" Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

MAY INCREASE LIQUOR FINES

Ordinance Boosting Maximum Payment is Suggested.

A number of new ordinances will probably occupy the attention of city councilmen at their first meeting of the month tonight including a provision to distribute a major percentage of all fines to the service fund, and a proposal to raise the maximum amount of liquor law assessments.

City Auditor Fred Eckfeld recently suggested to solons that two-thirds of the city's collections on fines be placed to the credit of the safety fund in order that money can be made available for paying off a portion of the municipal indebtedness, including a large electric light bill. The remaining portion of the fines would be placed in the safety fund.

Auditor Eckfeld this week will endeavor to make a substantial payment on the bill of the Ohio Power Co.

It was pointed out to council recently by City Solicitor George Ingram that it is possible to increase liquor revenuse by raising the maximum now provided by the ordinance.

Under present city regulations, the mayor can collect only $500 for the city on any one liquor law fine. Any amount above that assessed on the same charge goes to the state. According to Solicitor Ingram, solons can boost the maximum to $1,000, which, he pointed out, would greatly increase municipal income over the present rate of collection.

The ordinance committee of council met last night. It is likely that several ordinances, in addition to these two, will be presented.

CHESTER, SALEM ON HIGH'S CARD

Chester and Salem high school basketball teams will provide opposition for Coach Carl Zimmerman's court performers during the coming week-end.

The Orange and Black quintet will clash with the Salem aggregation on Friday night at Salem. The West Virginians will meet the locals in a return engagement here on Saturday night.

Friday's clash with Salem will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. The Quakers are carded for a return battle here on February 27.

Salem defeated Lisbon and then lost to Columbiana, which, in turn, was defeated by East Liverpool. The Quakers then turned around and beat the Ceramic City quint and mixed things up pretty well in the county basketball race. As a result Zimmerman's squad can expect a hard battle Friday.

The locals won from Chester in their opener this season at Chester. But the margin of victory was small and the Chesterites have improved. So there'll be no let-up in the Saturday clash.

LISBON JUSTICE FRIEND IN NEED

Realizing, apparently, that the price of bread had gone up, and that other prices in general had declined to drop, a lenient justice of the peace in Lisbon yesterday helped out a Wellsville couple who wanted to be married but were temporarilly financially embarrassed.

The license cost Augustine Wilson and Richard A. Davis, $2.00.

"But how much do they charge you to get married?" queried the copule.

"All depends", they were informed. "Sometimes preachers don't receive anything, and as low as 50 cents, but the justice of the peace must get $3, according to law."

But, it seems, the law in the case had a kind heart, and Augustine and Richard were wedded by a justice of the peace. The couple assured him he'd get his pay sometime.

"Go home and be happy', he told them.

The Postmen's Raise

All taxes are unpleasant, but there is less objection than usual to the taxes proposed in the senate's bill for increasing postal salaries $300 a year. They are levied in the form of increased rates on certain kinds of mail matter, and are less open to criticism than previous rates designed for the purpose.

Souvenir postcards, it is generally agreed, can stand the extra cent as well as anything could, inasmuch as they are usually unnecessary and are purchased and mailed by tourists who like to spend their money in that way. There is a fitness, too, in collecting money for postmen from a class of mail which makes the postmen so much trouble.

Private mailing cards also will cost two cents instead of one, under this measure.

The cent-a-pound service charge on parcels will not be burdensome.

There are some minor changes proposed in second class matter, lowering the rate a fraction of a cent per pound on periodical reading matter and raising it a trifle on advertising matter.

The prospect of the postal carriers and clerks for a reasonable raise at last is good, and the public realizes that this increase could not go to any more deserving class of government employes.

World Radio

Radio programs broadcast on a low wavelength, or high-frequency current, at Pittsburgh have been heard "completely" in Australia, as testified by thousands of listeners. The antipodeans were able not merely to distinguish and locate the sending station but to understand the speeches and enjoy the music.

Here is remarkable radio progress. Australia is almost opposite Pennsylvania. The distance covered, measured in a bee-line around the earth, is 9,000 or 10,000 miles one way and 14,000 or 15,000 the other way. The radio waves are regarded as having followed the surface by the shortest route. Yet they might have gone in both directions, or in all directions from the broadcasting point, like meridians for the north pole. So rapid is the speed of radio that, in spite of the several thousand miles' difference in routes, it would reach the distant listeners at practically the same time. The waves might have gone by a still shorter route, straight down through the earth, a little less than 8,000 miles, but that is not considered likely.

Curiously enough, Sydney, Australia, heard better than Cleveland, only 150 miles from Pittsburgh, because the region immediately northwest of Pittsburgh is affected by "fading." Long-range work may yet result in explaining that phenomenon, along with other mysteries.

World broadcasting may now be regarded as definitely begun. Though imperfect and irregular in these pioneer experiments, it may arrive soon at a degree of effectiveness enabling a powerful station to speak at once to all civilized nations. Gabriel's Trumpet becomes available for daily human use.

Airplanes and Ruins

Finding new uses for airplanes is one of the greatest outdoor sports. Their latest use is in the new and fascinating sport of archeology—the quest of "old stuff." A scientific expedition now fitting out in London will fly around over Egypt, Arabia and Mesopotamia next summer looking for buried cities.

Many a lost city lies under desert sands. The vestiges of such cities can be seen, the explorers say, more easily from the air than on the ground itself, and the fliers can cover a far greater territory, with greater ease, than if they were crawling over the surface in the usual way of locomotion in waste places.

It seems possible that this method will be applied later to a search for old cities under the sea. Aviators testify that they can see to a far greater depth under water, from a height, than they can from the surface. If there are really submerged continents in the Atlantic and Pacific, containing the drowned cities of old civilizations, the flying archeologists may reveal them.

"Germany is an expensive country," says a correspondent. The rest of the world has found it so.

SEEK THE COPYRIGHT LAW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A new copyright law may be one of the first legislative accomplishments of the new congress. It will be if one of the most powerful and picturesque lobbies ever to appear in Washington has any influence with the national solons.

This law is expected to make it possible for the United States to become a member of the International Copyright union from which we have been barred for something like half a century. It is also expected to prove an effective demonstration of what congress can do in the exercise of its constitutional authority to promote the progress of science and useful arts.

The colorful lobby which is seeking the proposed legislation is composed of the leading novelists, short story writers, scenario writers, poets, dramatists, artists, cartoonists, song writers, librettists and composers of America. Wrapped up in one package these personages are identified as members of the Authors' league, but as identified by their professions they are grouped in four guilds—authors, dramatists, artists and composers.

Less Picturesque, perhaps, but none the less insistent upon the importance and needs of the proposed new copyright legislation are the organizations representative of the publishing interests and of the librarians of the country.

Arrayed in opposition, or at least demanding changes in the measure under consideration, are the association of motion picture producers and the unions of printers, bookbinders and allied crafts.

As the members of the house committee on patents put it when they held their public hearing on the bill, it was "big league stuff." The large caucus room in the house office building was filled with one of the most interesting assemblages ever brought together in Washington—men and women famous in the world of literature, art, music and drama—and the congressmen fairly reveled in the intimate contact with the personages who theretofore had been little more to them than names on books, in magazines, on theater programs, on musical records and the like. Obviously they were quite as thrilled as they had ever been by the brain children of those personages.

In fact, they "ate it up," which is art's retort to the "big league stuff" comment of the committeemen.

NOTABLES WHO PERFORMED

Not all the notables present addressed the committee. If they had the hearing would have been as long as a Democratic national convention, and quite as engrossing if not as tumultuous. But those who did speak were all headliners. Gene Buck, the librettist, who has made many of the Ziegfeld shows, was master of ceremonies for the proponents of the measure and himself contributed a snappy half-hour to the performance.

For the publishers are spokesman was Major Putnam, head of the oldest publishing house in the country, who told the committee he had been appearing at congressional hearings on the copyright question for more than 40 years, his experience antedating the birth of several of the congressmen. When he was asked by one of the youthful members if he would be present at later hearings to answer questions that might be asked of him he said that he hoped to be.

"But," he added, "when a man reaches the age of 81 he hesitates about making definite commitments for a indefinite future."

Another veteran was Robert Underwood Johnson, one of America's great poets, former ambassador to Italy, and present editor of the Century. Dr. Johnson's copyright activities also date back to the law of 1891 and the amendment of 1909. Augustus Thomas, dramatist, spoke for his profession, and no one was listened to more attentively. Ellis Barker Butler, author of the famous "Pigs is Pigs" story, convulsed the crowd with a recital of some of his experiences with an adequate copyright law, one being his selling of the motion picture rights of the "Pigs" story for $25, only to learn they were valued at $10,000 a few years later by the purchasing company. That in itself was not funny, he said, but he made the telling of it decidedly humorous.

In truth, the affair was largely an experience meeting, the needs of a new law being argued by stories of the innumerable ways writers and composers have been deprived of a fair share in the returns from their creative efforts because the old laws did not give them adequate protection in their rights. John Philip Sousa, "the march king," realized the munificent sum of $35 for "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Charles K. Harris, composer of ballads famous a generation ago—"After the Ball," "Always in the Way," "Hello Central," and the like—was once shown the picture of a shipment of 500,000 phonograph records of his songs, and all he got out of it was the satisfaction of seeing the picture—not a penny of revenue from the records.

BROKE BUT HAPPY

Harry Von Tilzer, who has written more than a hundred song hits, told how in spite of the success of his songs he was in financial straits, not even owning his own home.

"Mine has a mortgage on it," interjected a member of the the committee.

"Mine has two, first and second," retored Von Tilzer, "and I owe two months office rent. I'm broke, but happy."

Will Irwin, noted war correspondent, novelist and short story writer, detailed experiences he and his wife, Inez Haynes Irwin, had had in being deprived of the sale of valuable rights in their productions solely because under the existing law they could not establish their title to those rights, and, of course, the hearing was not concluded without reference to the amazing case of the Rev. Edward M. Sheldon, who realized virtually nothing from his book, "In His Steps," which sold by the millions of copies, merely because through a misunderstanding of the law he deposited one copy, instead of two, of the original edition in the copyright division of the Library of congress.

The authors insist that they want exactly what the constitution of the United States says they may be given, the exclusive right, for a limited time, to their writings. They want to be able to dispose of their rights in toto or in part. They want the United States to become a member of the internatinoal Copyright union, instead of maintaining a position of "magnificent isolation" along with Russia and China, so that a copyright in this country will become immediately effective in all other countries. They want the mere creation of a piece of literature, art or music to establish a copyright, instead of being required to comply with a lot of legal formalities, under which they may be deprived of their rights by mere technicalities. In short, they say they want a law in the United States that conforms to the laws of the 34 nations in the international union.

One of their chief obstacles is the opposition of trades unionists. Pressure from the printers and other labor unions forced into the existing law a provision that no foreign book, etc., can be copyrighted in this country until it has been printed here, their leaders insisting that American labor must be protected against cheaper labor abroad, and congress yielding to that demand.

The constitution says congress shall have authority "to promote the progress of science and the useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries."

As Augustus Thomas told the committee, there is nothing in that about partial rights, or about the rights of anybody else save the writers and inventors.

The flapper may, after all, have a heart as warm as the old-fashioned girl had, but we imagine she is a little more chilled in other localities.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains—by Fontaine Fox.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

MANILA, Feb. 3.—Marselo Mejdana, of Candelaria, Tayabas province, was a lover of the ladies. He was especially known as a patron of the dance halls; and so when the young man took the train for Manila, quite a number of fascinating ballerinas accompanied him to the station. Unfortunately for Marcelo, however, when the train started, in an effort to bestow an unusually impressive bow, he leaned far out, and head struck the framework of a steel bridge. Marcelo's body now lies in Candelaria's only funeral parlor.

A bill is to be presented in the next legislature creating a "Greater Manila" via the method of taking in outlying suburbs that now have their own municipal governments. The towns proposed to be annexed are Coloocan, Pasay, Malabon, San Juan del Monte, San Pedro Makati, San Filipe Neri and Navotas. Most of these little places were famous spots during the Philippine revolution, and bloody battles were waged between the American and Filipino forces. Now they are again peaceful little villages, but a "menace" to the morals of Manila—or so say the local municipal authorities. Cockpits, dance halls and dives thrive just the other side of Manila's borderline, though they are forbidden in the metropolis.

The outlying villages, however, are strenuously objecting to annexation, and on practical grounds, too. Practically all the municipal revenues of several of them come from these same cockpits and dance halls, so their taxes are correspondingly low. If the villages are annexed to the big city, up will go their taxes, and away will go their treasured cockits.

There are 3,000,000 children of school age in the Philippines, but only 1,100,000, or about one-third can be accommodated in the schools. The parents of the others, who have votes and pay taxes, are giving their representatives and senators much trouble and worry, for election comes next year, and candidacies in most districts have already been announced.

However, there is not much chance for the 2,000,000 children to be accommodated any time within the next few years; for Vice Governor Gilmore, head of the department of public instruction, estimates that more than twice the present educational appropriation will be necessary in order that universal education may become a fact.

About 38 per cent of the Filipinos are literate, according to the latest official figures. Of these about half have a rudimentary knowledge of English; the rest know one or more of the native dialects. English is rarely used in the provinces, or in home circles, however.

The Philippines are the usurer's paradise. A recent commission, headed by Professor Hester, of the University of the Philippines, found interest rates averaging from 35 to 390 per cent per annum, with an average of about 60 per cent. There is a law prohibiting rates exceeding 12 per cent, but it is not enforced. The report says: "The tenants are aware of the usury laws, but they are too honorable to apply to the courts to set aside verbal agreements which had been sought by them. No law is of practical benefit when it is to the interest of both law-breaking parties to persists in breaking the law, for the simple reason that there are neither complainants nor informers."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—One of my closest friends and confidants is a fine old gentleman who has stood the ravages of 80 winters. Most of his years have been spent in New York. He is as sturdy as an oak and is straight and tall like a sycamore.

He belies the specious reasoning that age brings intolerance. He is the most tolerant of men. His rare criticism is always impersonal and not once have I heard him speak ill of his fellows. He is a man of culture and learning, yet now and then he drops into slang of the day.

This to me is most appealing. He is a patron of the opera, but he also goes to burlesque shows and laughs louder than anyone. The variety of his diversions keeps him young. He smokes four cigars a day with an occasional cigaret between.

One night recently I went to him with an exaggerated trifle that was bothering me. He listened patiently without a word until I had finished. Then he smoked awhile in silence. Finally he said: "You're just a damn fool!" There was no other comment. He dropped it there.

The suddeness of his remark shocked me into sound reasoning, although at first I was a little hurt. He was wise enough to know the one thing not needed was sympathy.

He has a married granddaughter of whom he is particularly fond. Twice a month he takes her out to dinner, to the play and afterward to some supper club. He is a smooth and graceful dancer and never misses a number. I have seen him go into the dullest gatherings and soon infuse it with his contagious wit and jollity.

His attitude is particularly pleasing, for it is the fashion in New York to shunt the aged to the slippers and pipe and the chimney corner. He is one who refuses to be shunted. A doctor once told him that he must be careful about dancing too much. "At 80, if I have to die, there's no way I'd rather die than daning," he replied.

Amid the many high spots of pleasure one sees a well known man about town of ten years ago. A face once handsome is now ghastly twisted. The mouth is a sardonic grin. Four years ago he was in Africa. An abscessed tooth needed extracting and he was forced to visit the medicine man of an African village. The result was blood poisoning and the disfiguration.

There was a fire in a theatrical boarding house in Forty-eighth street. All boarders were sleeping soundly. A Swiss yodeler aroused them with one of his Alpine atrocities and all of them saved their belongings.

In every theatrical boarding house there is the old character actor who has fallen on evil days. He is generally a brave soul and in his dignified aloofness discourages sympathy. His optimism is sublime. Weeks stretch into months without engagements, but he never fails to show up hopefully at the theatrical agencies. Their gentility entitles them to a better fate.

You can't beat New York for genuine gall. In one of the leading theatrical papers is a full page paid advertisement. It carries a picture of a sappy looking young man of about 20. He is in riding togs, wears a checkered vest, a boutonniere and a cigaret hangs loosely from his lips. Underneath the picture is the youth's name and this: "First nighter, boy-about town, friend of the distressed chorus girl and regular feller, who has just increased his private telephone contract to 1,000 messages a month." How proud his parents must feel!

Martin Beck, the vaudeville magnate, has achieved his ambition—a New York theater bearing his name. It is a Byzantine affair and quite the gaudiest in town. Beck began his career as a "super" in Vienna. He suped to conquer, as it were. Copyrighted, 1925, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

NITROGEN, OR POWER?

At the request of the war department Henry Ford offered to develop the power plant, built by the people at Muscle Shoals to provide nitrogen from the atmosphere for use in war time.

Nitrogen can be made into explosives for war and fertilizer for peace.

Politicians in Washington rejected Ford's offer, although the entire south and all the farmers demanded that the government accept it.

Ford, wearied of Washington's vacillation, withdrew his offer.

FORD PUTS IT PLAINLY

Every voter in this country should read, and remember until next election, Henry Ford's statement concerning Muscle Shoals. It was made yesterday in response to a message from W. R. Hearst, urging Ford to re-enter the Muscle Shoals contest, and again try to rescue the people's property from selfish exploiters.

The situation is clear. The president must see it plainly. And, fortunately, private monopolists cannot seize this public property without the president's consent.

Should Muscle Shoals go to the power monopoly that concern will be directly indebted to President Coolidge.

LOOKS LIKE MONOPOLY NOW

These are the points in Henry Ford's statement that interest every American:

"I am willing to co-operate with the government in developing Muscle Shoals into a nitrate plant, making cheap fertilizer for the American farmers.

"In my opinion the Shoals should be used for the production of nitrate and fertilizer.

"I believe that the government could itself keep Muscle Shoals and run it, not as a power plant, but as a nitrate plant, to help the farmers in peace and safeguard the country in war. The people of the United States spent $140,000,000 to create a government nitrate plant, not a power house. We should not lose sight of the original and biggest reason for Muscle Shoals being built.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and operates the nitrate plant by the army and navy, I shall be glad to put at their service all that the Ford company has of knowledge and experience. Our engineers have been working for three years on the problem of making cheap nitrogen from the air for farmers. We believe we have discovered improvements on the present processes. We believe air nitrate can be made at a price that will materially reduce the cost of fertilizer on the farm.

"The Ford company will turn over to the government without cost the results of its research.

"We will lend the men to help build up an efficient organization to run the Shoals. As a citizen's duty we worked with the army and navy during the war. We are ready to give the same co-operation to the government in aid of the farmers now, cost free, to the government.

"Our open letter, made at government request, was based on public service principles with a view to developing, maintaining and turning back to the government a great public utility and defensive asset. This cannot be done under the system of private profit only that now rules business.

"It is a mistake to say that the government cannot run the nitrate plant as well as any private party. This is the very kind of business the government ought to engage in. Electro-chemical methods of air nitrogen fixation do not require great forces of employes. It is a straight job of letting the forces of nature work for you. The government has as good men as there are in this field. We talked with some of them when we were figuring on the Shoals.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and runs it for the farmers I will help so far as technical help goes, just as much as I could have helped if I had taken the property over. "HENRY FORD."

UP TO THE PRESIDENT

Every farmer and every other good citizen in the country should write to President Coolidge, urging him to keep Muscle Shoals out of the hands of monopolistic exploiters.

It is understood that the president does not believe in public ownership, perhaps because his knowledge of politicians convinces him that they can't be trusted with a dollar.

But he surely does not believe in turning over a $140,000,000 public investment to be exploited by private monopolists, whose regards for public exploitation is notorious.

The question is, "Shall Muscle Shoals, which the people own, be developed primarily as a nitrogen producing plant, and secondarily, as a power plant, both in the public interest?"

Or, shall the great enterprise be given to private monopolists to be exploited on the usual basis of "all that the traffic will bear?"

President Coolidge will decide the matter. Congress will not send him a bill, if it is known that he will veto it.

Write the president and tell him what you think. Farmers, especially, should write. The president is always glad to hear from any citizen.

The senate has jeopardized the bill to increase postal salaries. Various influences helped. Bigger government salaries mean bigger taxes. That arouses sympathy in the senate. And the plan was to help pay the extra salaries by charging higher rates to newspapers and magazines. That caused distinguished publishers to become active.

As for the postoffice workers, poorly paid by the world's richest government, they are not important. And, besides they are scattered all over the country, not enough in any one place to exercise real political influence. In Washington they can't even vote.

So, that is settled for the time. But postal employes can talk at least, and their defeat now will mean at the next election some more of the radical votes that give the shivers to high prosperity.

DINNER STORIES

A motorist from London had stopped to replace a tire in a desolate part of the Highlands. A native chanced along and helped.

"I suppose," said the stranger, busy with his wheel, "that even here the bare necessities to live have risen tremendously in price?"

"Aye, ye're richt," replied the native, "and it's no worth drinking when you get it."

A lady remonstrated with her colored maid for openly encouraging the attentions of the janitor next door. "Mary," she said, "don't you know that he is a married man?"

"Yes'm," replied Mary, "I knows it. But'm—he's dissatisfied."

Born to Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hall, of May street, a son, on Saturday.

In a bob-sled accident last evening on Bradshaw avenue, Tom Bock, age 17, of Bank street, sustained painful injuries to one leg; Ernest Carroll, age 15, of Huston avenue, suffered a sprained ankle; Edna Shilling, of Newell, injured her neck; Ray Carroll and several others were bruised about the body, but suffered no serious results.

Wrapped up in one package these personages are identified as members of the Authors' league, but as identified by their professions they are grouped in four guilds—authors, dramatists, artists and composers.

Less Picturesque, perhaps, but none the less insistent upon the importance and needs of the proposed new copyright legislation are the organizations representative of the publishing interests and of the librarians of the country.

Arrayed in opposition, or at least demanding changes in the measure under consideration, are the association of motion picture producers and the unions of printers, bookbinders and allied crafts.

As the members of the house committee on patents put it when they held their public hearing on the bill, it was "big league stuff." The large caucus room in the house office building was filled with one of the most interesting assemblages ever brought together in Washington—men and women famous in the world of literature, art, music and drama—and the congressmen fairly reveled in the intimate contact with the personages who theretofore had been little more to them than names on books, in magazines, on theater programs, on musical records and the like. Obviously they were quite as thrilled as they had ever been by the brain children of those personages.

In fact, they "ate it up," which is art's retort to the "big league stuff" comment of the committeemen.

NOTABLES WHO PERFORMED

Not all the notables present addressed the committee. If they had the hearing would have been as long as a Democratic national convention, and quite as engrossing if not as tumultuous. But those who did speak were all headliners. Gene Buck, the librettist, who has made many of the Ziegfeld shows, was master of ceremonies for the proponents of the measure and himself contributed a snappy half-hour to the performance.

For the publishers are spokesman was Major Putnam, head of the oldest publishing house in the country, who told the committee he had been appearing at congressional hearings on the copyright question for more than 40 years, his experience antedating the birth of several of the congressmen. When he was asked by one of the youthful members if he would be present at later hearings to answer questions that might be asked of him he said that he hoped to be.

"But," he added, "when a man reaches the age of 81 he hesitates about making definite commitments for a indefinite future."

Another veteran was Robert Underwood Johnson, one of America's great poets, former ambassador to Italy, and present editor of the Century. Dr. Johnson's copyright activities also date back to the law of 1891 and the amendment of 1909. Augustus Thomas, dramatist, spoke for his profession, and no one was listened to more attentively. Ellis Barker Butler, author of the famous "Pigs is Pigs" story, convulsed the crowd with a recital of some of his experiences with an adequate copyright law, one being his selling of the motion picture rights of the "Pigs" story for $25, only to learn they were valued at $10,000 a few years later by the purchasing company. That in itself was not funny, he said, but he made the telling of it decidedly humorous.

In truth, the affair was largely an experience meeting, the needs of a new law being argued by stories of the innumerable ways writers and composers have been deprived of a fair share in the returns from their creative efforts because the old laws did not give them adequate protection in their rights. John Philip Sousa, "the march king," realized the munificent sum of $35 for "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Charles K. Harris, composer of ballads famous a generation ago—"After the Ball," "Always in the Way," "Hello Central," and the like—was once shown the picture of a shipment of 500,000 phonograph records of his songs, and all he got out of it was the satisfaction of seeing the picture—not a penny of revenue from the records.

BROKE BUT HAPPY

Harry Von Tilzer, who has written more than a hundred song hits, told how in spite of the success of his songs he was in financial straits, not even owning his own home.

"Mine has a mortgage on it," interjected a member of the committee.

"Mine has two, first and second," retored Von Tilzer, "and I owe two months office rent. I'm broke, but happy."

Will Irwin, noted war correspondent, novelist and short story writer, detailed experiences he and his wife, Inez Haynes Irwin, had had in being deprived of the sale of valuable rights in their productions solely because under the existing law they could not establish their title to those rights, and, of course, the hearing was not concluded without reference to the amazing case of the Rev. Edward M. Sheldon, who realized virtually nothing from his book, "In His Steps," which sold by the millions of copies, merely because through a misunderstanding of the law he deposited one copy, instead of two, of the original edition in the copyright division of the library of congress.

The authors insist that they want exactly what the constitution of the United States says they may be given, the exclusive right, for a limited time, to their writings. They want to be able to dispose of their rights in toto or in part. They want the United States to become a member of the international Copyright union, instead of maintaining a position of "magnificent isolation" along with Russia and China, so that a copyright in this country will become immediately effective in all other countries. They want the mere creation of a piece of literature, art or music to establish a copyright, instead of being required to comply with a lot of legal formalities, under which they may be deprived of their rights by mere technicalities. In short, they say they want a law in the United States that conforms to the laws of the 34 nations in the international union.

One of their chief obstacles is the opposition of trades unionists. Pressure from the printers and other labor unions forced into the existing law a provision that no foreign book, etc., can be copyrighted in this country until it has been printed here, their leaders insisting that American labor must be protected against cheaper labor abroad, and congress yielding to that demand.

The constitution says congress shall have authority "to promote the progress of science and the useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries."

As Augustus Thomas told the committee, there is nothing in that about partial rights, or about the rights of anybody else save the writers and inventors.

The flapper may, after all, have a heart as warm as the old-fashioned girl had, but we imagine she is a little more chilled in other localities.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains—by Fontaine Fox.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

MANILA, Feb. 3.—Marselo Mejdana, of Candelaria, Tayabas province, was a lover of the ladies. He was especially known as a patron of the dance halls; and so when the young man took the train for Manila, quite a number of fascinating ballerinas accompanied him to the station. Unfortunately for Marcelo, however, when the train started, in an effort to bestow an unusually impressive bow, he leaned far out, and head struck the framework of a steel bridge. Marcelo's body now lies in Candelaria's only funeral parlor.

A bill is to be presented in the next legislature creating a "Greater Manila" via the method of taking in outlying suburbs that now have their own municipal governments. The towns proposed to be annexed are Coloocan, Pasay, Malabon, San Juan del Monte, San Pedro Makati, San Filipe Neri and Navotas. Most of these little places were famous spots during the Philippine revolution, and bloody battles were waged between the American and Filipino forces. Now they are again peaceful little villages, but a "menace" to the morals of Manila—or so say the local municipal authorities. Cockpits, dance halls and dives thrive just the other side of Manila's borderline, though they are forbidden in the metropolis.

The outlying villages, however, are strenuously objecting to annexation, and on practical grounds, too. Practically all the municipal revenues of several of them come from these same cockpits and dance halls, so their taxes are correspondingly low. If the villages are annexed to the big city, up will go their taxes, and away will go their treasured cockits.

There are 3,000,000 children of school age in the Philippines, but only 1,100,000, or about one-third can be accommodated in the schools. The parents of the others, who have votes and pay taxes, are giving their representatives and senators much trouble and worry, for election comes next year, and candidacies in most districts have already been announced.

However, there is not much chance for the 2,000,000 children to be accommodated any time within the next few years; for Vice Governor Gilmore, head of the department of public instruction, estimates that more than twice the present educational appropriation will be necessary in order that universal education may become a fact.

About 38 per cent of the Filipinos are literate, according to the latest official figures. Of these about half have a rudimentary knowledge of English; the rest know one or more of the native dialects. English is rarely used in the provinces, or in home circles, however.

The Philippines are the usurer's paradise. A recent commission, headed by Professor Hester, of the University of the Philippines, found interest rates averaging from 35 to 390 per cent per annum, with an average of about 60 per cent. There is a law prohibiting rates exceeding 12 per cent, but it is not enforced. The report says: "The tenants are aware of the usury laws, but they are too honorable to apply to the courts to set aside verbal agreements which had been sought by them. No law is of practical benefit when it is to the interest of both law-breaking parties to persists in breaking the law, for the simple reason that there are neither complainants nor informers."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—One of my closest friends and confidants is a fine old gentleman who has stood the ravages of 80 winters. Most of his years have been spent in New York. He is as sturdy as an oak and is straight and tall like a sycamore.

He belies the specious reasoning that age brings intolerance. He is the most tolerant of men. His rare criticism is always impersonal and not once have I heard him speak ill of his fellows. He is a man of culture and learning, yet now and then he drops into slang of the day.

This to me is most appealing. He is a patron of the opera, but he also goes to burlesque shows and laughs louder than anyone. The variety of his diversions keeps him young. He smokes four cigars a day with an occasional cigaret between.

One night recently I went to him with an exaggerated trifle that was bothering me. He listened patiently without a word until I had finished. Then he smoked awhile in silence. Finally he said: "You're just a damn fool!" There was no other comment. He dropped it there.

The suddeness of his remark shocked me into sound reasoning, although at first I was a little hurt. He was wise enough to know the one thing not needed was sympathy.

He has a married granddaughter of whom he is particularly fond. Twice a month he takes her out to dinner, to the play and afterward to some supper club. He is a smooth and graceful dancer and never misses a number. I have seen him go into the dullest gatherings and soon infuse it with his contagious wit and jollity.

His attitude is particularly pleasing, for it is the fashion in New York to shunt the aged to the slippers and pipe and the chimney corner. He is one who refuses to be shunted. A doctor once told him that he must be careful about dancing too much. "Aw, if I have to die, there's no way I'd rather die than daning," he replied.

Amid the many high spots of pleasure one sees a well known man about town of ten years ago. A face once handsome is now ghastly twisted. The mouth is a sardonic grin. Four years ago he was in Africa. An abscessed tooth needed extracting and he was forced to visit the medicine man of an African village. The result was blood poisoning and the disfiguration.

There was a fire in a theatrical boarding house in Forty-eighth street. All boarders were sleeping soundly. A Swiss yodeler aroused them with one of his Alpine atrocities and all of them saved their belongings.

In every theatrical boarding house there is the old character actor who has fallen on evil days. He is generally a brave soul and in his dignified aloofness discourages sympathy. His optimism is sublime. Weeks stretch into months without engagements, but he never fails to show up hopefully at the theatrical agencies. Their gentility entitles them to a better fate.

You can't beat New York for genuine gall. In one of the leading theatrical papers is a full page paid advertisement. It carries a picture of a sappy looking young man of about 20. He is in riding togs, wears a checkered vest, a boutonniere and a cigaret hangs loosely from his lips. Underneath the picture is the youth's name and this: "First nighter, boy-about town, friend of the distressed chorus girl and regular feller, who has just increased his private telephone contract to 1,000 messages a month." How proud his parents must feel!

Martin Beck, the vaudeville magnate, has achieved his ambition—a New York theater bearing his name. It is a Byzantine affair and quite the gaudiest in town. Beck began his career as a "super" in Vienna. He suped to conquer, as it were. Copyrighted, 1925, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

NITROGEN, OR POWER?

At the request of the war department Henry Ford offered to develop the power plant, built by the people at Muscle Shoals to provide nitrogen from the atmosphere for use in war time.

Nitrogen can be made into explosives for war and fertilizer for peace.

Politicians in Washington rejected Ford's offer, although the entire south and all the farmers demanded that the government accept it.

Ford, wearied of Washington's vacillation, withdrew his offer.

FORD PUTS IT PLAINLY

Every voter in this country should read, and remember until next election, Henry Ford's statement concerning Muscle Shoals. It was made yesterday in response to a message from W. R. Hearst, urging Ford to re-enter the Muscle Shoals contest, and again try to rescue the people's property from selfish exploiters.

The situation is clear. The president must sea it plainly. And, fortunately, private monopolists cannot seize this public property without the president's consent.

Should Muscle Shoals go to the power monopoly that concern will be directly indebted to President Coolidge.

LOOKS LIKE MONOPOLY NOW

These are the points in Henry Ford's statement that interest every American:

"I am willing to co-operate with the government in developing Muscle Shoals into a nitrate plant, making cheap fertilizer for the American farmers.

"In my opinion the Shoels should be used for the production of nitrate and fertilizer.

"I believe that the government could itself keep Muscle Shoals and run it, not as a power plant, but as a nitrate plant, to help the farmers in peace and safeguard the country in war. The people of the United States spent $140,000,000 to create a government nitrate plant, not a power house. We should not lose sight of the original and biggest reason for Muscle Shoals being built.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and operates the nitrate plant by the army and navy, I shall be glad to put at their service all that the Ford company has of knowledge and experience. Our engineers have been working for three years on the problem of making cheap nitrogen from the air for farmers. We believe we have discovered improvements on the present processes. We believe air nitrate can be made at a price that will materially reduce the cost of fertilizer on the farm.

"The Ford company will turn over to the government without cost the results of its research.

"We will lend the men to help build up an efficient organization to run the Shoals. As a citizen's duty we worked with the army and navy during the war. We are ready to give the same co-operation to the government in aid of the farmers now, cost free, to the government.

"Our open letter, made at government request, was based on public service principles with a view to developing, maintaining and turning back to the government a great public utility and defensive asset. This cannot be done under the system of private profit only that now rules business.

"It is a mistake to say that the government cannot run the nitrate plant as well as any private party. This is the very kind of business the government ought to engage in. Electro-chemical method of air nitrogen fixation do not require great forces of employes. It is a straight job of letting the forces of nature work for you. The government has as good men as there are in this field. We talked with some of them when we were figuring on the Shoals.

"If the government keeps Muscle Shoals and runs it for the farmers I will help so far as technical help goes, just as much as I could have helped if I had taken the property over. "HENRY FORD."

UP TO THE PRESIDENT

Every farmer and every other good citizen in the country should write to President Coolidge, urging him to keep Muscle Shoals out of the hands of monopolistic exploiters.

It is understood that the president does not believe in public ownership, perhaps because his knowledge of politicians convinces him that they can't be trusted with a dollar.

But he surely does not believe in turning over a $140,000,000 public investment to be exploited by private monopolists, whose regards for public exploitation is notorious.

The question is, "Shall Muscle Shoals, which the people own, be developed primarily as a nitrogen producing plant, and secondarily, as a power plant, both in the public interest?"

Or, shall the great enterprise be given to private monopolists to be exploited on the usual basis of "all that the traffic will bear?"

President Coolidge will decide the matter. Congress will not send him a bill, if it is known that he will veto it.

Write the president and tell him what you think. Farmers, especially, should write. The president is always glad to hear from any citizen.

The senate has jeopardized the bill to increase postal salaries. Various influences helped. Bigger government salaries mean bigger taxes. That arouses sympathy in the senate. And the plan was to help pay the extra salaries by charging higher rates to newspapers and magazines. That caused distinguished publishers to become active.

As for the postoffice workers, poorly paid by the world's richest government, they are not important. And, besides they are scattered all over the country, not enough in any one place to exercise real political influence. In Washington they can't even vote.

So, that is settled for the time. But postal employes can talk at least, and their defeat now will mean at the next election some more of the radical votes that give the shivers to high prosperity.

DINNER STORIES

A motorist from London had stopped to replace a tire in a desolate part of the Highlands. A native chanced along and helped.

"I suppose," said the stranger, busy with his wheel, "that even here the bare necessities to live have risen tremendously in price?"

"Aye, ye're richt," replied the native, "and it's no worth drinking when you get it."

A lady remonstrated with her colored maid for openly encouraging the attentions of the janitor next door. "Mary," she said, "don't you know that he is a married man?"

"Yes'm," replied Mary, "I knows it. But'm—he's dissatistied."

Farmers Too Many, He Says.

Guy Huston, an economist, says that one of America's biggest problems could be solved by the abandonment of about a million farms now under cultivation. There are 6,500,000 farms in the United States and Mr. Huston said that a million never were intended for a plough. The trouble is that their owners spend money and energy trying to make them produce when they were never intended to.

American Twang Reproduced.

The nasal twang of the native American which is commented upon by many British visitors to the United States, has been synthetically produced through the medium of an ordinary rubber tube by Sir Richard Paget, a noted English scientist. He made the tube give forth human vowel sounds during a lecture on the voice and by slightly pinching the tubing reproduced the twang of the Yankee.

Respect Your "Physical Machine"!

For your own health and comfort form a habit of consulting your Osteopathic Physician whenever your physical "machine" gets "out of sorts."

Correction in the early stages of any illness is much better than the necessarily slow process of eradicating it after the condition has become chronic.

Many otherwise serious ailments quickly yield to proper Osteopathic Treatment, but that is particularly true when they first make their appearance.

Conserve your energy and your resources by consulting your Osteopathic Physician at the right time.

You are invited to investigate—entirely without any obligation whatever—it may mean considerable to you.

Rub the Chest

For Deep, Heavy Colds

Here is the best way to get rid of a bad cold. First apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, helping the vapors inhaled to relieve tightness and soreness.

Build your body back to Health

TANLAC is a great natural builder. It revitalizes the blood, stimulates the digestive organs, rejuvenates the liver and peps you up all over.

From the four corners of the earth we gather the roots, barks and herbs that go into Tanlac. We compound them after the famous Tanlac formula that has brought health to millions.

Our files are crammed with testimonials from men and women in every walk of life, who state gratefully that Tanlac has brought them back to vigorous strength.

If you suffer from indigestion, loss of appetite, can't sleep or rest; if rheumatism is making life a torture; if your liver is out of sorts and your body has run down to skin and bones, get a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's and start taking it right away.

You'll be amazed to note the improvement that comes at once. For the first time in months you'll feel like eating some good solid food. You'll wake up in the morning rested and refreshed, ready for a good day's work. First thing you know you'll have some color in your cheeks and the sparkle of health back in your eyes.

Don't put off taking Tanlac. Begin now if you want to build your body back to health and vigor.

Baptist Minister Praises TANLAC

"I had suffered from stomach trouble and nerve troubles for over 30 years until I could hardly summon the strength necessary to prepare my sermons. Six weeks after taking Tanlac I had a brand new outlook on life. I had a fine appetite, steady nerves and a brand new digestive system. Tanlac has never failed me."

SOCIETY

Miss Mildred Price And Robert McKim Wed in Beaver, Pa.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mildred Price, daughter of Mrs. Ida Price of West Seventh street, to Robert McKim, son of Mrs. Mary McKim of Wellsville. The ceremony was solemnized yesterday in the Presbyterian church in Beaver, Pa., with Rev. Alexander, pastor, officiating.

The bride wore a gown of delft blue panne velvet, with a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was instructor in the Bell telephone office.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Wellsville high school with the class of 1917 and of Culver Military Academy. He is foreman at the Wellsville freight depot. Following an eastern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. McKim will be at home to friends at 130½ Fourth street.

Missionary Society Meeting.

Owing to the appearance of the Jubilee Singers in the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society meeting was postponed until tonight.

The Young Woman's Foreign Missionary society will be received in the home of Miss Baum of Seventh street tonight.

Farmers Too Many, He Says.

Guy Huston, an economist, says that one of America's biggest problems could be solved by the abandonment of about a million farms now under cultivation. There are 6,500,000 farms in the United States and Mr. Huston said that a million never were intended for a plough. The trouble is that their owners spend money and energy trying to make them produce when they were never intended to.

If you're room's too dry and you can't regulate the heat with your old, base burner, open the window and the air'll be a little damper.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Members of the General Lyon post, Rev. Davidson and singers of the United Presbyterian church, for their kindness and floral offerings in the recent death of our beloved uncle, Daniel Clark.

American Twang Reproduced.

The nasal twang of the native American which is commented upon by many British visitors to the United States, has been synthetically produced through the medium of an ordinary rubber tube by Sir Richard Paget, a noted English scientist. He made the tube give forth human vowel sounds during a lecture on the voice and by slightly pinching the tubing reproduced the twang of the Yankee.

LIVE FACTS ABOUT FARMING

Farmers Can Earn More by Eating Their Own Foods

By AMOS BRADFORD.

ON many farms the income may be increased by better use of human food. I know full well that most housewives are superior cooks and set tables that are replete in quantity and deliciousness. But in truth both tables and farm stomachs are often overburdened with the tempting viands that have been prepared by hard work and long hours of the women folks of the farm. We are overdoing our eating; some of us eat too much, some not the right kind of food.

Doctor Wiley, who has done so much for pure foods, wrote some years ago that the medicine of the future would be foods, not drugs. The doctor is both a doctor of medicine and a chemist and because of his long years as expert in the United States Department of Agriculture, he speaks with an authority that only experience can give. The recent investigations of the food and biological chemists have shown above all doubt that vitimines and minerals and quality proteins are the most decisive factors of growth and health. We get sick because we don't eat right or commit other errors of living. If we eat the proper foods, in proper amounts and secure the necessary minerals and vitimines we sustain our bodies in vigor, efficiency and health.

One of the errors of eating is in the use of refined flours and breads. Those are, very white in color but they supply starch largely—which makes us fat but robs the blood of the vital ingredients original contained therein. We feed these rejected coarser coats to the pigs and calves and they grow strong in bone and thrifty in flesh. Our boys and girls fed on the de-mineralized and de-vitamined breads have poor teeth, bones denied of calcium, and muscles and organs robbed of the growth-stimulating and disease-resisting factors of the food. Even our cereal breakfoods are robbed of their virtues.

Why Buy Table Foods.

I am confident that a redirection of our eating methods will do more to improve the human efficiency of the farm than will effort extended in any other direction. We can increase our farm income also by using more farm-raised foods and buying fewer of the foods that come from manufacturing plants. Moreover, these farm foods are the best, some of the commercial foods the worst; why, therefore, buy them?

Supose we start with dairy products. Health and growth are based on these fine mineral and vitamine dairy products—strong and rich also in the ingredients so long considered the basis of food elements. The requirement is a quart of milk for every child and a pint for every adult. And butter, not oleo, for spreading on bread; and cheese frequently. Eggs go along with this group and they rank high.

Vegatables in abundance particularly the leafy vegetables—onions, cabbage, kale, turnip, parsnips, and carrots. These vegetables should not be cooked in much water but should be cooked down, not throwing away the water, since the minerals otherwise would be lost. Vegetables should be eaten every day, the more for variety the better. Taken as a group, the root vegetables are equal or superior to whole wheat as a source of minerals.

Value of Leafy Vegetables.

The leafy vegetables also must be used. On the whole, present scientific knowledge rates them as the most essential foods known, with the exception of milk and eggs. The essential qualities of leafy foods are the vitamines, minerals, and cellulose which gives bulk to the food. Spinach contains more phosphories, calcium and iron in proportion to its other food ingredients than any other food. Lettuce ranks as a close second. Tomatoes, though not a leaf, rank high as a salad food and should be used in liberal quantities.

Fruits are essential in the human diet—any and all. They contain vitamines (orange's prevent scurvey) natural sugar, cellulose and organic acids. These organic fruit acids prevent an acid condition of the blood. Fruits are the natural dessert and should replace the cakes and pies t a considerable extent.

A reasonable amount of meat is to be desired, but not meat three meals a day. Potatoes are best baked or boiled in the jackets. This method of cooking saves the minerals, which the human body needs. For bread, whole-wheat bread, not the white bread cleared of all its bran, vitamines and minerals. If we eat along these lines we will be in better health, our food will cost less money, more dollars will remain on the farm and our farm income will benefit by the dollars saved which otherwise would be spent for city made food and on doctor's bills.

Prunes Prosper Best

ALTHOUGH plums of one or more of the various types are grown in almost every nook and corner of the United States in home orchards, the Pacific States of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho produce the greater part of the commercial crop of plums and prunes. Practically two-thirds of all the plum and prune trees are in these States. Of the nearly 20,000,000 bushel produced annually, only about 3,000,000 bushels are produced in States other than the four named.

The Splint and Its Treatment

ANY enlargement of the bone occurring on the inside of the leg between the knee and fetlock of a horse comes under the name of splint. The usual cause is the impact of the foot on the hard road, but it may be the result of a blow, a twisting strain or faulty conformation. If you notice a young horse going lame while doing road work, it is well to examine for splints. While working there seems to be no lameness at all, and when standing there seems to be no pain, but when put to a trot the horse shows lameness and may raise and lower his head.

If taken in time a splint can be cured. The first thing is to give the animal rest and place in quarters where there is a soft floor, preferably the ground, and when so quartered one very frequently effects a complete cure. The application of cold bandages acts well. If such treatment fails, apply a blister of red iodine of mercury, one tablespoonful to two t a blespoonfuls of lard. This is rubbed on every day for two to four days. Then wait until the little scabs fall off and if the horse is still lame repeat the blister.

The horse should be tied short in order to prevent rubbing or biting the leg. Four days after the last application of blister, wash carefully with warm water and soap, and over it apply every day or so a little lard to prevent dryness and also to loosen the scabs.

What Every One Should Know

When Buying a Cow

THERE is a lot to be known about a cow and her ways when one sets out to buy. It is just as easy to get roped in buying an unprofitable cow as it is a horse. A good cow should have a long, thin tail, a fairly long neck having no loose skin on the under side, and the udder should be large and with as little flesh on it as possible, and the broader it is from teat to teat, as seen from behind, the better.

Get a cow that is somewhat of a wedge-shape as you view her from the front and side. She should be somewhat narrow through the shoulders, but thick as you look backward through the stomach; and from the side she shows great depth from the back down through the stomach, and this lessens as you look forward. A cow of this type has capacity for food, and thus will yield more milk than another with such capacity not indicated. The beef cow is blocky and square-like—just the opposite of the best type of dairy cow. The beef cow or cow of beefy tendencies is compact, whereas the dairy cow is thin, angular and loose-jointed. If one observes these facts he should make a fairly wise selection in choosing a cow for milk and butter production.

Trap the Nitrogen

ACID PHOSPHATE may be sprinkled on the manure in the gutters of the stable or scattered about in the stalls. If this has not been done, forty pounds of acid phosphate may be added to each load of manure. The fertilizing materials are, in this manner, added to the soil, but before being so used they have entered into combination with the ammonia or nitrogen of the manure and tied it up, so to speak, that it may not escape into the air. Go into a stable and note by smell this daily loss of nitrogen into the atmosphere. Why not use acid phosphate for trapping it?

Amount of Hay in Mow

THE amount of hay in the mow may be determined by multiplying the length by the width in yards and then the product by the height in yards and dividing by fifteen if the hay is well packed. If it is not very high or is loosely packed, divide by eighteen. The result is the number of tons in the mow.

Putting Harness in Condition

WITH the easing up of field work on the farm and much less use of the horses, now is a good time to put the harness in prime condition again.

All harness should be cleaned and oiled at least once a year. And yet how common it is never to give such care to the harness! Leather is a substance that must be well cared for if it is to last.

In washing, use warm water and Castile or other good white toilet soap. A sponge or brush is best for doing the scrubbing. The hardened grease and dirt that have accumulated on portions of the harness should be scraped off, the back of a knife-blade or other metal being used for the purpose. After giving a thorough washing, rinse in warm water and hang up for drying in a warm room. Avoid placing near a stove.

When the harness is nearly, but not completely dry, apply the oil. Either castor oil or neatsfoot oil or the two mixed is the best oiling material. A touch of color is secured by adding a bit of lampblack. Keep in a warm place for 24 hours before using. Of course, before cleaning, the harness is gone over and, if necessary, properly repaired.

Raising Winter Greens for Hens

FARMERS who make it a point to set out an acreage to mangels for Winter feed will do well to reserve a portion of them for poultry flock during the rest of the Winter. Facts show that green food is as important for laying hens as silage is for cows in milk. In the Summer and Fall, when the hens are on range, they secure their own daily supply of "greens," and they forage for bugs and worms. This combination with ordinary farm grains makes an ideal solution of the chicken feed problem.

When the snow and frost come, however, it is a different situation altogether. Even far to the south the grass has lost its freshness or disappeared, and the bugs and worms have sought their Winter quarters. Hence something to take their places is necessary. Meat scraps will do it so far as the animal foods are concerned, but you can't buy green grass in cotton bags. You must grow it or find a substitute.

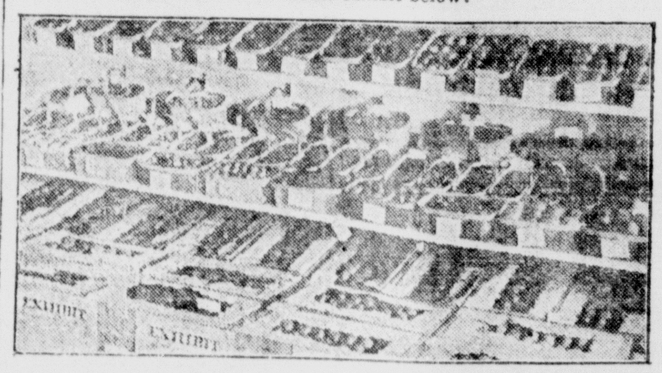
Two green crops stand out ideally for this purpose—mangels and cabbage. When frost comes store the mangels for later use in Winter and Spring. Use the cabbages first. Hens relish both and will consume larger quantities of either in proportion to size and weight than any other farm animal. These green crops will increase egg production and give vigor and thrift to the laying flock. Of course, sprouted oats are excellent, but considerable labor is entailed. Take the precaution now and have feeds for Winter use.

The Wage of Farmers

THE United States Labor Department states that the average full-time pay for all classes of workers in the entire men's clothing industry is now 25.4 per cent of the 1913 wage. Compared with the farm labor income, which is below the 1913 level, this type of city worker has had a tremendous advantage in meeting living costs. Besides, food costs have steadily declined since the war, but the wage of this type of labor has increased 5 per cent since 1922 and 69 per cent since 1919!

The Value of Fruit Exhibits

FRUIT shows are worth while, both to growers and to the consuming public. They show the consumer what good fruit looks like, the kinds of fruit grown in the neighborhood, and through competition growers are inspired to exert their best efforts in growing and exhibiting. Who fails to get a lesson or an inspiration from the splendid fruit pictured in the fruit exhibit below!

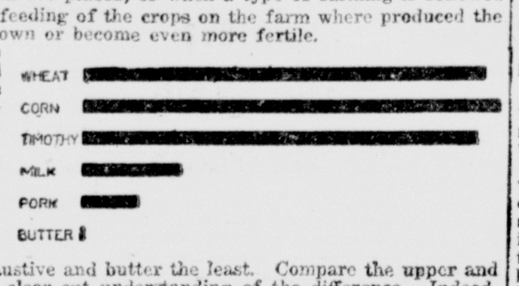


Fruit exhibits should always form a part of every agricultural exhibition, regardless of whether it is a fruit section or not. The point is the world needs more fruit for health and well-being of the people. A few trees or a small orchard may give some trouble and require some care but fruit trees are worth all they cost. We will never have rightly-balanced farms until a small orchard is made as much a part of the farmstead as the outbuildings, the garden, the garage and other permanent improvements of the farm. A fruit exhibit will help drive these facts home. We need more farm orchards to supply the family with fruit, and we need more fruit exhibits.

Grain Farming Exhausts Soil; Livestock Does Not

TYPE of farming greatly influences the productivity of the soil. Exclusive grain farming uses up available fertility and the soil wears out, as the common expression goes. Continued over many years such farming exhausts the land regardless of how rich it originally may have been. On the other hand, when crops are rotated so that the legumes may restore the nitrogen used up, and the minerals sent away in grain are placed, or when a type of farming is followed that permits the feeding of the crops on the farm where produced the soil will hold its own or become even more fertile.

In the sketch are contrasted different farm products in respect to the drain on the land when a ton of each is sold from the farm. Of those products listed here, wheat and corn and timothy are the most exhaustive and butter the least. Compare the upper and lower lines for a clear cut understanding of the difference. Indeed, there is so little fertility removed in a ton of butter as to be almost a negligible quantity. Contrast also the difference in price of a ton of wheat and a ton of butter. This is the reason why dairy farming builds up the land and wheat growing exhausts it. The same situation obtains where exclusive corn or tobacco or cotton is grown. Cotton is no more exhaustive on the land than butter if the seed are returned to the same soil from which they were taken. Unfortunately, this is not the case, the seed are sold as meal, and livestock farms in other parts of the world are built up.



Both milk and pork when sold off the farm carry away only a small amount of fertility. When you take into consideration the value of these finished products of the farm the worth of the plant food in them is very small in comparison with the market value when sold. The sketch tells in a very striking manner the story of why grain farming exhausts the land and why livestock improves it.

Fattening Lambs in Corn Fields

WHILE the weather last fall was better than was expected in letting the corn crop mature, in many sections this was not the case and a very large amount of unmarketable corn has been in evidence. Corn growers, especially in the northern portions of the country, are always confronted with the problem of finding ways and means for best utilizing the crop. If such corn cannot be marketed it can, nevertheless, be used for every feeding purpose on the farms for which corn is ordinarily used.

Many farmers have for years fattened their steers on such corn, and in recent years the practice has grown of fattening sheep and lambs in the cornfield. Farmers doing this pronounce the method both economical and profitable; the best way of harvesting this soft and immature corn. This past season more sheep and lambs have been so fed than in many years. Both sheep and lambs give good gains in weight when given the run of the corn fields. Lambs were turned into the fields while the corn was beyond the milk stage. The lower blades of the corn were still green and these were eaten clean to a height as far as the lambs could reach.

Not only the corn blades, but the weeds which were growing in the field were cleaned up before the husks and grain on the cob were attacked. Even though frosted, the corn tended to harden and to reach toward greater maturity. Sheep do the same with respect to weeds and corn blades. In the strictly corn belt practically every sheep owner this year has used his sheep to dispose of part or all of his late corn. It has saved the labor of harvesting and converted the corn fields into meat in the cheapest and most satisfactory manner. Though frost shortened the corn crop, it did not the meat crop. That soft corn went into steers, sheep and hogs. It was, or is now being, marketed on the hoof.

Wintering the Ducks

IN wintering ducks any sort of structure will do that gives simple shelter. While a duck is a water fowl, nevertheless this bird suffers from rain and snow. Remember, that in its wild state it migrated to the warmth of the South as the Winter season approached. It is able to stand considerable dry cold, but not wet feathers, as forced to do on many farms. The best shelter is one tightly closed on one side and both ends. Plenty of ventilation is desirable. The floor should be covered with straw. Let them have the run of a yard in favorable weather, even though the weather is cold. Exercise is good for all breeds of ducks. But don't make them find shelter under a tree or old rubbish.

Getting at Bottom of Solving Farm's Man Power Problem

By CHARLES W. BURKETT.

Famous Agricultural Author and Editor Farm Extension Service.

IT was Dean Cook, that level-headed, master-minded veteran dairyman, I think, who once said to me, "The only way to get a good farm foreman is to raise him." And the best way to get good farm men is to let them grow up on the farm. When boys start on a farm and grow up on it they know the ways of the owner—know the land and the stock, and the implements and the machines, and every year they become more useful and valuable. They are happy and contented, and will in time have farms of their own; and better still, know how to manage them and take care of the stock.

A young man is better off on a farm than in a city. Farming is no longer the dull, plodding, uneventful, dreary existence that we have read about or heard our grandparents tell about. There is sufficient hurry, pressure and excitement to stir the blood and stimulate the efforts of an energetic boy or man. A farmer "just has to work lively." He must battle with the winds and storms, with rain and snow, with heat and cold. He must if he would win. He must be a plucky man. If there is no "snap" in him he had better find some slow, steady unvarying employment in a town or city. He is not the man for modern agriculture.

Our work on the farm constantly changes. It is rare, outside of special lines such as dairying, poultry raising, etc., that one finds a whole week devoted to the same kind of work. In the season of plowing, whether Spring, late Summer or late Fall, we plow, then harrow, then drill the seed or do something else. If it rains there are other things to do on the well-managed farm. We are constantly getting improved implements and machines, and needing more intelligence and skill in our operations. Hence, we need better men on the farm—better owners, in some cases, and quite generally better men as farm hands. We want these better men, and to get them we must commence with the boys.

MORE MARRIED MEN NEEDED.

We must also get more married men into the neighborhood and give their boys a good training on the farm. Farm work for the most part should be year-round work, not seasonal. Farm profits come from labor, not land. There should not be a large fluctuation in the demand for labor on our farms. Unsteady employment and high wages are utterly demoralizing. The one recourse is to plan work for the year-round and secure good men at reasonable wages, establish them in their own homes on the farm and let them feel that so long as they do what is right and square they will hold their jobs.

I have talked with a number of men working on farms, and invariably they tell me they prefer steady work throughout the year at moderate wages rather than higher pay for seasonal work. These men must have places to live and food to eat. If they work but seven or eight months during the year they naturally become discontented and never really get fully wedded to farm work. How different on farms where labor is employed for a twelve months' year, where the men are provided with homes on the farm and become fixed to it. It is this type that makes the best farm labor and helps the owner to carry on the farm and who can be depended on through thick and thin.

Reclamation of Land

THE late Secretary Wallace, in his last report, stated that "Department studies have shown that land projects heretofore undertaken have made much land available for cultivation before there was any need for it. Until there is greater need for cultivated crops, much of the land that it is proposed to reclaim should be left to pasture, timber and game. Additional land reclamation at the present time will merely aggravate the adverse conditions under which farmers are working."

Walks and Talks on the Farm

How Good Reading Helps Your Farming

I HAVE been making the most of my spare time this winter in reading. Of all people the habit of reading should reach its best and fullest results on the farm. The long evenings are favorable to it; and one's work gives a chance to think over what one reads. It is here that the fullest value is realized. City people read like they eat—they take a dash at it and run to something else. There is no time to think over what is read, to digest it, to apply it. On the farm it is different. There one thinks! Undoubtedly the reason why so many farm boys reach such heights when they leave the farm is their unconscious training in thinking, as they went about their farm tasks and their ability to analyze things. No place equals the farm for doing either.

I have been reading a new book—one of the finest and best farm books I have ever seen. It is by Samuel Fraser on American fruits. Its 900 pages is a wonderful store house of the best information and knowledge on fruit growing. Indeed, the book reads like a novel, so apt are the phrases.

It is a book for every farmer, whether he raises much fruit or little, whether he is a commercial orchardist or only possesses a dozen trees. It is one of those books one likes to keep within handy reach.

No farm library is large, but every farm should have a library—should have at hand enough of the more important agricultural books for steady reference and study. This is not "bookish" farming; it is practical farming, the right background to enable the farmer to meet his problems as they arise and to make of him a master farmer. The boy who is to be or wants to be a farmer can have no better start than access to or possession of the right kind of farm books. Along with the other conveniences we need farm books in the farm home. There is no other habit so worthy of cultivation as the reading habit. Books and papers—what a delight these are for every season of the year; and for the entire family.

LIVE FACTS ABOUT FARMING

Farmers Can Earn More by Eating Their Own Foods

By AMOS BRADFORD.

ON many farms the income may be increased by better use of human food. I know full well that most housewives are superior cooks and set tables that are replete in quantity and deliciousness. But in truth both tables and farm stomachs are often overburdened with the tempting viands that have been prepared by hard work and long hours of the women folks of the farm. We are overdoing our eating; some of us eat too much, some not the right kind of food.

Doctor Wiley, who has done so much for pure foods, wrote some years ago that the medicine of the future would be foods, not drugs. The doctor is both a doctor of medicine and a chemist and because of his long years as expert in the United States Department of Agriculture, he speaks with an authority that only experience can give. The recent investigations of the food and biological chemists have shown above all doubt that vitimines and minerals and quality proteins are the most decisive factors of growth and health. We get sick because we don't eat right or commit other errors of living. If we eat the proper foods, in proper amounts and secure the necessary minerals and vitimines we sustain our bodies in vigor, efficiency and health.

One of the errors of eating is in the use of refined flours and breads. Those are, very white in color but they supply starch largely—which makes us fat but robs the blood of the vital ingredients original contained therein. We feed these rejected coarser coats to the pigs and calves and they grow strong in bone and thrifty in flesh. Our boys and girls fed on the de-mineralized and de-vitamined breads have poor teeth, bones denied of calcium, and muscles and organs robbed of the growth-stimulating and disease-resisting factors of the food. Even our cereal breakfoods are robbed of their virtues.

Why Buy Table Foods.

I am confident that a redirection of our eating methods will do more to improve the human efficiency of the farm than will effort extended in any other direction. We can increase our farm income also by using more farm-raised foods and buying fewer of the foods that come from manufacturing plants. Moreover, these farm foods are the best, some of the commercial foods the worst; why, therefore, buy them?

Supose we start with dairy products. Health and growth are based on these fine mineral and vitamine dairy products—strong and rich also in the ingredients so long considered the basis of food elements. The requirement is a quart of milk for every child and a pint for every adult. And butter, not oleo, for spreading on bread; and cheese frequently. Eggs go along with this group and they rank high.

Vegetables in abundance particularly the leafy vegetables—onions, cabbage, kale, turnip, parsnips, and carrots. These vegetables should not be cooked in much water but should be cooked down, not throwing away the water, since the minerals otherwise would be lost. Vegetables should be eaten every day, the more for variety the better. Taken as a group, the root vegetables are equal or superior to whole wheat as a source of minerals.

Value of Leafy Vegetables.

The leafy vegetables also must be used. On the whole, present scientific knowledge rates them as the most essential foods known, with the exception of milk and eggs. The essential qualities of leafy foods are the vitamines, minerals, and cellulose which gives bulk to the food. Spinach contains more phosphories, calcium and iron in proportion to its other food ingredients than any other food. Lettuce ranks as a close second. Tomatoes, though not a leaf, rank high as a salad food and should be used in liberal quantities.

Fruits are essential in the human diet—any and all. They contain vitamines (orange's prevent scurvey) natural sugar, cellulose and organic acids. These organic fruit acids prevent an acid condition of the blood. Fruits are the natural dessert and should replace the cakes and pies to a considerable extent.

A reasonable amount of meat is to be desired, but not meat three meals a day. Potatoes are best baked or boiled in the jackets. This method of cooking saves the minerals, which the human body needs. For bread, whole-wheat bread, not the white bread cleared of all its bran, vitamines and minerals. If we eat along these lines we will be in better health, our food will cost less money, more dollars will remain on the farm and our farm income will benefit by the dollars saved which otherwise would be spent for city made food and on doctor's bills.

Prunes Prosper Best

ALTHOUGH plums of one or more of the various types are grown in almost every nook and corner of the United States in home orchards, the Pacific States of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho produce the greater part of the commercial crop of plums and prunes. Practically two-thirds of all the plum and prune trees are in these States. Of the nearly 20,000,000 bushel produced annually, only about 3,000,000 bushels are produced in States other than the four named.

The Splint and Its Treatment

ANY enlargement of the bone occurring on the inside of the leg between the knee and fetlock of a horse comes under the name of splint. The usual cause is the impact of the foot on the hard road, but it may be the result of a blow, a twisting strain or faulty conformation. If you notice a young horse going lame while doing road work, it is well to examine for splints. While working there seems to be no lameness at all, and when standing there seems to be no pain, but when put to a trot the horse shows lameness and may raise and lower his head.

If taken in time a splint can be cured. The first thing is to give the animal rest and place in quarters where there is a soft floor, preferably the ground, and when so quartered one very frequently effects a complete cure. The application of cold bandages acts well. If such treatment fails, apply a blister of red iodine of mercury, one tablespoonful to two tablespoonfuls of lard. This is rubbed on every day for two to four days. Then wait until the little scabs fall off and if the horse is still lame repeat the blister.

The horse should be tied short in order to prevent rubbing or biting the leg. Four days after the last application of blister, wash carefully with warm water and soap, and over it apply every day or so a little lard to prevent dryness and also to loosen the scabs.

What Every One Should Know

When Buying a Cow

THERE is a lot to be known about a cow and her ways when one sets out to buy. It is just as easy to get roped in buying an unprofitable cow as it is a horse. A good cow should have a long, thin tail, a fairly long neck having no loose skin on the under side, and the udder should be large and with as little flesh on it as possible, and the broader it is from teat to teat, as seen from behind, the better.

Get a cow that is somewhat of a wedge-shape as you view her from the front and side. In the season of plowing, whether Spring, late Summer or late Fall, we plow, then harrow, then drill the seed or do something else. If it rains there are other things to do on the well-managed farm. We are constantly getting improved implements and machines, and needing more intelligence and skill in our operations. Hence, we need better men on the farm—better owners, in some cases, and quite generally better men as farm hands. We want these better men, and to get them we must commence with the boys.

MORE MARRIED MEN NEEDED.

We must also get more married men into the neighborhood and give their boys a good training on the farm. Farm work for the most part should be year-round work, not seasonal. Farm profits come from labor, not land. There should not be a large fluctuation in the demand for labor on our farms. Unsteady employment and high wages are utterly demoralizing. The one recourse is to plan work for the year-round and secure good men at reasonable wages, establish them in their own homes on the farm and let them feel that so long as they do what is right and square they will hold their jobs.

I have talked with a number of men working on farms, and invariably they tell me they prefer steady work throughout the year at moderate wages rather than higher pay for seasonal work. These men must have places to live and food to eat. If they work but seven or eight months during the year they naturally become discontented and never really get fully wedded to farm work. How different on farms where labor is employed for a twelve months' year, where the men are provided with homes on the farm and become fixed to it. It is this type that makes the best farm labor and helps the owner to carry on the farm and who can be depended on through thick and thin.

Reclamation of Land

THE late Secretary Wallace, in his last report, stated that "Department studies have shown that land projects heretofore undertaken have made much land available for cultivation before there was any need for it. Until there is greater need for cultivated crops, much of the land that it is proposed to reclaim should be left to pasture, timber and game. Additional land reclamation at the present time will merely aggravate the adverse conditions under which farmers are working."

Walks and Talks on the Farm

How Good Reading Helps Your Farming

I HAVE been making the most of my spare time this winter in reading. Of all people the habit of reading should reach its best and fullest results on the farm. The long evenings are favorable to it; and one's work gives a chance to think over what one reads. It is here that the fullest value is realized. City people read like they eat—they take a dash at it and run to something else. There is no time to think over what is read, to digest it, to apply it. On the farm it is different. There one thinks! Undoubtedly the reason why so many farm boys reach such heights when they leave the farm is their unconscious training in thinking, as they went about their farm tasks and their ability to analyze things. No place equals the farm for doing either.

I have been reading a new book—one of the finest and best farm books I have ever seen. It is by Samuel Fraser on American fruits. Its 900 pages is a wonderful store house of the best information and knowledge on fruit growing. Indeed, the book reads like a novel, so apt are the phrases.

It is a book for every farmer, whether he raises much fruit or little, whether he is a commercial orchardist or only possesses a dozen trees. It is one of those books one likes to keep within handy reach.

No farm library is large, but every farm should have a library—should have at hand enough of the more important agricultural books for steady reference and study. This is not "bookish" farming; it is practical farming, the right background to enable the farmer to meet his problems as they arise and to make of him a master farmer. The boy who is to be or wants to be a farmer can have no better start than access to or possession of the right kind of farm books. Along with the other conveniences we need farm books in the farm home. There is no other habit so worthy of cultivation as the reading habit. Books and papers—what a delight these are for every season of the year; and for the entire family.

BROWN OPPOSES LIQUOR BILLS

State Prohibition Head Assails Legislative Measures.

Two bills introduced in the house of representatives aim at prohibition law enforcement in West Virginia, according to State Prohibition Commissioner Brown. In a statement issued yesterday the commissioner said:

"Eleven bills have been introduced in the house of delegates bearing on prohibition and enforcement of prohibition laws either directly or indirectly.

"Two of these bills, house bill No 375 and house bill No. 408, are hostile to prohibition and would practically annul enforcement of the law in West Virginia. The abolishment of the prohibition department as proposed in these bills would throw upon the superintendent of the department of public safety more than double the amount of office work now required of him.

"The supervision of enforcement involves monthly reports from all justices, mayors and clerks of courts covering all prohibition cases prosecuted in the state. The regulation of the sale of alcohols, wine and liquor involve the issuance of more than 10,000 permits a year, inspecting dealers, collecting fees, and requiring on an average of seventy-five or eighty letters daily. The preparation of legal forms comprising warrants, bonds, commitments, forms of reports, is an essential part of the work as the construction of the law in more than fifty decisions of the supreme court in the last three years has made it necessary to constantly revise warrants, indictments and other forms of procedure in the courts.

"House bill No. 318 is a step backward in proposing a return to the outlawed prescription business. At the instance of the druggists and physicians of West Virginia the perscription was abolished by the legislature of 1913, in the passage of the Yost law, because of its widespread abuse. State after state has followed our example until more than one-half of the states in the union have abolished the prescription as proposed in this law. If we are to have 'medical whiskey' the Volstead prescription law is certainly not the method of dispensing it."

Says His Prescription Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pain and Twinges--Is Guaranteed

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

All druggists in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if ALLENRHU, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it as above in every instance.

BANKING CHANGES URGED IN BILLS

A number of changes in the laws relating to banking in West Virginia are proposed in several bills introduced in the legislature with the approval of State Banking Commissioner Abbott and of the legislative committee of the state bankers' association.

The bills were introduced in the senate by Senator Nataman Jackson of the eighth district, former state banking commissioner, and in the house of delegates by Delegate Andrews, of Boone, chairman of the committee on banking.

One of the measures would place mortgage and discount companies under the jurisdiction of the state banking commissioner and would clear up any doubts as to the meaning of the present law in several particulars.

Another bill would take the state from the place of preferred creditor of banks and put it on a level with ordinary depositors.

The third bill endorsed by the state banking department would require a surety bond from every counting officer of a bank. The present law allows a counting officer to give either surety or personal bonds. The bill would also require the state banking commissioner and his assistant commissioners to give surety bonds. The present law does not require any bond from these officials.

G. O. P. TICKET FOR WELLSBURG

Two candidates for mayor, and five for city collector and treasurer, made known their intention, at a call meeting of the Wellsburgh Republican executive committee, held in the office of Mayor W. T. McCreary last evening.

Candidates for the mayoralty are George Nichols and Walter Hahn. Aspirants to the city collector and treasurer's office are Clyde Thompson, John Good, Walter Lewis, Ashley Roberts and A. B. Noland.

Acting upon these nominations the executive committee decided that a primary election would be held on March 14, almost a month prior to the April election. The field will remain open for candidates until February 28.

Mayor W. T. McCreary, despite his assertions that he will not become a candidate to succeed himself, was not present at last night's meeting, and may announce his candidacy later.

BROOKE OFFICIALS CONTINUE RAIDS

Charles Caplin, proprietor of a pool room in Beach Bottom was arraigned on three separate charges last night as the outgrowth of a raid by Brooke County authorities on his place early Sunday morning. He was given a hearing before squire S. G. Barber of Beach Bottom.

Caplin was found guilty on two charges: operating a gambling house, $50 and costs; allowing minors to play pool and gamble, $100 and costs and 60 days in jail. The latter charge was the result of the arrest of William Steele, 17.

Caplin was arraigned on a third charge of selling liquor but requested that the hearing be postponed till tonight. Three alleged gamblers, arrested in the raid, are said to have confessed that they purchased liquor from Caplin.

Two Men Slain In Gun Duel After Argument Over $50

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3.—Two men are dead here today as a result of a gun duel said to have grown out of an argument over a $50 bill in Herbert Fink's millionaire cafe in Gretna, a suburb, last night. The dead are Frank Burke, of McDonoughville, La., and L. E. Vollmer, of San Antonio, Texas.

Vollmer and a friend, who has disappeared since the affair, are said to have accused Burke of stealing the bill from Vollmer. Burke allowed them to search him.

Upon failing to find it, the argument reorpener with intensity.

Vollmer drew an automatic pistol and shot Burke three times. Burke shot Vollmer in the head. Burke was paroled from the state penitentiary about a year ago where he was serving a sentence for killing Captain Joseph Fisher, chief of Jefferson parish police, about eight years ago.

1924 taxes became a lien April 15th, 1924, the day preceding the second Monday in April.

First Half must be paid not later than December 20th, 1924. Last Half must be paid not later than June 20th, 1925.

The correct way to pay a full year's tax without penalty is to pay in December for December and the following June.

Penalty on delinquent Real Estate and Personal Property is 10 per cent.

When writing for a statement of your taxes, remember property appears on the Treasurer's book's in the name of the person having title on April 13, 1924, and that the law requires the Treasurer's books and receipts to be made out in the name of the party owning property when the lien took effect.

In writing for statement of taxes, always send last receipt, or give name of owner in April 1924, stating plainly in what city, town or township located, and whether real or personal property.

When you write for statement or pay by mail, enclose a self addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Special taxes are written separately on yellow slips. If you have Special tax, insist on getting the yellow receipt before leaving Treasurer's Office and avoid delinquent notices.

Examine your receipts and see that they are correct before you leave the Treasurer's Office.

Treasurer's Office will be open from 7 A. M. to 5 P. M.

BROWN OPPOSES LIQUOR BILLS

State Prohibition Head Assails Legislative Measures.

Two bills introduced in the house of representatives aim at prohibition law enforcement in West Virginia, according to State Prohibition Commissioner Brown. In a statement issued yesterday the commissioner said:

"Eleven bills have been introduced in the house of delegates bearing on prohibition and enforcement of prohibition laws either directly or indirectly.

"Two of these bills, house bill No 375 and house bill No. 408, are hostile to prohibition and would practically annul enforcement of the law in West Virginia. The abolishment of the prohibition department as proposed in these bills would throw upon the superintendent of the department of public safety more than double the amount of office work now required of him.

"The supervision of enforcement involves monthly reports from all justices, mayors and clerks of courts covering all prohibition cases prosecuted in the state. The regulation of the sale of alcohols, wine and liquor involve the issuance of more than 10,000 permits a year, inspecting dealers, collecting fees, and requiring on an average of seventy-five or eighty letters daily. The preparation of legal forms comprising warrants, bonds, commitments, forms of reports, is an essential part of the work as the construction of the law in more than fifty decisions of the supreme court in the last three years has made it necessary to constantly revise warrants, indictments and other forms of procedure in the courts.

"House bill No. 318 is a step backward in proposing a return to the outlawed prescription business. At the instance of the druggists and physicians of West Virginia the perscription was abolished by the legislature of 1913, in the passage of the Yost law, because of its widespread abuse. State after state has followed our example until more than one-half of the states in the union have abolished the prescription as proposed in this law. If we are to have 'medical whiskey' the Volstead prescription law is certainly not the method of dispensing it."

Says His Prescription Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pain and Twinges--Is Guaranteed

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

All druggists in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if ALLENRHU, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed all druggists everywhere to guarantee it as above in every instance.

BANKING CHANGES URGED IN BILLS

A number of changes in the law relating to banking in West Virginia are proposed in several bills introduced in the legislature with the approval of State Banking Commissioner Abbott and of the legislative committee of the state bankers' association.

The bills were introduced in the senate by Senator Nataman Jackson of the eighth district, former state banking commissioner, and in the house of delegates by Delegate Andrews, of Boone, chairman of the committee on banking.

One of the measures would place mortgage and discount companies under the jurisdiction of the state banking commissioner and would clear up any doubts as to the meaning of the present law in several particulars.

Another bill would take the state from the place of preferred creditor of banks and put it on a level with ordinary depositors.

The third bill endorsed by the state banking department would require a surety bond from every counting officer of a bank. The present law allows a counting officer to give either surety or personal bonds. The bill would also require the state banking commissioner and his assistant commissioners to give surety bonds. The present law does not require any bond from these officials.

G. O. P. TICKET FOR WELLSBURG

Two candidates for mayor, and five for city collector and treasurer, made known their intention, at a call meeting of the Wellsburgh Republican executive committee, held in the office of Mayor W. T. McCreary last evening.

Candidates for the mayoralty are George Nichols and Walter Hahn. Aspirants to the city collector and treasurer's office are Clyde Thompson, John Good, Walter Lewis, Ashley Roberts and A. B. Noland.

Acting upon these nominations the executive committee decided that a primary election would be held on March 14, almost a month prior to the April election. The field will remain open for candidates until February 28.

Mayor W. T. McCreary, despite his assertions that he will not become a candidate to succeed himself, was not present at last night's meeting, and may announce his candidacy later.

BROOKE OFFICIALS CONTINUE RAIDS

Charles Caplin, proprietor of a pool room in Beach Bottom was arraigned on three separate charges last night as the outgrowth of a raid by Brooke County authorities on his place early Sunday morning. He was given a hearing before squire S. G. Barber of Beach Bottom.

Caplin was found guilty on two charges; operating a gambling house, $50 and costs; allowing minors to play pool and gamble, $100 and costs and 60 days in jail. The latter charge was the result of the arrest of William Steele, 17.

Caplin was arraigned on a third charge of selling liquor but requested that the hearing be postponed till tonight. Three alleged gamblers, arrested in the raid, are said to have confessed that they purchased liquor from Caplin.

Two Men Slain In Gun Duel After Argument Over $50

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3—Two men are dead here today as a result of a gun duel said to have grown out of an argument over a $50 bill in Herbert Fink's millionaire cafe in Gretna, a suburb, last night. The dead are Frank Burke, of McDonoughville, La., and L. E. Vollmer, of San Antonio, Texas.

Vollmer and a friend, who has disappeared since the affair, are said to have accused Burke of stealing the bill from Vollmer. Burke allowed them to search him.

Upon failing to find it, the argument reorpener with intensity.

Vollmer drew an automatic pistol and shot Burke three times. Burke shot Vollmer in the head. Burke was paroled from the state penitentiary about a year ago where he was serving a sentence for killing Captain Joseph Fisher, chief of Jefferson parish police, about eight years ago.

1924 taxes became a lien April 15th, 1924, the day preceding the second Monday in April.

First Half must be paid not later than December 20th, 1924. Last Half must be paid not later than June 20th, 1925.

The correct way to pay a full year's tax without penalty is to pay in December for December and the following June.

Penalty on delinquent Real Estate and Personal Property is 10 per cent.

When writing for a statement of your taxes, remember property appears on the Treasurer's book's in the name of the person having title on April 13, 1924, and that the law requires the Treasurer's books and receipts to be made out in the name of the party owning property when the lien took effect.

In writing for statement of taxes, always send last receipt, or gi name of owner in April 1924, stating plainly in what city, town township located, and whether real or personal property.

When you write for statement or pay by mail, enclose a self a dressed stamped envelope for reply.

Special taxes are written separately on yellow slips. If you ha Special tax, insist on getting the yellow receipt before leaving Trea urer's Office and avoid delinquent notices.

Examine your receipts and see that they are correct before yo leave the Treasurer's Office.

Treasurer's Office will be open from 7 A. M. to 5 P. M.

our Delegations Make Pleas for Highway Improvements.

It was one of those old-fashioned eetings that the county commission- s held Monday, when delegations om four different townships ap- ared petitioning for road improve- ents. The outer office of Prose- ting Attorney R. M. Brookes was owded as it never was before.

For about three hours there was a neral discussion between the com- issioners and chairmen of delega- ons relative to new highways and e opening of new territory.

"Salineville has reached a crisis in s municipal career," declared Frank Judge, of Salineville, in urging the ommissioners to do something that ould give an improved highway from alineville northwest to Summitville, ence to Kensington. "Our business en are up against it. Their savings a lifetime is endangered. Only one ine is in operation and the plant of e National China company. To open is road will more than equal the stablishing of a new industry in alineville."

Frank Johnson, representing the oard of trustees of Franklin town- ip, opened the discussion. He de- lared that the trustees of Franklin ownship, the trustees of Washington ownship and also the trustees of ox township, Carroll county, were nited in having this road improved, nd at the earliest date possible.

Mr. Johnson declared that outside f the seven-tenths of a mile of this oad within the corporate limits of alineville, there was eighth-tenths of mile to be improved in Washington ownship. This would take the road nto Franklin township, and the latter ownship is ready to go ahead with egislation as would be necessary to ut the project over.

A small section of this route, No. s part of the work and pass such 20, extends through northeast corner of Fox township, in Carroll county, nd the Fox township trustees are willing to go along with the improve- ment of the road.

"We're a unit all along the line," Mr. Johnson continued. "We've been putting money into other road proj- ects of the county by paying our road assessments, and all we have outside of a mile of slag road is about 100 feet under a culvert. We've got our people with us. Now that we're all of one accord, we want to see this road go over. We're willing to go the limit. We're all set to go. We've had a road tight on in Franklin for 16 years, but it's all over now and while we're all of one mind let's go."

Thereupon the commissioners, on a motion of J. C. Kelly, and supported by Mr. Bye, placed a resolution on the journal authorizing County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk to make an estimate of the cost of the grading and surfacing of this road in Salineville, Washington township and Franklin township. By mutual agreement with the trustees of Fox township in Carroll county, Mr. Kirk will also make the survey and estimate for the section of road in that part of Carroll county.

Arthur G. Hass, of Alliance, but a property owner in East township, as the chairman of a delegation from that township, filed with the commissioners a petition containing 404 names, he declared, opposing the surfacing of the East Rochester-North Georgetown road. With Mr. Haas was E. M. Davis and John French.

Mr. Haas also filed with the commissioners a petition containing 385 names asking that the route of this road north from East Rochester be changed so that it would go over Chambersburg road.

"I think we have 60 per cent of the tax payers in our township on these petitions," Mr. Haas said. "The advertisement was not published in a newspaper of general circulation in our community. The East Rochester-North Georgetown road is not the most generally traveled road, but the route north by way of Chambersburg is."

"I'm afraid, gentlemen, this matter has gone too far to be changed now," suggested Mr. Berg. "The state highway department has approved this road, and we have no power to change an act of the highway department."

This road has been graded for three years or more, and not until this year has any objection ever been filed about the route or the surfacing of the road.

Both petitions were received by the commissioners.

"We'll give them consideration," Chairman Berg advised Mr. Haas.

Then came a delegation from Knox township, asking for the improvement of the road south from Westville to North Georgetown. This request came on the heels of the statement of Mr. Haas that the East Rochester-North Georgetown road had no northern opening.

Immediately afterwards another delegation from Knox township asked that the road from Valley to Salem be improved.

It was then disclosed that the two-mill levy campaign of some years ago included the improvement of the Westville-North Georgetown road.

"That's all for this morning," said Chairman Berg. "We're due for an inspection of the county home within the next 15 minutes."

Watch Child's Bowels

"California Fig Syrup" is Children's Harmless Laxative

Children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and gladly take it even when bilious, feverish, sick or constipated. No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without cramping or overacting. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Street Resurfacing Discussed at Meet Of Village Council

At a meeting of the Lisbon village council Monday night, there was some discussion about the resurfacing of Lincoln Way its entire length. Frank Swaney of East Liverpool told of the merits of Willite surfacing.

For several years the Lisbon council has been saving the money it receives from the automobile license tax, and over $7,000 is now in the treasury to the credit of this fund.

The council has purchased a motor truck to be used on the streets of the village, and it will be delivered in March.

Mayor Frank Albrecht in presenting his January police report showed that $363 was collected in fines that were turned into the safety fund, also $110 paid into the county judicial fund and $80 into the state fund. There is $100 in the hands of Mayor Albrecht which it has not been determined whether it belongs to the county or the village.

It may follow that another officer will be added to the present one man force. Councilmen hold one officer should work from noon until midnight and one from six at night until six o'clock in the morning.

MOTHER!

Watch Child's Bowels

"California Fig Syrup" is Children's Harmless Laxative

Children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and gladly take it even when bilious, feverish, sick or constipated. No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without cramping or overacting. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or may get an imitation fig syrup.

Street Resurfacing Discussed at Meet Of Village Council

At a meeting of the Lisbon village council Monday night, there was some discussion about the resurfacing of Lincoln Way its entire length. Frank Swaney of East Liverpool told of the merits of Willite surfacing.

For several years the Lisbon council has been saving the money it receives from the automobile license tax, and over $7,000 is now in the treasury to the credit of this fund.

The council has purchased a motor truck to be used on the streets of the village, and it will be delivered in March.

Mayor Frank Albrecht in presenting his January police report showed that $363 was collected in fines that were turned into the safety fund, also $110 paid into the county judicial fund and $80 into the state fund. There is $100 in the hands of Mayor Albrecht which it has not been determined whether it belongs to the county or the village.

It may follow that another officer will be added to the present one man force. Councilmen hold one officer should work from noon until midnight and one from six at night until six o'clock in the morning.

Station Abolished.

The little town of Moultrie is nothing more than a flag stop on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad now. The order went into effect Monday. The ticket office there has been closed.

Action Filed.

Through his counsel, L. M. Kyes, of East Palestine, Charles F. Wilhelm has filed an action in common pleas court against Caroline Kirk, of Lisbon, to recover $926 claimed due on a note given August 16, 1919, and which was due January 26, 1925. The note was secured by a mortgage on lot 747 Grandview addition, East Palestine.

Robbery Unsolved.

Although several clues have been followed and one arrest made, the robbery of the Huston men's furnishing goods store in Lisbon last week has not been solved. The Lisbon police have detained one suspect in jail for several days, but it is now said this clue is a false one.

Case Nolled.

Judge James G. Moore has nolled the case of John Grafton, charged with burglary with Merill Starkey, and has certified the case to the juvenile court. In the cause of Starkey, his former plea of not guilty to larceny has been withdrawn and a plea of guilty to petty larceny has been entered. Starkey was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail and ordered to pay the costs and stand committed until the costs are also paid.

Letters to Editor

What is Equipment.

East Liverpool, O., Feb. 2, 1925.
Editor Review-Tribune,
City.
Dear Sir:—

May I ask Mayor Brown, through the medium of The Review-Tribune, what can be classed as part of the equipment in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor?

Most people keep revolvers to protect themselves against crimes of violence being committed in the community. Can jewelry in any way be classed as part of equipment? Can money be stolen, seized or confiscated as part of equipment because it is used in the purchase of corks, bottles, etc., as containers for home brew and wine?

The people have a right to know where they stand on this matter and what fine-splitters can take from their homes as part of equipment when they make invasions.

Incidentally, I was lucky in discovering a jar of jam in my cellar with the cover torn off. It had fermented; the juice had become alcohol. I immediately destroyed it. What would have happened if licensed gunmen had found it? I suppose I should have been taken before a court and a fine imposed upon me.

However, despite this precaution there remains the danger and dread of fine-splitting detectives planting the evidence, because there is an incentive for them to do it.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM HAZELHURST, Sr.

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Three Generations Kept Healthy and Happy

"Beecham's Pills were always considered indispensable by my parents during sixty years of married life and I am never without them in my home, as they are used when required by myself (aged sixty-one), and wife and children. This covers a period of over eighty years.

My wife and sons also believe there is no remedy for constipation and biliousness equal to Beecham's Pills.

So many so-called "cures" for biliousness and kindred troubles leave after effects that are certainly injurious, but Beecham's Pills give prompt relief and leave one in a healthy and happy condition." N. J. M.

Pioneer Settlers in Lone Star State Tell Of Fish Rain Days

YOAKUM, Texas., Feb.—During a very cloudy morning, with a stiff breeze driving dark clouds over the town, Henry Hohn and two fellow-workmen in the De Witt Motor Company's plant heard a thud on the iron roof. Running out to investigate, they found a buffalo fish, thirteen inches long, weighing one and a quarter pounds. The fish was bleeding from injury it received in striking the iron roof, but was still breathing.

The news spread rapidly, and soon old settlers were coming in and telling of similar instances they had seen when "fish rained down out of the clouds."

Paul Men told of two alligators falling out of clouds during a small cyclone in this section.

Children Need Shoes.

ATHENS, Feb.—Athens county school authorities are trying to collect about 100 pair of shoes for children, who, they claimed, cannot leave their homes because of lack of covering for their feet. Most of the needy youngsters are in the mining camps, it was stated.

A Word To New Fans.

The numbers indicate the beginning of a word; the shaded stops indicate the end. In the horizontal column are listed synonyms for the words which fit crosswise from the numbers to the first shaded stop to the right. In the vertical column are listed synonyms to the words which fit downward, from the numbers to the first shaded spot below. Go over the lists rapidly and fill in all the words you feel sure about. They will give you clues to the other words.

Pioneer Settlers in Lone Star State Tell Of Fish Rain Days

YOAKUM, Texas., Feb.—During a very cloudy morning, with a stiff breeze driving dark clouds over the town, Henry Hohn and two fellow-workmen in the De Witt Motor Company's plant heard a thud on the iron roof. Running out to investigate, they found a buffalo fish, thirteen inches long, weighing one and a quarter pounds. The fish was bleeding from injury it received in striking the iron roof, but was still breathing.

The news spread rapidly, and soon old seettlers were coming in and telling of similar instances they had seen when "fish rained down out of the clouds."

Paul Men told of two alligators falling out of clouds during a small cyclone in this section.

Children Need Shoes.

ATHENS, Feb.—Athens county school authorities are trying to collect about 100 pair of shoes for children, who, they claimed, cannot leave their homes because of lack of covering for their feet. Most of the needy youngsters are in the mining camps, it was stated.

Letters to Editor

What is Equipment.

East Liverpool, O., Feb. 2, 1925.
Editor Review-Tribune,
City.
Dear Sir:—

May I ask Mayor Brown, through the medium of The Review-Tribune, what can be classed as part of the equipment in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor?

Most people keep revolvers to protect themselves against crimes of violence being committed in the community. Can jewelry in any way be classed as part of equipment? Can money be stolen, seized or confiscated as part of equipment because it is used in the purchase of corks, bottles, etc., as containers for home brew and wine?

The people have a right to know where they stand on this matter and what fine-splitters can take from their homes as part of equipment when they make invasions.

Incidentally, I was lucky in discovering a jar of jam in my cellar with the cover torn off. It had fermented; the juice had become alcohol. I immediately destroyed it. What would have happened if licensed gunmen had found it? I suppose I should have been taken before a court and a fine imposed upon me.

However, despite this precaution, there remains the danger and dread of fine-splitting detectives planting the evidence, because there is an incentive for them to do it.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM HAZELHURST, Sr.,
East End.

4 out of 5 are marked

There's no way to get around it. Dental statistics show that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are victims of Pyorrhea. Do you want to avoid this dread disease?

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Three Generations Kept Healthy and Happy

"Beecham's Pills were always considered indispensable by my parents during sixty years of married life and I am never without them in my home, as they are used when required by myself (aged sixty-one), and wife and children. This covers a period of over eighty years.

My wife and sons also believe there is no remedy for constipation and biliousness equal to Beecham's Pills.

So many so-called "cures" for biliousness and kindred troubles leave after effects that are certainly injurious, but Beecham's Pills give prompt relief and leave one in a healthy and happy condition." N. J. M.

He strode through the drawing room, met her as she came toward him. The lights in the room were very bright; the Japanese boys were setting the place in order. Rossiter motioned them out and they went with backward glances at his strangely white face. Karesia looked at him, feeling sick with compassion.

"Better to tell you now—if I didn't love you so well, I wouldn't," he said rapidly. "He'll tempt you—he's conscienceless, and you love him. I didn't want to deceive you—it wasn't that. That's why I told you that we would consider ourselves free—as when we first met—that I was courting you all over again. If you really loved me, it wouldn't matter—you'd forgive me and we would have married again. I was going to tell you about it tonight; that when I first came out here, nearly three years ago, I wanted a home. In San Francisco, very quietly, I got a divorce—the note you wrote before you left me, saying you were going, gave it to me. And I didn't even know where you were. For a year I've been free to marry. You're free, too. Kara, don't do a wild thing that you'll regret as long as you live. You're a good woman—he's not for a woman like you. It's ended between us—I'm sorry. There's nothing more to be said."

Rossiter turned on his heel; went into his library and closed the door.

XXXIII

That evening, as Dascome sat at his solitary dinner, Takimoto said to him, "Suda tell me that Mrs. Kaime came out from ladies' store this morning and look very sick."

Dascome glanced up quickly and he and Takimoto looked at each other; the Oriental's eyes were narrowly brilliant in their immobile setting. "But she went to Mr. Rossiter's this evening," Dascome said after a pause.

"Suda say Mrs. Kaime tell him when she came out of ladies' store, 'I can't walk.' Then she sit in car and look very sick. Then she say, 'Take me to storehouse.' Then she send Suda home and she not come home till evening."

Dascome looked down, his face grown gray. The Japanese moved about lightly, glancing now and then at Dascome's averted face. He placed the next course before him, but Dascome did not touch it. Takimoto waited. Then Dascome looked up at him again. "You saw Mary Bliss today?"

"Yes, I saw. I take her some flowers. I go up to her room and give them. She a little afraid of me—not so afraid of Suda because he smaller than me. She call him 'Boy,' always. But she take flowers and say, 'Thank you,' then shut her door pretty quick."

Dascome said nothing, only looked at him in his steadfast, questioning way.

"She get better in her body, I think," Tokimoto said, "but not remember just the same—eyes like they see nothing."

Again Dascome looked down. He did not touch his food. "You want salad?" Takimoto asked finally.

"No," Dascome answered absently.

The Japanese came closer. "I think better take her away, now Mrs. Kaime knows. It not so safe."

"As soon as Colt comes back," Dascome answered.

"He come soon?"

"As soon as he can—I've been waiting. Manage to see Mary Bliss every day, if you can."

Dascome rose and Takimoto asked, "You not finish your dinner?"

"Just coffee. Bring it to me in the other room."

Takimoto brought it to him and Dascome drank it, standing before the fire. When he went in to dinner, there had been color in his face, now he was haggard. But he gave his orders with perfect steadiness. "Dennison will not be here tonight until 10 o'clock. Have hot coffee ready for him, Taki, and something to eat if he wants it. He'll come up through the basement, as usual. And be sure that all the window shades are down—never forget that. When Suda comes back, remind him again to pull down the window shades."

"Yes, sir."

"Does Suda suspect anything, Taki?"

"No!" the Japanese said positively. "Suda very kind boy but not much brains. You stay out till 10."

"Yes."

"I have coffee—something for you to eat then?"

"No—nothing. Go to your house then, Taki, and forget about it. First see that there is plenty of wood here for this fire. It's turned colder."

"You sit up all night alone and think and you get sick," the Japanese warned. "Often I think you will get sick—thinking."

"I may not sit alone tonight, Taki. Jacob is not the only man who served seven years for his Rachel. Now bring me my cap and coat."

Kakimoto did not understand the reference, he was a Buddhist, but he knew that a woman might come. He arranged the lights so that they produced the softest glow, piled the cushions on the couch, tended the fire, and brought the vase of flowers from the dining room and put it on the mantel. Last of all he burned a bit of incense in one of Karesia's bronze incense burners. The he drew the hangings across the entrance into the hall and closed the doors into the dining room.

After walking around the house and the garden, Dascome had gone to the hillside. Farther inland, it had rained that day, falling in snow on the mountains, and its chill breath had crept down over the the foothills toward the ocean. Usually, during his night watches, Dascome could sit down or stand about, but tonight he had to keep moving. He walked along the foot of the hill, which was just high enough to command a view of Karesia's house, and near enough to hear sounds and to see any lurking shapes there might be. It was not a dark night; on a dark night, he kept closer to the house. He walked like a sentry, back and forth, pausing only when a light shone in some room, when an outer door opened or closed. He could look far down the street; at the other end of his beat he could see the back of Karesia's house and overlook the garden.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Rightly Hesitant.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 22 and am keeping company with a man eight years my senior He has asked me to marry him and although I love him more than any other man I have ever known. I have not given my answer because I am not sure we would be happy together. He and I are both "the only child" My father died when I was quite young and my mother had to work hard to support me and it didn't give her much time to spoil me. His father owns a store and does good business, so that he has never known what it is to do without Besides he has always had a mother and grandmother to wait on him in every way. One time he told me his grandmother always sent his white shoes cleaned in summer. This may be father seems to like me, but I can't feel that his mother and grandmother do not. When I go to their house for dinner they are all very nice to me but still I can feel something very unfriendly behind the kindness of the kindness of the mother and grandmother. He wants to marry me this June and take me to his home to live. He knows his people would be lonely without him and because it is a big house he can't see why we couldn't all get along nicely together. You will probably say that I don't love him and therefore should not consider marrying him. I do love him, though, and don't know what to do. I feel as if I can't live without him, but I also feel that I could never go into his home and be happy. When I marry I want a home of my own What is your opinion of this? NAOMI.

It is quite right that a girl should weigh her chances for happiness before she gives her consent to marry Even deep love will not thrive in an hostile atmosphere. To get into the man's home where he is placed on a shrine by his mother and grandmother would certainly tempt the fates. Even if they were good to you and always were good fair, it would be their home and not yours. It is your right to insist on a home of your own, where you will be free to express yourself without usurping the rights of someone else. Instead of criticising you for placing obstacles in the face of your love, I admire you more than a girl who would plunge into matrimony blindly, letting the future take care of itself. If there were more thought before marriage, there would be more happy marriages.

He Must Wait.

Dear Mrs. Thomson: I am a girl of 16 and have met a boy of 18. We met three weeks ago. He appears to be very quiet and nice and he seems to think a lot of me, but he never takes me any place. He seems very bashful What can I do to get him to take me places? He is the first boy friend I have really cared for. JUST BOY FRIEND.

There isn't much you can do to get the boy to take you places. You might suggest that you and he go for a walk call on some friend or something like that, but it would not be correct for you to make suggestions which would involve the expenditure of money.

BOB: Don't give up a girl you love merely because you have heard she has talked in an unkind way about you. I am inclined to think that the story was exaggerated before it was

YOUR HEALTH

Every Typhoid Fever Case Assails Sanitary Rules

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

ONE of the gratifying evidences of medical progress is the steadily declining appearance of typhoid fever. The younger men in practice have seen few cases. The elder men recall the times when hardly a day passed in any community without a new case.

Typhoid has become so rare that it is sometimes overlooked for a few days. Indeed, in "walking typhoid"—what the doctors call the "amulatory type"—the patient may drag himself through his regular duties and not suspect he has this serious disease

Ordinarily, the trouble begins with headache, perhaps with nosebleed. It produces such great weakness and prostration that the victim is glad to go to bed and call the doctor

The temperature gradually steps up a degree or so higher at night than in the morning Tenderness of the abdomen diarrhea and sometimes a rash on the chest and abdomen are other symptoms

In the second week there is a muttering delirium and the symptoms gradually grow worse The prostration increases during the third week After this the temperature goes down and unless there are relapses the case begins to improve

Like all other infectious diseases, the complications are most to be dreaded Bleeding from the nose or bowel perforation of the bowel with serious inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdominal cavity, pneumonia inflammation of the kidney and serious bed-sores are among the possible complications

Bad water bad milk contaminated shell fish and other bad foods are to be looked to as possible carriers of the disease germs Human carriers are sometimes met

Every case of typhoid fever is a challenge to the health officials Immediate steps are taken to discover what is wrong and where the disease originated

The greatest precautions must be exercised to make sure that the discharge from a typhoid fever patient are properly disposed of so that no other case may follow This requires painstaking care on the part of nurse and family It must be kept in mind that every such case is a menace to society if it is not properly treated

So serious is typhoid that we should rejoice over the advances in science which have made the disease so rare carried to your ears. You say that she seems to enjoy your company and goes with no one else, and therefore you should have more faith in her than to think she would say what you heard.

Not Well Bred.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it nice for girls to comb their hair in school time?

BLUE EYES, FRIEND OF ALL.

It is generally considered not wellbred to comb your hair, manicure, use a compact, or perform any of the various acts of preparing ones toilet in public.

High School Lone.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my teens and in high school. I am deeply in love with a fellow whom I go with quite a bit. He is popular and so am I but he is the only one I love. We write notes back and forth at school and he says he loves me with all his heart, but sometimes I doubt it. When I ask him to come up to the house to see me he always has some excuse, such as, he can't go out, hates to walk, or has to study. He has taken me home several times. The other night after school I asked him to wait for me, which he did but he said he had to practice for a play. Sometimes he says things which makes me feel very blue but I know he doesn't mean them. Another couple and I are invited to go skating and I am to invite a fellow for me. Don't you think it would be all right to ask him since we both love each other? His mother has been ill and doesn't want him to go with any girl very much. BROWN EYES.

Since the boy's mother is ill and objects to his going with a girl it is only natural that he should make excuses when you invite him to your home. Doubtless he has to practice, study, etc., or else sit up with his mother, it would be all right to invite him to go skating since he has taken you home and has told you in his notes he cares for you. Don't be disappointed however, if he turns down your invitation, because he probably is not allowed to go out nights with a girl. Of course he would not want to give that as an excuse. A girl always makes a mistake when she asks a boy to call at her home and to go places with her. Almost every boy prefers to do the asking himself and feels that the girl is "running after him" when she goes that far.

An Unhappy Girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my very early teens and considered good-looking. I go to shows and love out-door sports, but somehow I am unhappy. I have girl and boy friends who seem to think of me as the closest of friends. I try to be happy but always fail. I think it is because of my very best girl friends. They come to see me often but go away angry every time. This hurts me very much and I worry about it because I can't see a thing that makes them act this way. They could not be better friends when they visit. I can tell they are angry when they go, but I can't understand why. If it is something I do I can only hope to find it out. I do my best when they are here.

Do you think it is just their nature? WORRIED GIRL.

Probably you feel that you want to play your way, and that because you are in your own home you have a right to do so. Study the wishes of your friends and make an effort all through their visits to let them express themselves and do what they want to. As long as they are your guests you ought to give in to them without opposing them in the least or showing disappointment. Also keep unhappiness to yourself. A happy person has hosts of friends, while one who suffers from the blues dragging down the spirits of others is dreaded rather than sought. If you are not able to fathom your failure to please, question your friends. Surely you will be able to get some idea of what is wrong through them.

And another puzzle is the insane desire on the part of man to beat the fast express.

Hungry Man Admits Looting Meat Markets And Grocery Stores

BURBANK, Cal., Feb—Daniel Orona, thirty four, has confessed to local police that he is the hungry burglar who has been robbing meat markets and grocery stores of Burbank for the past month, according to the police report.

A search of his room revealed much of the stolen groceries and hams. Orona also confessed, say the police, to having robbed stores at Glendale.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Rightly Hesitant.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 22 and am keeping company with a man eight years my senior He has asked me to marry him and although I love him more than any other man I have ever known. I have not given my answer because I am not sure we would be happy together. He and I are both "the only child" My father died when I was quite young and my mother had to work hard to support me and it didn't give her much time to spoil me. His father owns a store and does good business, so that he has never known what it is to do without Besides he has always had a mother and grandmother to wait on him in every way. One time he told me his grandmother always sent his white shoes cleaned in summer. This made father seems to like me, but I can't feel that his mother and grandmother do not. When I go to their house for dinner the are all very nice to me but still I can feel something very unfriendly behind the kindness of the kindness of the mother and grandmother. He wants to marry me this June and take me to his home to live. He knows his people would be lonely without him and because it is a big house he can't see why we couldn't all get along nicely together. You will probably say that I don't love him and therefore should not consider marrying him. I do love him, though, and don't know what to do. I feel as if I can't live without him, but I also feel that I could never go into his home and be happy. When I marry I want a home of my own What is your opinion of this? NAOMI.

It is quite right that a girl should weigh her chances for happiness before she gives her consent to marry Even deep love will not thrive in an hostile atmosphere. To get into the man's home where he is placed on a shrine by his mother and grandmother would certainly temnt the fates. Even if they were good to you and always were good fair, it would be their home and not yours. It is your right to insist on a home of your own, where you will be free to express yourself without usurping the rights of someone else. Instead of criticising you for placing obstacles in the face of your love, I admire you more than a girl who would plunge into matrimony blindly, letting the future take care of itself. If there were more thought before marriage, there would be more happy marriages.

He Must Wait.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 16 and have met a boy of 18. We met three weeks ago. He appears to be very quiet and nice and he seems to think a lot of me, but he never takes me any place. He seems very bashful What can I do to get him to take me places? He is the first boy friend I have really cared for.

JUST BOY FRIEND.

There isn't much you can do to get the boy to take you places. You might suggest that you and he go for a walk call on some friend or something like that, but it would not be correct for you to make suggestions which would involve the expenditure of money.

BOB: Don't give up a girl you love merely because you have heard she has talked in an unkind way about you. I am inclined to think that the story was exaggerated before it was carried to your ears. You say that she seems to enjoy your company and goes with no one else, and therefore you should have more faith in her than to think she would say what you heard.

YOUR HEALTH

Every Typhoid Fever Case Assails Sanitary Rules

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the gratifying evidences of medical progress is the steadily declining appearance of typhoid fever The younger men in practice have seen few cases. The elder men recall the times when hardly a day passed in any community without a new case.

Typhoid has become so rare that it is sometimes overlooked for a few days. Indeed, in "walking typhoid"—what the doctors call the "amulatory type"—the patient may drag himself through his regular duties and not suspect he has this serious disease

Ordinarily, the trouble begins with headache, perhaps with nosebleed It produces such great weakness and prostration that the victim is glad to go to bed and call the doctor

The temperature gradually steps up a degree or so higher at night than in the morning Tenderness of the abdomen diarrhea and sometimes a rash on the chest and abdomen are other symptoms

In the second week there is a muttering delirium and the symptoms gradually grow worse The prostration increases during the third week After this the temperature goes down and unless there are relapses the case begins to improv

Like all other infectious diseases, the complications are most to be dreaded Bleeding from the nose or bowel perforation of the bowel with serious inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdominal cavity, pneumonia inflammation of the kidney and serious bed-sores are among the possible complications

Bad water bad milk contaminated shell fish and other bad foods are to be looked to as possible carriers of the disease germs Human carriers are sometimes met

Every case of typhoid fever is a challenge to the health officials Immediate steps are taken to discover what is wrong and where the disease originated

The greatest precautions must be exercised to make sure that the discharge from a typhoid fever patient are properly disposed of so that no other case may follow This requires painstaking care on the part of nurse and family It must be kept in mind that every such case is a menace to society if it is not properly treated

So serious is typhoid that we should rejoice over the advances in science which have made the disease so rare

Jack Dempsey Will Never Fight Again For Kearns

Runyon Says

Edwards a Promoter.
Once Had a "Human Fly."
Idea Didn't Work Out.
Here's a "Kid" Umpire.
He's McGowan, of New Orleans.

By DAMON RUNYON.

Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

IN New Orleans the writer met Frankie Edwards.

He is one of the leading pugilistic promoters of the city, "doing fair," he said.

He has been there five or six years, has built a large arena at a cost of $90,000, at which nearly all boxing bouts in New Orleans are held.

Edwards is a smallish, sharp-looking chap, whose hair is now tinged with more gray than it carried when the writer last saw him about seven years ago.

That was in Macon, Georgia, when the New York Yankees were training there. The writer encountered Edwards in a crowd which was watching a man who called himself the "Human Fly" scale a middlin-tall building by climbing from on window ledge to another.

When the "Human Fly" reached the top of the building, he rode a bicycle around the very rim of the roof. It made your diaphragm twitch to watch him.

Frankie Edwards remarked that wasn't doing so very well in Macon, Georgia.

"Why don't you grab that 'Human Fly' and manage him?" the writer asked. "You might make some money with him."

"That's a good idea," said Frankie Edwards.

The next day he informed the writer that he had signed the "Fly" to a contract, and they departed from Macon, Georgia, together.

"What did you ever do with the 'Human Fly?'" was the writer's first query when he met Frankie Edwards in New Orleans.

"Oh, that was a good idea that didn't work out," replied Edwards. "Yes, I guess he's still alive, though he didn't figure to be, did he?

"I thought I'd get rich out of him as an advertising stunt," Edwards continued. "I'd look at the big ads that banks and stores carry in the papers, and I thought 'Well, if they pay big money to get in the middle of the papers, what won't they pay to get on the front page.?'

"You see, I figured my 'Fly' would be news going around climbing buildings, but when I went in to see a business man, the minute I mentioned 'Human Fly' he would turn and give me a quick look and start pressing buttons in his desk to summon help. They thought I was daffy.

New Orleans is historic fistic territory. It was there that the greatest pugilistic carnival in the history of the game in this country was held.

They put on three championship fights one after another. George Dixnn beat Jack Skelly for the featherweight title. Jack McAuliffe beat Billy Myers, "The Streator Cyclone," for the lightweight title, and James J. Corbett took the heavyweight title from John L. Sullivan.

It is doubtful if any promoter will ever again undertake a carnival of that kind. It would cost him at the lowest estimate $1,000,000 for the fighters alone!

In New Orleans the writer also met Billy MacGowan, who goes to the American League as an umpire at the start of the 1925 season.

McGowan says he is twenty-nine. He has the appearance of twenty-one. He is a nice looking, pleasant young fellow, who reminds you of Billy Evans, one of the veteran umpires of the American League, though Evans doesn't look much older than McGowan.

Twenty-nine is VERY young for a big league umpire. That is a job supposed to require years and great experience. However, Evans, one of the best of the umpires, began quite young.

McGowan has been umpiring in the Southern League. They say he is a good umpire.

Like Evans, he does considerable writing for the newspapers. A column signed by him if featured in one of the New Orleans papers. Reading this column produces the impression that McGowan is quite INTELLIGENT.

After all, that is the main requisite for umpiring in the big leagues.

Ban Johnson, president of the American League, has evidently been schooling McGowan for a job in his circuit for some time. He has been sending McGowan south with American League clubs to umpire exhibition games for several years.

Thus Johnson, through the reports of club managers and other umpires, must have a good line on McGowan's ability.

Basil Galiano, lightweight, is a New Orleans boy. It is said Billy Gibson, manager of the retired lightweight champion, Leonard, may take over the management of Galiano.

Mr. Gibson perhaps appreciates the avlue of the lightweight title better than anyone else—even the retired Leonard. He is understood to be the manager of another lightweight, Charley O'Conneli, of Cleveland.

Can Mr. Gibson claim that BOTH Galiano and O'Connell are the next lightweight champions, as a conscientious manager MUST claim of his men in any class?

"So I got out of that racket pretty quick," Edwards said, "and here I am promoting boxing shows. It doesn't sound quite as nutty as when you say you're managing a 'Human Fly,' does it?"

The writer agreed that it didn't. Edwards' last big show was the 15-round no-decision bout between Gene Tunney and Jeff Smith. He lost money on that. He is putting on two negro heavyweights, George Godfrey and Battling Owens, next month.

Owens lives in New Orleans. He printed a book about himself with his picture on the cover, is a voluble person, and something of a drawing card. He recently whipped Battling Siki.

Owens is managed by old Paddy Mullins, of New York, and is therefore a "stablemate" of Harry Wills, "The Brown Panther of New Orleans."

Wills is coming to New Orleans next month to second Owens and renew acquaintances in his old home town. Wills seems to be well liked in New Orleans. He started his pugilistic career there.

Edwards says the best heavyweight card in New Orleans is Martin Burke. Also he says Burke is fighting better than ever before in his career. Burke is a clever, crafty fellow. No man in the ring knows how to "tie up" an opponent better than Burke.

He isn't much of a hitter. He is more of a defensive boxer. It takes a fighter of real class to beat him.

Burke got his first schooling with Jack Dempsey. When he was only about 18 or 19, he was one of Dempsey's sparring partners.

The writer recalls seeing Burke, then a tall, slim, nice looking boy, at Dempsey's camp at Long Branch, N. J., just after Dempsey was matched to meet Jess Willard for the title.

Ike Dorgan, publicity man for Madison Square Garden, was with this reporter on the trip to Long Branch, and Ike liked Martin Burke's appearance. Dempsey told the writer that Burke was a promising young fellow.

BIG MOMENTS in SPORT.

By Davis J. Walsh,
International New Service Sports Editor.

No. 5—That Jackson-McCurdy Finish.

In the Spring of 1914 the first of a series of British college relay teams invaded the United States endowed with one Olympic champion, one world's record breaker, two British titles in distance running and an abiding faith in its ability to spreadeagle the field in the four-mile championship relay at the University of Pennsylvania carnival. This view was shared by nearly everyone.

Didn't the Oxford team have A. N. S. Jackson, the scholarly-looking gent, who beat Jones, Kiviat and Taber in the 1,500-metre race at the 1912 Olympics? Didn't it have Taber himself, an American Rhodes scholar who only a short time before had turned in a record mile of 4:12 3-5? Didn't it have Gaussen and Sproul, two of the best distance runners in England? To make answer in blanket, terms, it did.

No Spread-eagling.

Didn't it spread-eagle its field, as advertised? It didn't.

In some quarters Oxford's victory is questioned to this day, so close was the decision. Pennsylvania, a good average American college relay team, all but beat the overconfident invaders in one of the greatest finishes of all time. At the tape you couldn't have slipped a visiting card between the runners, yet the judges managed to see Oxford in front.

The first half of the race saw Bacon and Langner, of Pennsylvania hold their own with Sproul and Gaussen, the rest of the field being well up at this point. It became a two-team race, however, when Madiera, of Penn, stepped out with a 4:21 mile and beat the great Taber by twenty yards. The transplanted American apparently had not taken the event as seriously as the outcome justified.

His nonchalant performance staked McCurdy, of Penn, to a long lead over Jackson, but the latter went out like a quarter-miler and ranged in behind McCurdy before the end of the first lap. They were a grotesque pair—Jackson lank and cadaverous, with the leg spread of an adult giraffe; McCurdy undersized, flat-footed, hair less as an infant and cursed with the arm motion of a candy puller.

He looked like a sap to Jackson, who played his cards accordingly. Instead of stepping out at a clinking pace, the Englishman elected to range alongside of McCurdy with the evident intention of lashing past him at the finish. No greater mistake was made by mortal man. You had to beat McCurdy before the stretch or not at all, so powerful was his sprint. A slow pace was exactly what he wanted.

Not realizing this, Jackson ran wide of McCurdy for nearly three laps, thus going out of his way to run farther than the distance required.

McCurdy on Heels.

A furlong from home he decided that matters had gone far enough and essaped a spectacular sprint. McCurdy was right there with him, and striding twice to Jackson's once, carried the Briton into the stretch on even terms, with 30,000 spectators in a frenzy.

But McCurdy held back a dying effort and 50 yards from home he gave it, pushing into the lead. They came down to the tape in this position and five yards away McCurdy still was a foot to the good. At this moment a wild-eyed spectator fell upon the writer from above and neither of us witnessed the finish.

Upon righting myself I saw Jackson sprawled his tremendous length upon the cinders, completely cooked, and was informed that he had made the finish a very close one by taking a great leap in the last two yards. It was this that probably prompted the officials to give him the decision. His time, 4:32, was ridiculously slow.

He never ran again. Whether from pique, self-disgust or the fact that World War claimed him shortly thereafter, I don't know.

Launch 'Y' Indoor Baseball Card With Win Over Potters.

In the opening game of the Y Industrial indoor baseball league, Smith-Phillips won from the Potters last night in a seven inning contest by the score of 24 to 23.

Smith Phillips sent two runs across in the first while the Potters failed to tally. In the second the Potters batted twelve runs over the pan while the Smith-Phillips gang sent in four.

Both teams scored a run apiece in the third. The Potters crossed the plate five times in the fourth while Smith-Phillips was held scoreless.

In the fifth the Potters scored another tally, while the Klondyke aggregation failed to count.

The Potters got another run in the sixth and Smith and Phillips made it a big inning by scoring a dozen runs.

The Trotters sent three runs over in the seventh but the Smith and Phillips tossers won the game by a seventh inning rally, batting five tallies over the plate. All league teams will be in action tomorrow night.

Wooster Five Faces Two-day Journey to Lower End of State

WOOSTER, Feb. 3.—The Wooster college basketball squad faces a two-day trip to the southern part of the state for this week-end. Friday night Wooster plays Wittenberg at Springfield and Saturday night Otterbein at Westerville.

The past week was a hard one for the Wooster squad. Two games were played in addition to a week of hard mid-year exams. On Thursday evening Wooster conquered the strong Ashland non-conference five in an overtime game, 34 to 28. Then on Saturday evening Wooster took Case into camp for the second time of the season and this time to the tune of 37 to 29.

Coach Boles seems to have settled on his lineup for the season after trying several combinations. This lineup is with Captain Hurst and Maniy at guards; Starn at center and Pfeiffer and Love at forwards.

In addition to these regulars he has McGlashan, Canton McKinley flash, who is drilled to replace either of the guards, Anderson to alternate with Starn at center and Dodez as forward.

Wooster's next home game will be February 12 with the conference leaders, Ohio Wesleyan. This is rated the toughest battle on the Wooster home schedule.

Man On The Inside Confirms Reports of Pair's Parting

Ways From Now on Unless Something is Done to Bring Them Together, Informant Asserts.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Regardless of whether his retirement is on the plumb-bob level or is merely an expression of the prevailing mode in cauliflower ears, Jack Dempsey has fought his last battle under the management of Jack Kearns.

This statement was made today by way of confirmation of the reported estrangement between the pair, by a man distinctly on the "inside" of nearly every big bout in this country.

"That part of the thing is 'in,'" he declared. "You can bet your last cent on it. Unless something is done to bring them together, Dempsey and Kearns will go their separate ways from now on."

He then went on to elaborate upon his statement by telling of an incident that occurred when the champion and his manager were last in the east. Dempsey, he said, was on his way past a famous restaurant in town when one of his party suggested going inside.

"Kearns is in there," he explained.

The champion's reply was to turn on his heel and walk in the opposite direction, after airing a few unflattering remarks about his manager, according to the story. It is not believed that the gesture was the result of a passing grievance. Dempsey is not given to showing his resentment over trivial or temporary differences with members of his official family.

Further significance is given the statement by the tone of Dempsey's recent announcement of his withdrawal from the ring.

Dempsey later saw fit to repudiate his decision in part, by suggesting that he might make one more appearance in the ring but he said nothing about Kearns nor did their stories bear the slightest of team work. While Dempsey was formally declaring himself for the simple life, Kearns steadfastly maintained that the thing was the "bunk." Their respective statements hardly smacked of mutual understanding.

If Dempsey's retirement was merely a publicity dodge, Kearns would have been "yessing" him yet.

Then, also, there is the report of their hotel property in Los Angeles being up for sale. Neither of them are in immediate money, therefore the action in question is interpreted as a desire to divorce their interests.

The further fact that Kearns is said to be negotiating for another unpunched meal ticket in the person of Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, adds color to the estrangement story: Kearns has been after Walker for some time but the latter would have none of it because he cared nothing about runing second to Dempsey in managerial esteem. If Walker really signs up with Kearns as he is supposed to do within a matter of weeks, the inference is broad that the Dempsey-Kearns combination is no more.

Jack Dempsey Will Never Fight Again For Kearns

Runyon Says

Edwards a Promoter.
Once Had a "Human Fly."
Idea Didn't Work Out.
Here's a "Kid" Umpire.
He's McGowan, of New Orleans.

By DAMON RUNYON.

Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

IN New Orleans the writer met Frankie Edwards.

He is one of the leading pugilistic promoters of the city, "doing fair," he said.

He has been there five or six years, has built a large arena at a cost of $90,000, at which nearly all boxing bouts in New Orleans are held.

Edwards is a smallish, sharp-looking chap, whose hair is now tinged with more gray than it carried when the writer last saw him about seven years ago.

That was in Macon, Georgia, when the New York Yankees were training there. The writer encountered Edwards in a crowd which was watching a man who called himself the "Human Fly" scale a middlin-tall building by climbing from on window ledge to another.

When the "Human Fly" reached the top of the building, he rode a bicycle around the very rim of the roof. It made your diaphragm twitch to watch him.

Frankie Edwards remarked that wasn't doing so very well in Macon, Georgia.

"Why don't you grab that 'Human Fly' and manage him?" the writer asked. "You might make some money with him."

"That's a good idea," said Frankie Edwards.

The next day he informed the writer that he had signed the "Fly" to a contract, and they departed from Macon, Georgia, together.

"What did you ever do with the 'Human Fly?'" was the writer's first query when he met Frankie Edwards in New Orleans.

"Oh, that was a good idea that didn't work out," replied Edwards. "Yes, I guess he's still alive, though he didn't figure to be, did he?

"I thought I'd get rich out of him as an advertising stunt," Edwards continued. "I'd look at the big ads that banks and stores carry in the papers, and I thought 'Well, if they pay big money to get in the middle of the papers, what won't they pay to get on the front page.?'

"You see, I figured my 'Fly' would be news going around climbing buildings, but when I went in to see a business man, the minute I mentioned 'Human Fly' he would turn and give me a quick look and start pressing buttons in his desk to summon help. They thought I was daffy.

New Orleans is historic fistic territory. It was there that the greatest pugilistic carnival in the history of the game in this country was held.

They put on three championship fights one after another. George Dixnn beat Jack Skelly for the featherweight title. Jack McAuliffe beat Billy Myers, "The Streator Cyclone," for the lightweight title, and James J. Corbett took the heavyweight title from John L. Sullivan.

It is doubtful if any promoter will ever again undertake a carnival of that kind. It would cost him at the lowest estimate $1,000,000 for the fighters alone!

In New Orleans the writer also met Billy MacGowan, who goes to the American League as an umpire at the start of the 1925 season.

McGowan says he is twenty-nine. He has the appearance of twenty-one. He is a nice looking, pleasant young fellow, who reminds you of Billy Evans, one of the veteran umpires of the American League, though Evans doesn't look much older than McGowan.

Twenty-nine is VERY young for a big league umpire. That is a job supposed to require years and great experience. However, Evans, one of the best of the umpires, began quite young.

McGowan has been umpiring in the Southern League. They say he is a good umpire.

Like Evans, he does considerable writing for the newspapers. A column signed by him if featured in one of the New Orleans papers. Reading this column produces the impression that McGowan is quite INTELLIGENT.

After all, that is the main requisite for umpiring in the big leagues.

Ban Johnson, president of the American League, has evidently been schooling McGowan for a job in his circuit for some time. He has been sending McGowan south with American League clubs to umpire exhibition games for several years.

Thus Johnson, through the reports of club managers and other umpires, must have a good line on McGowan's ability.

Basil Galiano, lightweight, is a New Orleans boy. It is said Billy Gibson, manager of the retired lightweight champion, Leonard, may take over the management of Galiano.

Mr. Gibson perhaps appreciates the avlue of the lightweight title better than anyone elae—even the retired Leonard. He is understood to be the manager of another lightweight, Charley O'Connell, of Cleveland.

Can Mr. Gibson claim that BOTH Galiano and O'Connell are the next lightweight champions, as a conscientious manager MUST claim of his men in any class?

"So I got out of that racket pretty quick," Edwards said, "and here I am promoting boxing shows. It doesn't sound quite as nutty as when you say you're managing a 'Human Fly,' does it?"

The writer agreed that it didn't. Edwards' last big show was the 15-round no-decision bout between Gene Tunney and Jeff Smith. He lost money on that. He is putting on two negro heavyweights, George Godfrey and Battling Owens, next month.

Owens lives in New Orleans. He printed a book about himself with his picture on the cover, is a voluble person, and something of a drawing card. He recently whipped Battling Siki.

Owens is managed by old Paddy Mullins, of New York, and is therefore a "stablemate" of Harry Wills, "The Brown Panther of New Orleans."

Wills is coming to New Orleans next month to second Owens and renew acquaintances in his old home town. Wills seems to be well liked in New Orleans. He started his pugilistic career there.

Edwards says the best heavyweight card in New Orleans is Martin Burke. Also he says Burke is fighting better than ever before in his career. Burke is a clever, crafty fellow. No man in the ring knows how to "tie up" an opponent better than Burke.

He isn't much of a hitter. He is more of a defensive boxer. It takes a fighter of real class to beat him.

Burke got his first schooling with Jack Dempsey. When he was only about 18 or 19, he was one of Dempsey's sparring partners.

The writer recalls seeing Burke, then a tall, slim, nice looking boy, at Dempsey's camp at Long Branch, N. J., just after Dempsey was matched to meet Jess Willard for the title.

Ike Dorgan, publicity man for Madison Square Garden, was with this reporter on the trip to Long Branch, and Ike liked Martin Burke's appearance. Dempsey told the writer that Burke was a promising young fellow.

No. 5—That Jackson-McCurdy Finish.

In the Spring of 1914 the first of a series of British college relay teams invaded the United States endowed with one Olympic champion, one world's record breaker, two British titles in distance running and an abiding faith in its ability to spreadeagle the field in the four-mile championship relay at the University of Pennsylvania carnival. This view was shared by nearly everyone.

Didn't the Oxford team have A. N. S. Jackson, the scholarly-looking gent, who beat Jones, Kiviat and Taber in the 1,500-metre race at the 1912 Olympics? Didn't it have Taber himself, an American Rhodes scholar who only a short time before had turned in a record mile of 4:12 3-5? Didn't it have Gaussen and Sproul, two of the best distance runners in England? To make answer in blanket, terms, it did.

No Spread-eagling.

Didn't it spread-eagle its field, as advertised? It didn't.

In some quarters Oxford's victory is questioned to this day, so close was the decision. Instead of stepping out at a clinking pace, the Englishman elected to range alongside of McCurdy with the evident intention of lashing past him at the finish. Man On The Inside Confirms Reports of Pair's Parting

Ways From Now on Unless Something is Done to Bring Them Together, Informant Asserts.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Regardless of whether his retirement is on the plumb-bob level or is merely an expression of the prevailing mode in cauliflower ears, Jack Dempsey has fought his last battle under the management of Jack Kearns.

This statement was made today by way of confirmation of the reported estrangement between the pair, by a man distinctly on the "inside" of nearly every big bout in this country.

"That part of the thing is 'in,'" he declared. "You can bet your last cent on it. Unless something is done to bring them together, Dempsey and Kearns will go their separate ways from now on."

Juniors and Sophs Take Class Games

Third Year Girls Defeat Freshies; Senior Boys Lose.

Sophomores basketball passers and the Juniors girls were winners in interclass league basketball games played at the high school yesterday afternoon.

The Sophomores downed their Seniors rivals by a 19 to 18 score and the Juniors girls had it easy with the Freshmen lassies, winning by the score of 12 to 1.

The boys' game was fast and rough, with the score close all the way.

The Sophomores led in the first quarter by the score of 6 to 4 and they held the lead all through the second quarter. The score was 9 to 8 at the conclusion of the first half.

In the second half the Sophomores sent a whole new five in. Hamilton and McKeever replaced Larkins and Welch at the forwards. Pusey went in for Schneidmiller at center, while McConville and McKee took the places of Heddleston and Hall at the guards.

Though this seemed to be a better working combination than the Sophomores had in the first half they could not get going. The Seniors were in the lead, 14 to 12, at the end of the third quarter.

The Sophomores won the contest in the last quarter when, with the score deadlocked at 15-15, Hamilton shot a pretty one in from the side giving the Sophs the lead. Pusey tossed another one through the net from the center of the floor increasing the lead. Pyles kept the Seniors in the running with a point from the foul line, while Woessner for the Seniors shot one through from the center spot making the winner of the game doubtful, but neither team scored during the remainder of the game.

Larkins, Heddleston, Pusey, Hamilton, Howard, Pyles and Owen did the best work for the Seniors.

In the girls' contest the Junior girls led by the score of 2 to 0 at the end of the first half.

During the second half the Junior lassies increased their lead and were in front by the score of 6 to 1 when the third period was over. In the last quarter the Juniors made a runaway of the game, scoring six points in the last few minutes of play and easily winning their first victory. Barnhart, Boice and Jobson did most of the scoring for the Juniors, while March led the Freshmen lassies in scoring.

Lineups and summaries:

Sophomore Boys.		Seniors Boys.
Welsh	F	Owen
Larkins	F	Woessner
Schneidmiller	C	Howard
Hall	G	Householder
Heddleston	C	Fugate

Substitutions—McKeever for Welsh, Hamilton for Larkins, Pusey for Schneidmiller, McKee for Hall, McConville for Heddleston, Lamping for Woessner, Woessner for Fugate, Pyles for Woessner, Woessner for Lamping, Rauch for Householder, Lamping for Owen.

Field goals — Larkins 2, Pusey 2, Schneidmiller, McKeever, Hamilton, Owen, Howard, Woessner, Lamping.

Lutheran Passers Carded to Battle Presbyterian Five

On the high school floor the Lutheran passers will clash tonight with the First Presbyterian five in the opening game of the second half of the Sunday school basketball league season.

Early in the season the First Presbyterians, with English and Liebschner, high school stars, in their lineup sent the Lutherans down to defeat by the score of 32 to 15, and the Lutherans are out for revenge. The First Presbyterians are not as strong as they were in the earlier part of the season.

The game will start at 8:15 o'clock, while the preliminary game will be between the First Presbyterian Juniors and the Lutheran Juniors and will start at 7:15.

Estate Divided.

DILLONVALE, Feb.—Will of the late Henry Walker, coal operator and president of several Ohio Valley banks, leaves practically all his estate to his wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Walker, and daughter, Mrs. Allison Dick, Wheeling, W. Va. Bequests of $50,000 to his sister, Miss Margaret Walker, $2,500 to another sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Wilson, and $25,000 to his grandson, Henry F. Dick, are to be paid from the estate. The remainder goes to the widow and daughter, who are named executors.

The diet of those who have high blood pressure should consist entirely of milk, fruits and vegetables. No meat—little bread.

Toledo's Hero Prize Won by Boy

George Deibler, 13, is the winner for 1924 of the silver cup and $100 prize awarded annually to the resident of Toledo, O., who performs the most meritorious act in the saving of human life within the year. He is seen receiving the cup from Federal Judge John M. Killits. George saved a fellow caddie from drowning in a river.

Last Night's Fights

At Philadelphia—Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, received the judge's decision over Joe Nelson of Philadelphia, 10 rounds. Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, won on a technical knockout over Joey Schwart, of Detroit, six rounds. Tommy Murray of Philadelphia, outpointed Louis Dearco, of Cleveland, 10 rounds. Johnny Rini, of Cleveland, won the judge's decision over Jack Gallagher, Philadelphia, 10 rounds.

At Chester—Howard "Kid" Stewart, of Chester, outpointed Bud Spratly, of Seabright, N. J., 10 rounds. Buddy Burke, of Chester, won on a technical knockout over Pete Devine, of Wilmington, Del., 3 rounds. George Roberts, of Chester, outpointed Mickey Sullivan, of Highland, N. J., 10 rounds.

At Lansing—Jack Duffy, Toledo, earned decision over Eddie Russell, Windsor. Bert Palmer, Toledo, outpointed Al Massey, of Muskegon. Alex. Miller, Kalamazoo, drew with Dick Walker, Montreal. Jimmie Harvey, Lansing, outboxed patsy O'Malley, Flint.

At Detroit—Henny Leonard outpointed Al Dundee, Mansfield, O., in a slow ten round bout. Joe Lucas, Detroit, knocked out Barney Butler, Chicago. Pete Firpo, Detroit, knocked out Bobby Swartz.

At Buffalo—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, knocked out Frankie Schoell, Buffalo, third round. Frankie Mack, Hartford, Conn., and Johnny Sacco, Buffalo, fought six round draw. Willie Farrell, Chicago, defeated Charlies Barry, Rochester, six rounds. Martin Peters, Buffalo, won decision over Sylvester Duquesne, Cuba, six rounds.

At Newark—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., won unofficial decision over Ted Moore, England, 12 rounds. Kid Alberts, Detroit, got unofficial decision over Harry Martone, Jersey City, ten rounds. Bob Lawson, Alabama, knocked out Jack Showers, Newark, first round. Freddie Herman, Jersey City, knocked out Joey Burns, England, fourth round.

Flowers Hands Ted Moore Hard Beating In Scrap at Newark

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 3—Tiger Flowers, negro middleweight of Atlanta, Ga., hit Ted Moore of England, with everything but the time keeper's mallet at the National Sportsmen's club, Newark, last night but the Briton was on his feet at the end of 12 speedy rounds. Moore absorbed terific punishment throughout and the unofficial decision went to Flowers without a dissenting voice being raised. Flowers slipped to the floor as a punch grazed his head in the fifth round, this being the only suggestion of a knockdown.

The Tiger turned a complete handspring at the bell. The bout marked his first comeback in these parts after suffering a two round knockout by Jack Delaney at the Garden several weeks ago.

Milk Tests High.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Feb.—Although 100,000 bacteria count per cubic centimeter is the limit permitted in Belmont county, ten out of 35 samples of milk tested by County Veterinarian Theobald were above the limit. Theobald stated. One sample produced 1,200,000 per cubic centimeter while the average was 143,857 for the 35 samples. Some in the list were as low as 10,000 per cubic centimeter. Much Belmont county milk goes to Wheeling.

The per capita wealth of the United States in 1924 was $40 as against only $13.45 in 1900. In 1914, just before the World war, it was $18.95. The total wealth today is $4,500,000,000 according to the Director of the U. S. mint, and is growing rapidly.

Nurmi and Ray Will Be on Same Program But They Won't Meet

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray, arch rivals of the spiked shoe, will appear on the same program tonight at the Western Union games but they will not meet. Nurmi is scheduled to go after the record in a special 2½ mile event and enroute will attempt to erase Ray's mark of 9:08 2-5 for two miles. Ray will go to the mark with a select field in the golden jubilee mile.

In addition, Willie Plant, American champion, will attempt to give Ugo Frigerio, Olympic champion, his third defeat here. They will meet in a 5,000-meter walk. Willie Ritola also will make an assault on intermediate records up to and including 5,000 meters.

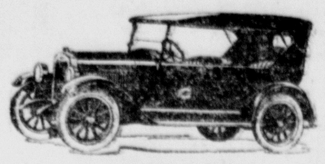
THE NEW CHEVROLET



PRICE $525
F. O. B. Flint.

New chassis—with a larger, stronger frame; new semi-eliptic chrome vanadium steel springs; new and stronger front axle; completely new rear axle of finest construction — banjo type with one piece, pressed steel housing and greatly strengthened gears; improved fully enclosed, dry plate disc clutch which requires no lubrication; extra heavy brake lands on big 11-inch brake drums; a new and easier steering mechanism and many improvements on the famous Chevrolet motor.

New value—new quality—a new line of Chevrolet models far better than ever before. The public has recognized that Chevrolet represents a high standard of quality at low lost. As a result Chevrolet has become the world's largest producer of automobiles with standard three-speed transmission. Now this Chevrolet quality has been greatly increased. The new Chevrolet embodies quality features such as you would expect to find only on cars of much higher price.

PRICE $825
F. O. B. Flint.

New bodies — of even greater beauty and comfort. Open bodies are longer and have new windshield with very low bottom panel, ruber weather stripped. All models have cowl lights and new instrument board refined and cut away for more leg room. The new radiator is of more beautiful design, made of non-rusting airplane metal. All closed models have new and exceptionally beautiful Fisher bodies with the new VV type closed body one piece windshield and automatic windshield wiper.

New finish — all models are now finished in Duco, the new finish that retains its color and lustre almost indefinitely and withstands very much harder usage. Here, again, is a quality feature hitherto not found in other low priced cars. The new Chevrolet open models and coach are finished in rich dark blue—on the sedan is used a beautiful aquamarine blue for lower panels and hood, upper panels in black — coupe with lower panels and hood in sage green, upper panels in black.

Juniors and Sophs Take Class Games

Third Year Girls Defeat Freshies; Senior Boys Lose.

Sophomores basketball passers and the Juniors girls were winners in interclass league basketball games played at the high school yesterday after noon.

The Sophomores downed their Seniors rivals by a 19 to 18 score and the Juniors girls had it easy with the Freshmen lassies, winning by the score of 12 to 1.

The boys' game was fast and rough, with the score close all the way.

The Sophomores led in the first quarter by the score of 6 to 4 and they held the lead all through the second quarter. The score was 9 to 8 at the conclusion of the first half.

In the second half the Sophomores sent a whole new five in. Hamilton and McKeever replaced Larkins and Welch at the forwards. Pusey went in for Schneidmiller at center, while McConville and McKee took the places of Heddleston and Hall at the guards.

Though this seemed to be a better working combination than the Sophomores had in the first half they could not get going. The Seniors were in the lead, 14 to 12, at the end of the third quarter.

The Sophomores won the contest in the last quarter when, with the score deadlocked at 15-15, Hamilton shot a pretty one in from the side giving the Sophs the lead. Pusey tossed another one through the net from the center of the floor increasing the lead. Pyles kept the Seniors in the running with a point from the foul line, while Woessner for the Seniors shot one through from the center spot making the winner of the game doubtful, but neither team scored during the remainder of the game.

Larking, Heddleston, Pusey, Hamilton, Howard, Pyles and Owen did the best work for the Seniors.

In the girls' contest the Junior girls led by the score of 2 to 0 at the end of the first half.

During the second half the Junior lassies increased their lead and were in front by the score of 6 to 1 when the third period was over. In the last quarter the Juniors made a runaway of the game, scoring six points in the last few minutes of play and easily winning their first victory. Barnhart, Boice and Jobson did most of the scoring for the Juniors, while March led the Freshmen lassies in scoring.

Lutheran Passers Carded to Battle Presbyterian Five

On the high school floor the Lutheran passers will clash tonight with the First Presbyterian five in the opening game of the second half of the Sunday school basketball league season.

Early in the season the First Presbyterians, with English and Liebschner, high school stars, in their lineup sent the Lutherans down to defeat by the score of 32 to 15, and the Lutherans are out for revenge. The First Presbyterians are not as strong as they were in the earlier part of the season.

The game will start at 8:15 o'clock, while the preliminary game will be between the First Presbyterian Juniors and the Lutheran Juniors and will start at 7:15.

Estate Divided.

DILLONVALE, Feb.—Will of the late Henry Walker, coal operator and president of several Ohio Valley banks, leaves practically all his estate to his wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Walker, and daughter, Mrs. Allison Dick, Wheeling, W. Va. Bequests of $50,000 to his sister, Miss Margaret Walker, $2,500 to another sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Wilson, and $25,000 to his grandson, Henry F. Dick, are to be paid from the estate. The remainder goes to the widow and daughter, who are named executors.

The diet of those who have high blood pressure should consist entirely of milk, fruits and vegetables. No meat—little bread.

YOUNGSTOWN & OHIO RIVER RAILROAD CO.

Toledo's Hero Prize Won by Boy

George Deibler, 13, is the winner for 1924 of the silver cup and $100 prize awarded annually to the resident of Toledo, O., who performs the most meritorious act in the saving of human life within the year. He is seen receiving the cup from Federal Judge John M. Killits. George saved a fellow caddie from drowning in a river.

Last Night's Fights

At Philadelphia—Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, received the judge's decision over Joe Nelson of Philadelphia, 10 rounds. Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, won on a technical knockout over Joey Schwart, of Detroit, six rounds. Tommy Murray of Philadelphia, outpointed Louis Dearco, of Cleveland, 10 rounds. Johnny Rini, of Cleveland, won the judge's decision over Jack Gallagher, Philadelphia, 10 rounds.

At Chester—Howard "Kid" Stewart, of Chester, outpointed Bud Spratly, of Seabright, N. J., 10 rounds. Buddy Burke, of Chester, won on a technical knockout over Pete Devine, of Wilmington, Del., 3 rounds. George Roberts, of Chester, outpointed Mickey Sullivan, of Highland, N. J., 10 rounds.

At Lansing—Jack Duffy, Toledo, earned decision over Eddie Russell, Windsor. Bert Palmer, Toledo, outpointed Al Massey, of Muskegon. Alex. Miller, Kalamazoo, drew with Dick Walker, Montreal. Jimmie Harvey, Lansing, outboxed patsy O'Malley, Flint.

At Detroit—Henny Leonard outpointed Al Dundee, Mansfield, O., in a slow ten round bout. Joe Lucas, Detroit, knocked out Barney Butler, Chicago. Pete Firpo, Detroit, knocked out Bobby Swartz.

At Buffalo—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, knocked out Frankie Schoell, Buffalo, third round. Frankie Mack, Hartford, Conn., and Johnny Sacco, Buffalo, fought six round draw. Willie Farrell, Chicago, defeated Charlies Barry, Rochester, six rounds. Martin Peters, Buffalo, won decision over Sylvester Duquesne, Cuba, six rounds.

At Newark—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., won unofficial decision over Ted Moore, England, 12 rounds. Kid Alberts, Detroit, got unofficial decision over Harry Martone, Jersey City, ten rounds. Bob Lawson, Alabama, knocked out Jack Showers, Newark, first round. Freddie Herman, Jersey City, knocked out Joey Burns, England, fourth round.

Flowers Hands Ted Moore Hard Beating In Scrap at Newark

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 3—Tiger Flowers, negro middleweight of Atlanta, Ga., hit Ted Moore of England, with everything but the time keeper's mallet at the National Sportsmen's club, Newark, last night but the Briton was on his feet at the end of 12 speedy rounds. Moore absorbed terrific punishment throughout and the unofficial decision went to Flowers without a dissenting voice being raised. Flowers slipped to the floor as a punch grazed his head in the fifth round, this being the only suggestion of a knockdown.

The Tiger turned a complete handspring at the bell. The bout marked his first comeback in these parts after suffering a two round knockout by Jack Delaney at the Garden several weeks ago.

Milk Tests High.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Feb.—Although 100,000 bacteria count per cubic centimeter is the limit permitted in Belmont county, ten out of 35 samples of milk tested by County Veterinarian Theobald were above the limit. Theobald stated. One sample produced 1,200,000 per cubic centimeter while the average was 143,857 for the 35 samples. Some in the list were as low as 10,000 per cubic centimeter. Much Belmont county milk goes to Wheeling.

The per capita wealth of the United States in 1924 was $40 as against only $13.45 in 1900. In 1914, just before the World war, it was $18.95. The total wealth today is $4,500,000,000 according to the Director of the U. S. mint, and is growing rapidly.

Nurmi and Ray Will Be on Same Program But They Won't Meet

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray, arch rivals of the spiked shoe, will appear on the same program tonight at the Western Union games but they will not meet. Nurmi is scheduled to go after the record in a special 2½ mile event and enroute will attempt to erase Ray's mark of 9:08 2-5 for two miles. Ray will go to the mark with a select field in the golden jubilee mile.

In addition, Willie Plant, American champion, will attempt to give Ugo Frigerio, Olympic champion, his third defeat here. They will meet in a 5,000-meter walk. Willie Ritola also will make an assault on intermediate records up to and including 5,000 meters.

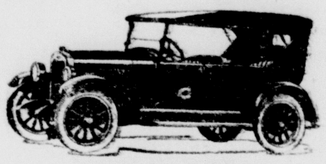
THE NEW CHEVROLET



PRICE $525
F. O. B. Flint.

New chassis—with a larger, stronger frame; new semi-eliptic chrome vanadium steel springs; new and stronger front axle; completely new rear axle of finest construction — banjo type with one piece, pressed steel housing and greatly strengthened gears; improved fully enclosed, dry plate disc clutch which requires no lubrication; extra heavy brake bands on big 11-inch brake drums; a new and easier steering mechanism and many improvements on the famous Chevrolet motor.

New value—new quality—a new line of Chevrolet models far better than ever before. The public has recognized that Chevrolet represents a high standard of quality at low lost. As a result Chevrolet has become the world's largest producer of automobiles with standard three-speed transmission. Now this Chevrolet quality has been greatly increased. The new Chevrolet embodies quality features such as you would expect to find only on cars of much higher price.

PRICE $825
F. O. B. Flint.

New bodies — of even greater beauty and comfort. Open bodies are longer and have new windshield with very low bottom panel, ruber weather stripped. All models have cowl lights and new instrument board refined and cut away for more leg room. The new radiator is of more beautiful design, made of non-rusting airplane metal. All closed models have new and exceptionally beautiful Fisher bodies with the new VV type closed body one piece windshield and automatic windshield wiper.

New finish — all models are now finished in Duco, the new finish that retains its color and lustre almost indefinitely and withstands very much harder usage. Here, again, is a quality feature hitherto not found in other low priced cars. The new Chevrolet open models and coach are finished in rich dark blue—on the sedan is used a beautiful aquamarine blue for lower panels and hood, upper panels in black — coupe with lower panels and hood in sage green, upper panels in black.

ADDRESS MADE BY EVANGELIST

New Castle Man Speaks to Large Crowd Last Night.

Rev. Kaye, New Castle, evangelist, delivered an address last night at the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ, entitled "The Man on the Road." This evening he will hold services in the social room.

In his address last night he said in part as follows: "I want you to think now of that poor man laying down there on the road as Americanism, Liberty, Justice and the Christian religion. Then that fellow that passed him up, as the fellow that don't go to the polls, but leaves the other fellow to do the voting. Also the man that says he will attend to his own business if you want to stop bootlegging. I mean that for the rich man as well as the poor.

"We ought to have pride enough in East Liverpool to make it the cleanest place on the map. I don't think any more of that second man than I did of the first, but he did take a look at him. He did take a look at American principles.

"When it comes to prohibition enforcement, you have to be either on one side or the other. Some preachers are trying to do it but it can't be done.

"In speaking of the Ku Klux Klan, I am in favor of them. I stand on the principles that the organization uphold every American principle. This organization was not founded to take the place of the church, fraternal orders can only go to the grave, but it takes the blessed Christ to go the last mile of the way. If you are out of the church, tonight is the time to line up for Christ."

FOR CHAPPED AND SORE HANDS

One of the most annoying troubles at this season of the year is chapped hands and face. This unsightly and painful trouble can be quickly relieved with CORONA Wool Fat Ointment—it has no equal for all skin disorders. Apply to the hands at night, cover with a pair of cotton gloves or bandage and the next morning you will hardly believe your own eyes—the pain and soreness will be gone.

Corona is different from ordinary salves—it will not smart or blister the tenderest wound—soothes and stops pain quickly. Once used you will keep it on hand as a real "friend in need," for cuts, burns, scalds, old sores, bruises—any flesh wound, eczema, chilblains, etc. Large box only 60c at all druggists. Corona Manufacturing Co., Kenton, Ohio.

TELEPHONE SUPERVISOR

Tells of the Benefit Received by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leavenworth, Kansas. — "My work was long-distance operating and supervising, and I got into a very nervous state and was all rundown. I was easily annoyed at trifles, was extremely nervous and always had a tired feeling which made me awfully listless. Through a newspaper I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thinking it would help me I tried it. It quieted my nerves, I was less annoyed and more lively. It took away that dragging feeling and improved my health in every way. I was able to continue my work with more vigor than before and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all young girls. I am married now and have a big baby boy and am in the best of health. If I should ever have any trouble I'll take the Vegetable Compound again, for I know it will help me as it did before."—Mrs. O. SPECIAL MEETINGS AT BOYCE CHURCH

Special services are being held every evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church in charge of Rev. J. L. Culp, church pastor.

Last evening he spoke on the subject of "Repentance." Large crowds are attending the meetings, which are accompanied by special singing and an orchestra.

Rev. Culp announced the following sermon subjects for the remainder of this week:

Tonight his subject will be "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God."

Wednesday, "Ye Must Be Born Again.'

Thursday, "The Rich Man and Lazarus."

Friday, "Stewardship."

No services on Saturday evening.

Sunday school on Sunday morning at 9:45, preaching services at 11.

Noon Shop Meetings.

Shop meetings were held at noon today at the Laughlin, Louthan and Trenle plants in this section of the city. Rev. Harry G. Kaye, Rev. F. A. Dean and Rev. F. C. Roberts were the speakers. Leaders were Rev. J. O. Archer, W. H. Nagel and Rev. D. W. MacLeod.

Missionary Meeting.

Members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church will meet this evening in the parlors of the church. Regular program will be carried out.

Rudolph Valentino Outdoes Himself in "A Sainted Devil"

Critics thought Rudolph Valentino had about reached the heights in screen entertainment when he chose Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire" as his "come-back" vehicle for Paramount after an absence of two years.

But "the sheik" has fairly outdone himself in "A Sainted Devil," his latest production, which opened at the Ceramic Theatre yesterday. It's a Joseph Henabery production, an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the magazine story, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach.

"A Sainted Devil" has to do with South America and South Americans—pictorially beautiful story of old Spanish customs against modern city life. It shows the virility of the Pampas against the sophisticated culture of Buenos Aires, the Paris of the Americans.

Valentino has a role that fits him to perfection. As a dashing young South American, fired by the pure Castillian blood of generations which courses through his veins, he makes a picture never to be forgotten.

If you are one of those who thought "Beaucaire" was just about the last word in lavish productions—gorgeous settings, superb portrayals, etc.—go see "A Sainted Devil" and be convinced that there's always something new under the sun. Here's the 'great lover' in the kind of a role the public likes to see him in—first as a young planter of wealthy parents, then a regular holy-terror, brooding over the loss of his lovely wife who was abducted on their wedding day.

What a part this is; and how Valentino does play it!

Helen D'Algy, Nita Naldi, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky, Raphael Bongini, George Siegman and others have prominent roles in the strong supporting cast, and all give exceptionally good accounts of themselves.

I WAS FAT

NOW I ONLY WEIGH 130 POUNDS

Took Off 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks—No Diets, Exercises, Creams, Dangerous Drugs or Worthless Reducing Girdles.

Read About "SAN-GRI-NA" Latest French Way to Take Off FAT—It's Safe and Lasting.

"Dear Fat Folks: Let me tell you the truth about fat. Do not be fooled by believing you can check a fatty condition in your system by going through weakening diets, strenuous exercises, rubbing your body with creams, using any of the old drugs for reducing. If these were effective, THERE WOULDN'T BE A FAT MAN OR WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY today, as diets, exercises, creams and old remedies have been tried for years. Do not think for a minute that you can take off fat by wearing so-called reducing girdles—it cannot be done. I personally know the horror of being fat—I went through it. Not only did I feel ashamed of my figure, but, worse still, I never was well or happy like the rest of the girls—I always had pains in my back or limbs, my feet ached, my head was dizzy—ALL THAT BECAUSE I WAS OVERTAXING MY FRAME WITH 50 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT WHICH NATURE DID NOT INTEND FOR ME TO CARRY. I had spent a small fortune trying everyting known to reduce, but never succeeded until I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA,' the discovery of a French scientist, who has devoted his life to the study of 'obesity' and has been able to compound in a small, tasteless tablet the ingredients necessary to gradually and safely eliminate fat from the body. If you want to reduce and at the same time improve your health, go to-day to your drug store, get a package of 'SAN-GRI-NA' (make sure it is 'SAN-GRI-NA'), take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight go down. 'SAN-GRI-NA' is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only does it do away with fat, but it acts as a tonic on the entire system. Do not accept any substitute, as 'SAN-GRI-NA' is the only thing which ever reduced me, and which I can truthfully recommend."—Madame Elaine, New York City.

Rudolph Valentino Outdoes Himself in "A Sainted Devil"

Critics thought Rudolph Valentino had about reached the heights in screen entertainment when he chose Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire" as his "come-back" vehicle for Paramount after an absence of two years.

But "the sheik" has fairly outdone himself in "A Sainted Devil," his latest production, which opened at the Ceramic Theatre yesterday. It's a Joseph Henabery production, an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the magazine story, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach.

"A Sainted Devil" has to do with South America and South Americans—pictorially beautiful story of old Spanish customs against modern city life. It shows the virility of the Pampas against the sophisticated culture of Buenos Aires, the Paris of the Americans.

Valentino has a role that fits him to perfection. As a dashing young South American, fired by the pure Castillian blood of generations which courses through his veins, he makes a picture never to be forgotten.

If you are one of those who thought "Beaucaire" was just about the last word in lavish productions—gorgeous settings, superb portrayals, etc.—go see "A Sainted Devil" and be convinced that there's always something new under the sun. Here's the 'great lover' in the kind of a role the public likes to see him in—first as a young planter of wealthy parents, then a regular holy-terror, brooding over the loss of his lovely wife who was abducted on their wedding day.

What a part this is; and how Valentino does play it!

ligion. Then that fellow that passed him up, as the fellow that don't go to the polls, but leaves the other fellow to do the voting. Also the man that says he will attend to his own business if you want to stop bootlegging. I mean that for the rich man as well as the poor.

"We ought to have pride enough in East Liverpool to make it the cleanest place on the map. I don't think any more of that second man than I did of the first, but he did take a look at him. He did take a look at American principles.

"When it comes to prohibition enforcement, you have to be either on one side or the other. Some preachers are trying to do it but it can't be done.

"In speaking of the Ku Klux Klan, I am in favor of them. I stand on the principles that the organization uphold every American principle. This organization was not founded to take the place of the church, fraternal orders can only go to the grave, but it takes the blessed Christ to go the last mile of the way. If you are out of the church, tonight is the time to line up for Christ."

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT BOYCE CHURCH

Special services are being held every evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church in charge of Rev. J. L. Culp, church pastor.

Last evening he spoke on the subject of "Repentance." Large crowds are attending the meetings, which are accompanied by special singing and an orchestra.

Rev. Culp announced the following sermon subjects for the remainder of this week:

Tonight his subject will be "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God."

Wednesday, "Ye Must Be Born Again."

Thursday, "The Rich Man and Lazarus."

Friday, "Stewardship."

No services on Saturday evening.

Sunday school on Sunday morning at 9:45, preaching services at 11.

Noon Shop Meetings.

Shop meetings were held at noon today at the Laughlin, Louthan and Trenie plants in this section of the city. Rev. Harry G. Kaye, Rev. F. A. Dean and Rev. F. C. Roberts were the speakers. Leaders were Rev. J. O. Archer, W. H. Nagel and Rev. D. W. MacLeod.

Missionary Meeting.

Members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church will meet this evening in the parlors of the church. Regular program will be carried out.

I WAS FAT

NOW I ONLY WEIGH 130 POUNDS

Took Off 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks—No Diets, Exercises, Creams, Dangerous Drugs or Worthless Reducing Girdles.

Read About "SAN-GRI-NA" Latest French Way to Take Off FAT—It's Safe and Lasting.

"Dear Fat Folks: Let me tell you the truth about fat. Do not be fooled by believing you can check a fatty condition in your system by going through weakening diets, strenuous exercises, rubbing [illegible] using any of the old drugs for reducing. If these were effective, THERE WOULDN'T BE A FAT MAN OR WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY today, as diets, exercises, creams and old remedies have been tried for years. Do not think for a minute that you can take off fat by wearing so-called reducing girdles—it cannot be done. I personally know the horror of being fat—I went through it. Not only did I feel ashamed of my figure, but, worse still, I never was well or happy like the rest of the girls—I always had pains in my back or limbs, my feet ached, my head was dizzy—ALL THAT BECAUSE I WAS OVERTAXING MY FRAME WITH 50 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT WHICH NATURE DID NOT INTEND FOR ME TO CARRY. I had spent a small fortune trying everying known to reduce, but never succeeded until I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA,' the discovery of a French scientist, who has devoted his life to the study of 'obesity' and has been able to compound in a small, tasteless tablet the ingredients necessary to gradually and safely eliminate fat from the body. If you want to reduce and at the same time improve your health, go to-day to your drug store, get a package of 'SAN-GRI-NA' (make sure it is 'SAN-GRI-NA'), take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight go down. 'SAN-GRI-NA' is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only does it do away with fat, but it acts as a tonic on the entire system. Do not accept any substitute, as 'SAN-GRI-NA' is the only thing which ever reduced me, and which I can truthfully recommend."—Madame Elaine, New York City.
